Mary Macy Petty 1863 - 1958

to know her . . . was to love her

On January 1, Mary Macy Petty, first woman to serve on the Guilford College Board of Trustees, passed away at the age of 94. She had been a trustee since 1937.

Mary Petty was born November 10, 1863, in the Quaker community of Bush Hill. She attended New Garden Boarding School, received her bachelor's degree at Wellesley in 1885, and engaged in graduate studies at Bryn Mawr, Harvard, Cornell, and the University of California.

After serving on the staff of Statesville (now Mitchell) College, where she occupied the chair of mathematics, Mary Petty returned to Guilford in 1888 to teach mathematics, history, Latin and English Literature and remained until 1893, when she joined the faculty of the State Normal and Industrial School, forerunner of Woman's College, in Greensboro. In 1903, Mary Petty was appointed head of that institution's Department of Chemistry, a post she held until her retirement in 1934.

During her years of service to Woman's College, she was chairman, or a member, of many important committees, and originated the Faculty Social Committee which contributed greatly to fellowship on the campus. Even after her retirement, she maintained an office close to the administrative heart of the college for many years.

Mary Petty was an active and devoted member of the Asheboro Street Friends Meeting, and she served in outstanding manner as Recording Clerk of the North Carolina Yearly Meeting.

In the Asheboro Street Meeting, she established the Elizabeth Fry Circle, and served as Sunday school superintendent. The class which she taught for forty years now bears her name.

Also active in civic affairs, Mary Petty was the first secretary of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs. Her guidance and inspiration contributed much to that organization's growth as well as to the development of numerous other groups.

Mary was the daughter of Victoria and William Clinton Petty of Bush Hill, which in 1887 became Archdale. The first grant of land in the community was made in 1787, when a group of English Quakers came from South Carolina and settled in the fertile North Carolina Piedmont. By 1820, Bush Hill was a thriving farm community, a part of the Springfield Monthly Meeting. Its residents were industrious, peace-loving, kind-hearted and hospitable.

William C. Petty began the manufacture of sashes, doors, blinds, mantels and general building supplies the year after the Civil War ended and was contractor for the old Trinity College building and many other structures. He developed the first power loom shuttle for cotton mills in the South and was awarded premiums and diplomas at the New Orleans Exposition for this achievement.

In 1876, citizens of Bush Hill decided their children needed a school of their own, and records show that men of the community, headed by W. C. Petty, pooled contributions ranging from $5 to $100, bought land and built a school.

Mary and Annie Petty, now the only surviving member of the family, were among more than 100 pupils who studied through the week in the school

1957-1962 Development Goals Presented

Recently, Guilford alumni received a booklet announcing "The Century and a Quarter Scroll." Reprinted here are brief excerpts outlining the basic purpose of this program:

"The Century and a Quarter Scroll, to be cast in bronze upon the completion of Guilford's 1957-1962 development program, will bear the names of all alumni and friends who have contributed $125.00 or more to the college during that five-year period. It will be a handsome tribute to those who believe in the future of Guilford College, and will be placed permanently in an appropriate location on the campus.

All gifts and contributions toward the development of the college, amounting to $125.00 or more, will fulfill the requirement for inclusion on the Century and a Quarter Scroll. Contributions may be made to the living endowment, to a specific college building or development project, to the permanent endowment, to special class, chapter and individual projects, or to any combination of these over the five-year period ending May 31, 1962.

The development goals that have been set by the trustees of the college will require contributions totaling $1,250,000.00 during the five years ahead.

Like all institutions of learning, Guilford College is faced with rapidly growing, and changing, responsibilities. In order to meet these responsibilities effectively, Guilford must maintain an able faculty dedicated to high academic standards, and facilities adequate for the ever-expanding requirements of modern educational methods.

Guilford's dedication to sound academic concepts will continue to attract teachers of outstanding ability to the faculty. However, a practical point of view must be taken in the matter of faculty compensation and security beyond retirement age. Thus, an increase in the permanent endowment, from which funds for increased faculty salaries must come, is an essential part of the college development program.

It is also essential that the present physical facilities of the college be augmented by an Auditorium-Religious Education-Music building on the campus. In addition, the second floor of Memorial Hall should be remodeled to provide additional classrooms and faculty offices. Finally, the various athletic fields and recreational areas should be relocated for more efficient use of property and for more adequate parking accommodations.

Guilford's Living Endowment funds should be increased, so that the program of alumni organization may proceed more rapidly. This program calls for greater service to alumni of the college through closer personal contact, through an up-to-date alumni directory, and through better coverage of alumni affairs in the Journal. It is hoped that Living Endowment contributions can be increased from about $5,000.00 annually at present to $20,000.00 annually by 1962."

Adams and Angel Are Class Project Chairmen

Ketchel Adams of High Point has been named Chairman of the Class of 1956 Project Committee. The committee plans a project in connection with the college's Century and a Quarter Celebration in 1962.

Ketchel is a native of Elkin, N. C., and is at present time employed as Boys Secretary at High Point, N. C. YMCA. He is also vice-president of the High Point Chapter of the Guilford College Alumni Association. He is married to Jo Ann ("Jody") Downs '56. Other '56 graduates named on the committee are: William R. Crownfield, Margaret White (Mrs. Raymond) Chalkley, Emily Warrick (Mrs. Mack) Privott, Andrew Connor, Ralph and Nancy Dettor Edwards, and Charles Strider.

Royce Angel, at present employed as manager of Guilford Telephone Company, has been named as

Plans for Alumni Day

May 31, 1958

Plans for Alumni Day are now being made, and a number of special events and reunions are projected.

Five classes will be honored especially, because their reunions have particular significance. The class of 1908 will observe its Golden Anniversary and will join earlier classes in the distinguished 50-year group.

1933 will gather for its Silver Anniversary.

1948 will celebrate its tenth anniversary.

1953 will celebrate its fifth anniversary.

1957 is scheduled for its first reunion, and members of that large class are preparing for it enthusiastically. This reunion promises to be one of the largest and most successful held on the campus in many years.

Other classes which will meet this year to renew old friendships and talk over old times are 1922, 1923, 1924 and 1925; 1941, 1942, 1943 and 1944.

In addition to regular class reunions, several special groups are to be invited to the campus for reunions. These groups are composed of individuals who made outstanding contributions to college life at Guilford while they were students. This year, the special groups to be invited are: Guilfordian editors and business managers; Quaker editors and business managers; Men's Student Government presidents; Women's Student Government presidents; Women's Athletic Association presidents; Monogram Club presidents; Senior Class presidents; and past members of the Scholarship Society and the Revelers Club. In succeeding years, other groups such as Athletic Team captains, Key Seniors, Student Affairs Board presidents, Chief Marshals, May Queens, Homecoming Queens and Revelers Club presidents, will be invited.

James Mackie Reports Guilford's Alumni Have Close Bonds

As more and more time elapses since my days at Guilford College, I come to a fuller realization of just how valuable the time I spent there has been to me. In my work, my social life, my church, and in all my civic work there is a very definite evidence of the influence of Guilford College.

My job requires the ability to deal with people; to organize time and business structures; and, above all, the power to concentrate on one thing at a time, despite hectic living as it is today.

My job also requires me to move to new towns from time to time. I have often stated the belief that there is not a town in North Carolina to which my wife (also a Guilfordian, Cassie Lou Williams '49) and I might move where there are not Guilfordians. So far, we have found this to be true.

A new town is not entirely new if one has friends there. It seems that all Guilford Alumni are friends; and the bond of fellowship with Guilfordians has always helped us adjust to new surroundings. Once it is learned that my wife and I are Guilford alumni, we are taken into the community and given services to perform. This obviously indicates general confidence in Guilford, and in me as one of her alumni.

Since we are representatives of our Alma Mater, we accept these duties with pride, and with a sense of responsibility. We know that this is the least we can do in return for what Guilford has done for us. To be honored and respected by those around us is a priceless asset.

I believe that special something with which Guilford endows its own is a reflection of the atmosphere prevailing there. A student is not a unit, a number, but rather a very important individual.

One English professor took special interest in one of my problems one afternoon, and, although she probably would not remember the incident, I believe that it was one of the most important events in my life. I realize more and more each day that no matter

Religious Training at Guilford

John Pitkin Expresses His Gratitude For Training He Received As a Student

A dear friend and former classmate of mine whom I had not seen since graduation dropped in for a visit recently. "I owe a great debt of gratitude to the Religion Department at Guilford," he said. "I'll admit I was a bit shocked to begin with, but when I entered Seminary I discovered the soundness of the Guilford methods and philosophy."

This expression of appreciation is typical of that which you may hear from many Guilford graduates with majors in religion. It is equally typical whether they have continued their studies or have gone into some religious vocation. Such expressions pay tribute to the practical purpose of Guilford's religious education program, which is to equip each graduate to work and witness in a creditable and effective way in the interest of the Kingdom of God.

From my own observations, two basic ideas underlie the philosophy of religious teaching at Guilford: (1) The need for absolute honesty and freedom in examining the ever-expanding field of Truth, (2) the need for respect and appreciation for others—their ideas and personalities—regardless of how they differ from us. The first of these is vital to intellectual attainment; the second to getting along with people. There are no taboos to hamper study at Guilford; and there is no religious exclusiveness taught or implied.

The shock which the student experiences upon entering such an atmosphere is regrettable but understandable. The approach is a far cry from the uncritical orthodoxy of his boyhood Sunday school—and to him, this is downright irreverent. What most critics of Guilford do not understand is that this reaction does not imply so much a criticism of Guilford as of the student's early religious training in the home and church—he is simply not prepared.

There are three possible reactions to this initial shock: (1) The student may be so distressed that he drops out of school. If this happens, he goes away with a confused and unpleasant impression of religious teaching at Guilford. (2) The student may be determined to see it through at all costs but may close his mind to what he considers unorthodox ideas. This is to be preferred over the first reaction, for there is always the possibility that the light of truth will break through to him, and he will see the reason for it all. (3) The student may join the professors and fellow-students in this glorious adventure, this search for Truth, pausing to examine each item carefully for its value, keeping that which speaks to his condition and fitting it into his own philosophy of life. This is the ideal reaction. This is my own and that of most Guilfordians of my acquaintance.

You see, I know what my friend was talking about. I came to Guilford from a rural Friends Meeting, more mature in years than some, but perhaps, immature in ideas. I will never be able to express adequately my gratitude to President Milner and his staff, to Dr. Crownfield and his colleagues in the Religious Department, to all the faculty and students who made my stay so pleasant and helpful. My experience at Guilford has made all the difference in the world to me, both in personal satisfaction and in equipping me for my work.

Now, through the co-operation of Marlboro Meeting, which releases me two afternoons each week, I am again at Guilford doing graduate study in religion. Needless to say, I am finding it just as enjoyable and stimulating as ever.

Crownfield, Kent and Moore Attend Conference in Ohio

Three Guilford Professors attended the Conference on Leadership Training sponsored by the Five Years Meeting of Friends in Germantown, Ohio in mid-November.

Dr. Frederic Crownfield, Professor of Biblical Literature and Religion; Dr. E. Daryl Kent, Associate Professor of Religion and Philosophy; and J. Floyd Moore, Associate Professor of Biblical Literature and Religion attended and took part in the conference discussion.

The J. M. Ward Lecture, given here on Founders Day by Sumner A. Mills, Clerk of Five Years Meeting of Friends, was used extensively during the conference. Dr. Crownfield also took a prominent part in the conference, and Guilford's educational program figured prominently in the conference discussion.

Basketball Team Is Making Its Best Record in Six Years

Quakers Beat High Point
Second Time in Twelve Years

BILL RODDY

The Guilford College Quakers, with Coach Bob Shoaf at the helm, have been the surprise team in the North State Conference this year, and the fighting crimson and grey are on their way to posting their best record in six years.

Behind the stellar play of veterans Don Hemrick, Roger Roan, Bill Roddy, Bob Henderson, Bob Young, and Jim Burgess the Quakers have pulled many a surprise during the first half of the season. A January 4th victory over favored High Point, by a 76-74 score, is an example of the type of ball the Quaker five has been displaying. The High Point victory was a momentous event, for it was only the second time the Quakers have up-ended the Panthers in twelve years.

For years the Quakers have had to wage a terrific last ditch battle to reach the conference playoffs. This year, however, the story should be different. Instead of being merely the sentimental choice of the fans the Shoafmen will be capable of walking off with all the honors.

Play during the first half of the season has been highlighted by the work of guards Don Hemrick, Bob Henderson, Vince Breitenberger, and Tom Dillon; centers Bob Young, and Jim Burgess; and forwards Roger Roan, Bill Roddy, and Ted Tilghman. Others who have played an important role are: forwards Dale Myers, Gary Cassells, and Jim Lancaster; and guards Claude Farrell, Charlie Clark, and Jack Holley.

With six seniors on the squad, the 1957-1958 edition of the Shoafmen is one that has plenty of experience. Other positions are filled by promising Guilfordians Write . . .

From Maude (Mrs. Henry V.) Cullen Murray '15: "I'm proud of Guilford's progress!" The Murrays live in Burlington, North Carolina.

From William Lee Rudd '22: ". . . Feel sure that loyal Guilfordians everywhere will co-operate in building a better Guilford College. Our dear 'old' Guilford must grow to meet the challenge of this new day—to serve in a far greater way than we knew in our day . . . My regards to friends on the campus."

YOUNG FOWLERs

From Bob Fowler '50, who is married to the former Beverly Utley '51: "There was a Guilford College alumni meeting of sorts in October at the banquet session of the Pennsylvania Education Congress in Harrisburg.

"I ran into Brad '48 and Ingeborg '49 Snipes. As a member of the Bucks County School Board, Brad was sitting at the dignitaries' table. There wasn't much time to talk over old school days, but it was pleasant to see the Snipes and to hear about their two children.

"Being a member of the Bucks County School Board is a distinct honor. The Bucks County schools are among the finest in Pennsylvania. Largely on his record accomplished there, the Bucks County school superintendent is now on loan to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as superintendent of public instruction.

"With so many Pennsylvanians having attended Guilford, it is surprising that we don't run into more Guilfordians up here.

"Beverly and I moved to the Harrisburg area last December from St. Petersburg, Florida. I am working for the two state capital newspapers, The Patriot and The Evening News, as an editorial writer. My courses in writing under Dorothy Gilbert and in logic under Dr. Carroll Feagins are proving valuable.

"We live in Mechanicsburg (a town much prettier than its name) about eight miles from Harrisburg. Our youngsters are Wade, age five and Alyce, two. Their picture is enclosed. In the background is a picture of our new home purchased last year, of which we are very proud."

From Luna Jane Carroll (Marvin J. '54) Southhard '55: "I think of the college often and hope for a visit there soon. Marvin, James (the baby) and I are doing very well. We were called in September to Lone Star Baptist Church here in Jodran Mines, Virginia . . . south of Covington. It is a beautiful place, and we are happy here . . . am doing substitute work in local school . . . best wishes to . . . old friends at Guilford . . . tell Mr. Bailey that I have not forsaken the profession."

From Lt. (j.g.) James R. Lomax '54, U. S. Navy, aboard the U.S.S. Brush in the Pacific: "I'm sure that all of us feel indebted for the actually priceless things we acquired at Guilford. I'm enclosing a small contribution to the Living Endowment Fund. I hope to send a much larger contribution in the near future.

"I expect to be home on leave next spring, and am looking forward to seeing you then.

"Please give Dr. Milner my kind regards."

freshmen who, in the future, promise to give Quaker followers much to cheer about.

In the individual departments, the Quakers boast players who are among the leaders in conference statistics. Captain Don Hemrick is second among conference scoring leaders and should shatter the all-time four year scoring record at Guilford. He is only 5' 11", but his name will long remain among the ranks of Quaker greats. Roger Roan, 6' 2", is one of the leading rebounders in the conference and his overall play has been outstanding throughout the season. Center Bob Young, at 6' 4", ranks among the best, with a field goal percentage of close to 50 per cent.

The entire squad is enjoying a fine year, and the efforts of Coach Shoaf deserve praise from all alumni.

Guilford's basketball fortunes are rebounding from their recent lowly depths, and the future should see them standing with the top teams in the North State Conference.

Milner and Hendricks Visit Northern Alumni

Starting their Northern trip November 12, 1957, Dr. Milner and Charles Hendricks traveled 2,200 miles in fifteen days, visiting seventeen Friend's Schools and participating in eight alumni meetings. At the Alumni Chapter meetings color slides were shown of various developments on the campus. Charles Hendricks expressed pleasure at the interest and enthusiasm shown by the alumni. He also stated that he enjoyed seeing many new faces.

Dr. Milner was pleased that he was able to recognize most of the people attending the meetings, even though he had not seen many of them for years. He also expressed his appreciation for the interest demonstrated by Alumni in the current development goals of the college.

Plans are already being made for a trip to visit the northern Alumni next year, and every indication points to larger, more active groups and a number of new chapters. Brief accounts of the eight 1957 fall meetings follow:

Richmond Meeting

The Richmond Alumni Chapter Meeting was held in the Friend's Meeting House in Richmond on November 12. William Foster '40 was elected chairman for the coming year, and appreciation was expressed for the work of Ava F. Frazier '32, who contributed greatly to making the meeting a success.

The Southern New Jersey group has continued to grow in number and activities. Herb Schoellkopf '48 was re-elected chairman for the coming year at the meeting held November 20. His wife, Aileen "Deany" Belton Schoellkopf, who was May Queen at Guilford in 1949, has been busy lately caring for little Jeff.

Clarence Woolston '38 added much to the meeting with his words of wit. Three prospective Guilford students were in attendance.

"The Southern New Jersey Alumni Chapter could very well serve as an example to other groups," said Charles Hendrieks.

Among those at the meeting were Bruce Zeller '56, Louise Peace '55, John L. Peace, Jr. '54, Frank L. Greiner '57, E. F. Alumni Meetings

Wilmington, Delaware Meeting

The Walter Moore Friend's School was the meeting place as Wilmington Guilfordians gathered for lunch at noon November 15. A. E. Lindley '08 was chairman for this year and will continue as head of the group for the coming year. This Chapter was organized recently but now is holding annual meetings.

Although Margaret Warner '32 was unable to come to the meeting, she sent her greetings to the group. Dr. Milner and Maude Bulluck Brown '39 enjoyed talking about tennis-playing days at Guilford.

Among those attending the meeting were Ruth Outland Maris '22, Virginia Hill Cornwell '41, James C. Lehr '45, Alice Woody Lindley '09, Mrs. Sidney Hutton '09, Ruth Payne Estes '37, and Willard R. Payne '53.

Washington, D. C. Meeting

Alumni from the Washington area met at the Friend's Meeting House, November 13. Margaret T. Moore '26, chairman of this group, will remain as chairman for another year.

Dr. Milner and Charles Hendricks were particularly glad to see George C. Allen '31, his wife, and their very attractive daughter who is to come to Guilford next year. They were also pleased to see A. Golden Jones '04, and his grandson, who hopes to become a Guilford student in the near future.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Lindsay '42, Mary Anna Jessup Williams '42, Marjorie Lee Browne Branch '43, Benjamin H. Branch III '45, David A. Register '49, Helena Haines '44, Donald Bonham '54, Anne Ham '55, Marion Pringle '57, Walter Robertson '28, Sara Hadley '44, Margaret Tremain '57, Mr. and Mrs. Rawleigh Tremain '22, Patricia Shoemaker McCuen '45, Delmas B. Philadelphia Meeting

Nelson Jones '34 was re-elected chairman of the Philadelphia Alumni Chapter at its annual meeting November 19, 1957. Charles Hendricks and Dr. Milner were especially pleased to see Larry Menghetti '42, who now has a Ph.D. after his name. He is a Doctor of Veterinarian Medicine. Younger Guilfordians will be glad to know that Janet Jay '55 and Betsy Marklin '56 are on the Planning Committee for next year.

Ruth Jones, daughter of Nelson Jones '34, who attended the meeting, has been accepted at Guilford

Interested Students

Charles Hendricks, Director of Admissions, reports enthusiastically about his recent Northern trip during which he visited 17 Friends Schools and talked with a number of juniors and seniors, several of whom will be Guilford students next fall.

At Westtown School Charles met the son and daughter of Bill and Jewel Edgerton '34 and '33. Also he enjoyed seeing the daughter of Ed Brown '26. Johnny Cox, grandson of Joseph and May Cox '04, was another alumni descendant at the school.

At Lincolnton Friends School, Charles Hendricks reports that he had a most enjoyable time, for this is an all girl's school. There he was the only male in the dining room. This year, for the first time, a Guilford representative visited the Friends School in Providence, Rhode Island.

The reception at all the schools visited was cordial and enthusiastic and both Dr. Milner and Charles Hendricks were impressed with the quality of the students they contacted.

for next year. Alma and Hugh Moore were present also. The college has always been aware of their help and interest in alumni affairs.

Others present at the meeting were Donald V. Dunlap '52, Roy E. Leake, Jr. '43, Claus Victorius '43, Arthur R. Melville '43, W. Worth Mackie '28, Walter P. Copeland '35, Shirley Cummings Moyer '43, and Bettine Huston Wolff '45.

New England Meeting

The New England meeting was held in Nahant, Massachusetts on November 23. Many attending this meeting drove a hundred miles or more, for this Chapter includes alumni from a widely scattered area. Sally Haire '52 drove four hundred miles to be with fellow New England Guilfordians.

Henry Brickell '46 was elected chairman for the coming year, taking over the job from Hope Leslie Graham '42 who did a splendid job as mistress of ceremonies. In a letter received from her recently she wrote, "We had a very happy meeting . . . There is certainly a warm, friendly atmosphere when Guilfordians get together. It's always good to be with Dr. Milner and Charlie . . ."

Among other alumni present at the meeting were Leslie H. Barrett '20, Charles Page, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Haines '56, Mr. and Mrs. Rollen C. Shaw '42, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Graham '42.

With Guilfordians Everywhere

1913 - 1930

John Chappell '13 and his wife Rachel are teaching in the Sheng-Te Christian College in Taiwan which they founded a few years ago. It is a Christian Arts and Science College with about eighty-two students.

David White '20 was crowned "Boss of the Year" by the local chapter of the NSA. Realtor David received the honor after competing in a friendly fashion with nine other bosses. David White has served for some time as Secretary of the Board of Trustees at Guilford.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Marshall '25 were presented to Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth and His Royal Highness, Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, October 21 at a dinner given in their honor. The affair was held at the Waldorf Astoria in New York City with the Pilgrim Society of Boston and the English Speaking Union as hosts.

The Marshalls were guests at the Waldorf. Two years ago they were presented to the Queen Mother when she visited this country.

rooms, and on Sunday went upstairs to the Quaker Meeting. Later, Mary, still seeking knowledge, went to New Garden Boarding School and was graduated there. One of her friends was Gertrude Mendenhall, a young woman who also wanted wider horizons, and in 1881 the two entered Wellesley College.

Mary Petty, in her devotion to humanity and its institutions, gave of herself to Guilford in full measure. As student, teacher and trustee, her love for her alma mater was made manifest in many ways. She served as chairman of the Yearly Meeting Advisory Committee for Guilford College prior to becoming a trustee, and at all times maintained active interest in Guilford's growth and development. On her 90th birthday, Mary Petty participated in groundbreaking ceremonies for Kathrine Hine Shore dormitory.

Mary Petty will long be remembered by those her rich spirit enlightened. To know her was to love her, and her contributions and presence will long be remembered at Guilford College. Hers was a life dedicated to education, a life richly rewarding, a life wonderfully lived.

what success may come to me, she was the helping hand who gave me the courage to keep pursuing my goals in life.

Every Guilfordian should stop now and then to give some thought to his days at his Alma Mater, and to think about how much they have meant to him. Although I am very busy, and have little time to spare, I am taking this simple way to express my appreciation for what Guilford gave me. Further, I intend to continue my support of the Living Endowment and other college projects in the hope that my contributions, joined with others, will help to preserve Guilford and its great traditions.

I have heard people say they would like to help Guilford financially but that the gifts they could make would be too small. I think that if all of us will do what we can, no matter how little, Guilford can look to the future, confident that her service will be even greater than it has been.

Judge James Hoge Ricks

Special Accomodations for Alumni Week-end

Charles Hendrieks, chairman of Alumni Day, announces that beautiful, new English Hall will be available for family accomodations for reunion groups during Alumni Day and graduation week-end to encourage overnight guests who could not otherwise remain for more than one day. Also, it is felt that this will promote good fellowship and pleasant visits among returning alumni.

Reservation cards will be mailed to alumni within the next few weeks, or reservations can be made now by contacting Charles Hendricks, Alumni Day Chairman, Guilford College, N. C. Low charges of one dollar per day per person will prevail, and meals will be served in Founders Hall at usual boarding rates. In addition, it is planned that professional baby sitting services will be available free of charge for those who make reservations.

This project has been applauded by alumni who have already learned of it, and it is advised that persons interested in accomodations for Alumni Day and graduation week-end get in touch soon with Charles Hendricks.

In Memoriam

James Hoge Ricks

Judge James Hoge Ricks '05 died at his home in Richmond, Virginia on March 7, 1958 at the age of seventy-one.

Born at Prospect Hill in Caroline County in 1886, he was the son of Richard Arnold Ricks and Eliza Catherine Crenshaw Ricks. After graduating from Guilford College he went to work for a Richmond Law firm and studied law at the University of Richmond, where he received the LL.B. degree in 1908. He also took postgraduate work at the University of Virginia, and in 1909 was admitted to the bar. Three years later he was named clerk and probation officer of the Juvenile division of Police Court. In 1914 he married Anne Elizabeth Ryland, of Richmond. Mrs. Ricks died in 1953.

In 1916 Judge Ricks became the first judge of the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court which was then established, and for forty years he served in this exacting field. He was president of the National Probation Association twice, a founder and former vice-president of the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges, and the first president of the Virginia Council of Juvenile Court Judges. A Quaker, he was presiding clerk of the Baltimore Yearly Meeting of Friends and served for many years on the Board of Trustees of Guilford College. He was a past president of the Memorial Guidance Clinic and president of the Virginia Children's Code Commission. In 1956 he received an honorary LL.D. from the University of Richmond.

He is survived by a daughter, Miss Anne Ryland Ricks, of Richmond; two sons, James Hoge Ricks, Jr., of Ossining, N. Y. and Richard Arnold Ricks III, of Cambridge, Mass. and Richmond; a sister, Miss Katherine C. Ricks of Richmond, and two grandchildren.

Judge Ricks' sterling character and selfless spirit will be remembered even longer than his impressive achievements in his field. His integrity and sincerity were as unmistakable as his scholarship, and everyone who came within the sphere of his influence was inspired and strengthened by that contact.

But the most fitting of tributes comes from an editorial published in a Norfolk, Virginia, newspaper at his death. ". . . Some day a Virginia Institution built to aid hapless, neglected children must bear the name of the soft-spoken Quaker who possessed such a spiritual quality that he was often thought to be a minister, yet was a judge . . ."

New NCEA President

Glenn M. Robertson '31, principal of Beulah High School in Surry County, recently stepped into the top post of the North Carolina Education Association. Glen was an unopposed candidate for the position, having been elected vice-president last year.

The new NCEA president and Guilford graduate has done graduate work at Appalachian State Teachers College, Northwestern University and at UNC. He has served as president of the Surry County NCEA unit and the Northwestern District NCEA Division of School Principals, and is state director of the NEA Department of Rural Education in North Carolina.

After his graduation from Guilford, Glenn became principal at Gray's Chapel School in Randolph County. He later accepted his present position, in which he has served with distinction for many years. He has always been active in church and civic life, and Beulah community residents proclaim the fact that he has done much to raise the level of civic pride and accomplishment, as well as to strengthen their school. He has encouraged many worthy students to study at Guilford College.

Glenn was recently involved in a severe highway accident and has been incapacitated for several months. He received back and spinal injuries from the crash, which occurred as he was returning from a school function. His Guilford friends will be pleased to know, however, that Glenn remains in high spirits, and should soon return to his work completely restored to health.

He is married to the former Mildred Wolfe of Mt. Airy and belongs to Mt. Airy Monthly Meeting of Friends. The Robertsons have two sons, Harry, 9; and Gilmer, 7.

Poole To MC Alumni Banquet

It is a pleasure to report that J. Robert (Bob) Poole, popular radio announcer and Greensboro station WBIG disc jockey, will again serve as master of ceremonies at the annual Alumni Banquet this year. The reunion committee at its recent meeting decided unanimously to ask Bob to return, but it was not certain at the time that he could accept. He has now informed the committee that he will take time from his busy schedule to be with Guilford alumni at the banquet.

Ernie Shore

A Message from your Alumni President

Howard Cannon, Living Endowment Chairman, is well pleased with the results of his appeal for contributions to Living Endowment, and is following up with another appeal to you who did not respond. He feels that many of you intend to send your contributions, but that you might have overlooked doing so. Just a little effort from all of us will insure that our 1957-1958 goal of $10,000 for Living Endowment will be met.

While class projects have not been a great deal in evidence, I note that at the moment many of the classes are organizing for assistance in the current campaign. Gene Key tells me that he is organizing all classes, one by one, and is insuring soundness of organization by thoroughness. He hopes to have all classes active by the fall season.

We are needed to help Guilford provide the following: A new Auditorium-Chapel, improved athletic facilities (relocation of fields will be necessitated by the auditorium-chapel), modernization of the administration building, and increased funds for the permanent endowment to assure more scholarships and better faculty salaries.

In addition, more alumni should be interested in sending good students to Guilford College. Many leaders in higher education have agreed that the finest contribution an alumnus can make is to encourage a good student to come to his Alma Mater.

And, we need to tell the Guilford story wherever we may be. Many institutions, in line with increased information being given to the public about the crises in higher education (The Closing College Door, etc.), are carrying through with an "Adopt a College" program, designed to interest non-college persons in the worthiness and importance of private institutions of higher learning. We should sell Guilford to others, and constantly enlist support for its program.

As I near the end of my term as your president, I realize that much needs to be done. Yet I feel sure we are progressing; I am more convinced than ever that Guilford's alumni are now rallying and will continue to rally to her great cause.

Hendricks, Moore Announce Alumni Week-end Plans

Charles C. Hendricks

J. Floyd Moore

Charles Hendricks, chairman of Alumni Day activities; and J. Floyd (Pete) Moore, chairman of reunions for 1958, have announced interesting plans designed to make this year's alumni week-end highly enjoyable and successful.

While all features of the program are not yet ready to be announced, there are some features of the plans which have already created considerable interest among Guilford alumni. You will see special items about these elsewhere in the JOURNAL.

As has been previously announced, the classes of 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925, 1941, 1942, 1943, and 1944 will have reunions. Also, the class of 1953 will hold its fifth-year reunion; the class of 1948 will celebrate its tenth year; the class of 1933 will commemorate a quarter of a century since graduation; and the class of 1908 will join the 50-year group and begin holding annual reunions. In addition, the class of 1957 is preparing for what promises to be the more successful first-year reunion in many years.

This year, certain special reunion groups are being invited to the campus. They are: Guilfordian editors and business managers; Quaker editors and business managers; presidents of Men's Student Government; presidents of Women's Student Government; all members of the Scholarship Society; former presidents of the Women's Athletic Association; and former class presidents. If you belong to one of these groups, you are urged to contact the alumni office for details of your reunion. Other special groups will be invited for the 1959 Alumni Day activities.

Library Week Observance

The Guilford College Library joined in the nation's first observance of National Library Week, March 16-22, by inviting to the campus two prominent North Carolina citizens who are active in the support of libraries.

Mrs. Grace Taylor Rodenbough, of Walnut Cove, N. C., a graduate of Guilford College, an educator, and the representative from Stokes County in the North Carolina Legislature, presented the chapel program for upperclassmen on Thursday, March 20. Her topic was "Don't Sell Reading Short." She is especially well qualified to speak in behalf of books and libraries since she was the chairman of the North Carolina Citizens' Committee for National Library Week, and a past chairman of the Legislature's Joint Library Committee.

Mrs. Gay H. Spivey, Assistant Librarian; Grace Taylor Rodenbough, Charles W. Sembower, Librarian, Treva Wilkerson Mathis, acting Librarian; Mrs. Rodenbough delivered address, "don't sell reading short."

Speaker for the freshman chapel program on Wednesday, March 19, was Mr. John W. Harden, well known to Guilfordians as a member of the Greensboro Advisory Board of Guilford College, a North Carolina author of note, and prominent in the business world as a vice-president of Burlington Mills. His subject was "Available Story Material in North Carolina—What Has Been Done and What Can Be Done." He has been intimately associated with the cause of libraries through his membership on the North Carolina Library Commission, and as a member of the N. C. Citizens' Committee for National Library Week.

On the Quaker Sports Front

By MARTY FALKOFF

Baseball

Seasons come and go, and sports at Guilford along with them. Looking back at the basketball season, one may note with satisfaction the presence of Don Hemrick on the All-Conference team. Don also surpassed the old Crimson and Grey scoring record, previously held by Bill Atkins, by some two hundred points.

Now, going quickly to the present and future, we come upon the spring sports season, of late the most successful for Guilford. "If pitching comes through, we have a good chance of bettering our '57 baseball record," says coach Stuart Maynard. The pitching he speaks of will come from Charles Benedetto, Don Carr, and Tom O'Briant, along with newcomers Russell Gray and lefthander Jim Simpson. Simpson appears to be an outstanding prospect.

Benedetto was a member of last year's All-Conference team, and we are predicting he will be even better and repeat. The other half of the battery will likely be veteran Bob Alred, who hit a solid .347 during the '57 campaign; but also looking good behind the plate are Jim Stutts, Lester Parker, and Claude Doyle. Going around the infield, it looks this way: first base, letterman Bill Roddy; second base, Tom Whitely; shortstop, Brodie Baker; third base, Joe Pegram, who hit over .300 in the '57 season; right field, John Bell; center field, Bill West, another .300 hitter last year; and in left field, Tom Dillon. These boys are being pressed hard by Bob Smith and Jack Williams, at second base; Morris Raiford and Harold Burrows and Sid Teachey, at third base; Bob Hodges and Bob Patton, in right field; and Jack Crenshaw and Lany Younts for other outfield positions.

The Quakers finished in fifth place last year, but if the expected improvement in hitting and pitching strength develops, the Quakers could be knocking at the door of the first division soon.

Track

Three wins, three losses. That was the story of the Quaker track season last year. This record is remarkable because the sport had just been revived on Guilford's campus; we can look for coach Herb Appenzeller to come up with a stronger team this year. Six lettermen are back from the '57 team, and a host of strong newcomers could make a prediction for a better season than last year a good bet. The running events will be featured by strong Quaker competition from veterans Bob Henderson, Jim "Spider" Webb, Dave Hardin, Bob Rosier, John Bell and Frank Brown. Jim Burgess, in the high jump, will add to a solid foundation of proven performers. Other track team aspirants are John Meroney, Tom Barnes, Lynn Van Benschoten, Vince Breitenburger, and Richard Whiteside, who finished high in a field of cross country runners of the state a few months ago. Others include John Bell, Harold James, Ed Honeyman, Ed Pennell, Ronnie Moore, Roy Boyles, Andrew McGlandry, Marty Falkoff, Dudley Cox, and Jim Chambers.

Although the roster is not large, a number of these boys are strong in two or more events. "If the field men come through, we will have a well-rounded team," says coach Appenzeller.

Tennis

Across campus, on the tennis courts, we have seen the remaining half of the conference doubles championship team in the person of Jordan Washburn, and it looks as if his opponents can expect trouble again! The other bright spots are Cutter Ham, lettermen Macon Nixon, Frank Draper, Bill Raiford, Jim Askins, Long Vu, Dick Gentry, Dennis Maynard, Tom Thomas, Bill Rhodes, and Dudley Cox. "I feel we will have a better-rounded team than last year,

Six Class Project Chairmen Are Named

Douglas P. Dettor

James Armstrong

Raymond Chalkley

Abner Alexander

Several classes of recent years have been organized for participation in the college's current development goals and are at work instituting plans for carrying out selected class projects. Royce Angel, chairman of the class of '57 project committee, is busy with his committee with the expressed goal of having the first reunion of his class the most successful ever for a one-year anniversary group. Royce requests the interest of all members of the class in this undertaking.

Ketchel Adams, as was reported in the last JOURNAL, is heading up the committee for the class of '56. Raymond Chalkley is chairman of the '55 group and is joined on the committee by John Church, Marie Brewer Hoffman, John Lambeth, Jane Ott, Ted McEachern, Phyllis Redmon, and Martha Burton.

James Armstrong, Chairman; Anne Newton, James Lomax, Roddy Redfearn, and "Les" Warrick comprise the Century and a Quarter committee for the class of '54.

Billy Lee Yates, dean of men at Guilford, chairman; Jo Cameron Jones, Howard Coble, Betsy White Dunn, Richard Staley, and James Crumpler make up the committee for the class of '53. This class is celebrating its fifth anniversary this year.

Gene S. Key

Bill L. Yates

Assisting Abner Alexander, chairman of the '52 group, will be Paul Metzger, Polly Edgerton Connor, Julian Culton, Larry Fine, Sally Haire, Curt Laughlin, Sam Lynch, and Bill Topping.

Gene Key is serving as chairman for the class of '51, and Douglas Dettor is chairman of the class of '50 committee. These two classes are currently lining up committees for service during the next five years.

On the Quaker Sports Front

and that we definitely have a chance to win the conference championship during regular season play," is the expressed sentiment of coach Bob Shoaf, who coached the '57 version of the net team to second place in conference standings. Again the strength of East Carolina is expected to be felt in the conference, and the Pirates will have to be reckoned with if the Quakers are to better their excellent record of twelve wins and three losses last year.

Golf

Pat Brady, amateur champion of North Carolina, will be at the helm of the golf team this year, and at this writing has not decided on a probable line-up for this year's edition. There is some question as to the eligibility of Connie Gorsuch, queen of North Carolina women amateur golfers, but if she plays for the team, you can be sure that she will be tough competition.

Ted Kumagai '36 Makes First Visit to Campus Since Graduation

Naotada Kumagai, '36, pictured with wife Hiroko, Tadataka, 13; and daughter Takako, 9.

The Japanese are learning, and appreciating, more about the United States than any other nation in the world declared a Japanese leader, Naotada Kumagai, who visited Guilford College and scenes he knew as a student from 1933 to 1936.

The visitor, known to students as Ted when he lived in Archdale Hall and was graduated with an A.B. degree in 1936, declared that more than 1,000,000 Americans have gone to Japan since the end of World War II.

He said American customs are spreading, American television programs are seen often on more than 1,000,000 television sets in Japan, classes in conversational English are growing rapidly, American film can be seen twice a week in larger Japanese cities, and jazz and rock-and-roll music have invaded the youth's domain.

As Ted, Kumagai learned the American way of life at Guilford. Now, as Mr. Kumagai, of Kobe, Japan, his job is to interpret and promote the American way. Since 1953 he has been with the U. S. Information Agency, a federal unit, and currently is on a tour of this country for the USIA.

It is his first visit to America since he returned to Japan in 1940. On a 90-day tour, he is refreshing his knowledge of the American scene—for it is his job to bring the whole picture of the U. S. to the 23,000,000 Japanese people in the Kobe area.

Ted described the USIA, which is directly answerable to the President, as responsible for American culture in Japan. The agency sponsors English-speaking classes on six levels: elementary conversation; intermediate study; and special study for doctors, for newspapermen, for government officials and for lawyers. As result of this work, and the influx of GI's, English is the second language of Japan, he said. "If an American speaks slowly, he will be understood in simple conversation almost anywhere in Japan today," Ted added.

From the academic field the agency sends about 200 Japanese yearly, and from other fields, about 50 yearly, for study in the United States. Exchange students are assisted, and there are now in Japan students from the University of North Carolina and Duke. American entertainment leaders, such as Goodman, Cugat and Armstrong, and programs, such as symphonies and ballets, are encouraged by the agency to visit Japan. Japanese newspapers wield powerful influence in sponsoring cultural and sporting events from the United States.

Japanese business, Kumagai declared, is learning much from American businessmen. The Japanese economy is so closely tied to that of the United States that the Japanese have this expression, "When Wall Street sneezes, Japan gets pneumonia."

A business setback became evident last May when it began showing up in the United States, and business is off badly now. Housing construction in Japan, as in America, is below normal.

Ted noted that Japanese have many American modern conveniences, particularly small appliances—but have yet to see frozen food and home air conditioning.

The Japanese marvel at the American credit system, he declared. When a family builds a house in Japan, it must scrape up two-thirds of the cost in cash before starting—the government will lend the rest.

Former Members of Faculty to Return for Alumni Day

by
N. ERA LASLEY

N. Era Lasley

Some years ago Mrs. Bessie Noles Hull wrote me: "When a number of 'my girls' will be returning to Guilford for a speial occasion, I would like to return, too."

This year with the classes of 1922, 1923, 1924 and 1925, scheduled for reunions, we hope all of "her girls" will be eoming back for Alumni Day, May 31. She has been given a special invitation to visit Guilford at this time. She plans to arrive Friday evening, May 30, and remain through the Commencement exereises. Former students enrolled from 1917 to 1921 who are not included in the reunion classes are being extended a special invitation to return to the campus to see her and other former faculty members who plan to be present. In a reeent letter she said: "When you write the 'girls' will you tell them for me that I am expecting a full attendance at this, probably our last roll call—certainly the last one for me."

Miss Aline Polk, who was a member of the Guilford College faculty from 1920 to 1923, has been extended a speial invitation to this Commencement, also. She too, plans to arrive Friday evening, May 30, and remain through Commeneement. She will be remembered by many alumni for her special interest in Journalism, not only as a classroom teacher of the subject, but for her practical help to the Guilfordian staff. We hope that all who know her will return for a special visit with her while she is on campus.

Mrs. Alma T. Edwards, and Miss Maud L. Gainey are coming, too, and even though Miss Katharne Ricks has not given us a definite answer at this time, we are making plans for her to be on hand. Friends of these former faculty members, also, are extended a special invitation to return for this Alumni Day and Commeneement.

Miss Mary Aline Polk

Mrs. Bessie Noles Hull (R.), with husband Oliver and daughter Elizabeth.

SPRING ALUMNI MEETINGS

As we go to press with this issue of the JOURNAL, the spring series of alumni meetings are in full swing. By publication date, it is expected that all meetings will have been completed.

This year Guilford alumni met in Charlotte, Siler City, Yadkinville, Greensboro, High Point, Raleigh, Winston-Salem, Goldsboro, Woodland-Murfreesboro, Wilmington, Mt. Airy, Chapel Hill, Asheboro, and Burlington.

Condensed reports of as many meetings as our deadline date permits are given here.

BURLINGTON-GRAHAM

The Burlington-Graham chapter meeting was held March 7 at Bethany Presbyterian Church, with a large and enthusiastic group present. Elizabeth (Mrs. Harvey) Newlin '33 and Mrs. John (Virginia Fuquay) Bowers '41 relinquished the reins of leadership to Blanche Stafford (Mrs. Clyde) Blackwelder '31, president; Marvin Carruthers '56, vice-president; and Mrs. Rachel M. Hall, '40, secretary-treasurer. Present from the college at the meeting were Dr. Algie I. Newlin, Dr. Harvey Ljung, Miss N. Era Lasley, Charles Hendriks, and Gene S. Key. Carol McBane, a Guilford student from Snow Camp who was recently elected president of the college Women's Student Government, attended the meeting with her parents, T. E. and Edna Been McBane ('24 and '26).

RALEIGH

Nell S. Stinson '28, was re-elected president of the Raleigh chapter at the annual meeting of the group held March 14 at the S&W cafeteria in Raleigh. Tom Jones '47 was elected vice-president of the group at the well-attended meeting. Surprises provided by Nell Stinson delighted the group as favors were distributed and gifts were given to those holding certain numbers.

A quartet from Needham-Broughton High School in Raleigh thrilled the Guilfordians with their version of "Hail Dear Old Guilford" and several other numbers.

The group discussed ways of being of service to their Alma Mater, and it was decided to consider the possibility of having a fall alumni meeting this year to encourage alumni interest.

Attending from the college this year were Dr. Milner, Dr. Philip Furnas, and Gene S. Key. Dr. Furnas pleased the group with his observations about some of the well known "old timers" yet on the Guilford faculty.

HIGH POINT

The High Point Meeting was well attended despite inclement weather. Again this year the meeting was held at the beautiful new High Point Friends Meeting House, and an enthusiastic group elected Dr. Eugene Terrell '49, president, and Edward Post '51, secretary, for the coming year.

J. E. Beamon '29, president, Ketehel Adams '56, vice-president, and Evelyn Pearson (Mrs. Charles) Blair '42, secretary, are the outgoing leaders. In attendance at the meeting were three members of the college board of trustees, Joseph J. Cox, Horace Haworth, and Eunice Parker.

CHAPEL HILL

The Chapel Hill meeting was held in Abernathy Hall after the group had enjoyed dinner earlier at the Carolina Inn. Frances Osborne (Mrs. James) Gust '29, was elected chairman of the chapter.

The meeting was held in enjoyable, roundtable fashion with Charles Hendriks, David Parsons, Dr. Eva Campbell, and Gene Key in attendance from the college. Recent graduates will be pleased to know that Mildred Marlette, faculty member on leave, attended the meeting. Many of Dr. Campbell's "boys", or former pre-medical students, came to greet her at the meeting.

GOLDSBORO

The Goldsboro Meeting was the traditional, enthusiastic occasion always experienced when Guilfordians get together with such stalwarts as Elton Warrieck, Sr. '27 and Lubey Casey '20 to enjoy that famous Goldsboro barbecue. Leslie E. Warrieck, Jr. '54, outgoing chairman, announced that the group is making possible a scholarship for a Goldsboro student for the 1958-59 academic year. Elected officers for 1958-59 were Dale (Mrs. R. E.) Futtrell Williams '28, chairman; and Esther (Mrs. W. M.) Cox Irby '34, secretary-treasurer.

The Guilford College delegation included Dr. Milner, Dr. Grady Love, Charles Hendriks, Dr. Harvey Ljung, and Gene Key. Special guests included Benjamin Baker '51, from Chapel Hill; and Mr. and Mrs. (Marjorie Pate '51) Hoyt Hinshaw '50, also from Guilford College.

With John Clark in Bremerhaven, Germany

I came to Europe on vacation in July, 1952; came across on the "Arosa Kulm," which had been chartered by a student organization. Pete Moore was on this sailing also. I spent July and August traveling in France and Germany, and in September began teaching history for the University of Maryland at the Army Education Center at Wurzburg. I taught with the University of Maryland for one year in Wurzburg, Germany; Tripoli, Libya, in North Africa; and Asmara, Eritrea, in Ethiopia.

I left Asmara in early June, and flew back to Germany and then over to England for a holiday. I had been offered the job as Port Education Adviser at Bremerhaven. I continued my vacation in the West Country of England until the last of July, when it was time for me to report for work on my new job. I have been the Port Education Adviser ever since. We have a large Education Program in which we try to cater to everyone's needs, ranging from college level down to intermediate.

There are the University of Maryland program, High School-level group study classes, intermediate-level group study classes and German language conversation classes. Sometimes as many as 15 classes are offered during a term. A term is eight weeks, and all classes meet twice a week; the group study classes for 1½ hours and the University of Maryland classes for 3 hours. We operate a U.S.A.F.I. testing and registration center, as a part of our education program, and testing and advising is a large part of our work.

I've been home twice since I've been in Bremerhaven; in the Fall of 1955 and last Christmas. The great disadvantage of working overseas is that you are so far away from your family and friends; only home for a visit once every two years; and as a result of my working overseas, I have never been able to attend a "Guilford Homecoming" since I was graduated.

But then there is an advantage also to my working overseas. Educational opportunity is a large morale factor to our service men; I have the opportunity to travel and, of course, pursue my study in European History. All in all, I like my work, I like working with the Military, and I like living in Europe.

Bremerhaven is a city of 125,000 population and a large North Sea port. Several passenger ship lines call here, including the United States and the America. The city is the largest fishing port on the continent. There is good train service from here to all parts of Europe. The city is very proud of its City Opera, one of the finest houses and stages in North Germany. The Opera Season lasts 8 months, with a program each night; usually 15 to 20 different operas, or operettas

The Germans have a saying, "Die Welt ist ein Dorf," (The World is a Village), and it surely proved true when three years ago a young soldier named James Armstrong came into my office to be interviewed in regard to teaching an off-duty study class in the evenings at the Educational Center. I discovered that Jimmy had entered Guilford the year I had graduated, and had just graduated himself before coming overseas to be assigned to the Port of Bremerhaven. Jimmy taught high school level mathematics and English for twelve months in our Education Center.

Five o'clock coffee is a tradition among the North German people, and it furnishes me with an opportunity to visit German friends. Above are the Thieles, the most artistically renowned family in Bremerhaven. From the left, Herr Gustav Thiele, the sculptor of the family, and Frau Greta Thiele and her husband, Herr Georg Thiele, both painters. Their home museum and romantic gardens, with sculpture and fountains, is famous throughout North Germany.

are given during a season, and I go two or three times a month. Our Education center is located on the outer edge of the city at the American Base. We share a building with the Port Chaplain. Our facilities include: office of the Education Adviser, Education Center outer office, testing room, library, and six classrooms. The rooms are well-appointed, well-lighted, and well-equipped.

Norman Fox is Honored

Dr. Norman A. Fox '51 was named OUTSTANDING YOUNG MAN OF THE YEAR for the Guilford College area in a ceremony March 10. This award was presented by the local Jaycees "for his conscientious devotion and service to his club, his profession, and community."

Dr. Fox returned to his home town, Guilford College, in January 1957 and began the practice of medicine after having completed a residency in general practice at University Hospital, Ann Arbor, Michigan. He joined the Guilford College Jaycees and was elected secretary the same year. He has served on various projects, including the "Shot" party to have Jaycees and their wives obtain the Salk vaccine, and the Guilford College-Elon football game.

He is a member of the staff of L. Richardson Memorial Hospital, Wesley Long Hospital and Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital. He is also a member of the American Medical Association, the Guilford County Medical Society and the American Academy of General Practice.

A Letter of Appreciation... Ed Bowman '51

As the citizen of the modern world makes his way through life, there is a tendency for him to align himself with great institutions in the fields of business, industry, education, religion and politics.

Many institutions in each of these categories are spectacular in their greatness, but each must look to the individual for its character and integrity!

It is my purpose here to note some of the ways in which Guilford College is building character and integrity. Guilford is small in size, but large in her sense of responsibility to her students. With great appreciation, I recall the awakening of my own intellectual processes through study in the "core" curriculum. One of mankind's great weaknesses is his aversion to intellectual labor. Guilford's curriculum, through its pattern of core curriculum courses, gives the individual valuable knowledge of the world, its peoples and their ideas, and its sciences. These courses are skillfully blended with courses from his major field of study, and he engages in useful, stimulating study that he might otherwise miss.

Also, the student at Guilford College learns how to "get along" with people through close contact with other students and with members of the faculty. Some interesting business statistics published recently revealed that three-fourths of the promotions made during a given period were awarded on the following qualifications, in this order: (1) ability to deal with people (2) ability to get the job done. This to me is an eloquent argument for Guilford's type of training.

Having been an economics major at Guilford, I became constantly more grateful for the able leadership of Dr. Curt Victorius and his associates in the Economics and Business Department. Their leadership and their fundamental knowledge of the training needed by young men and women who plan to enter business life are remarkable. I, along with many other former students, am forever in their debt.

Their courses are not designed to develop authorities on particular subjects, but rather to teach students to understand the basic processes of business: production, marketing, finance, and accounting.

This basic teaching, along with the enlightenment of the core courses, lays the groundwork for a pursuit of higher education or a successful career in the business world. The individual, through Guilford's program, experiences the satisfaction of scholastic exploration, and receives an education which makes it possible for him, with study and hard work, to advance in the field of endeavor he chooses.

A Significant Movement

By DR. FRANCIS C. ANSCOMBE

"One of the most significant movements among the Quakers of North Carolina since the Great Revivals of the eighteen-eighties," so said one of the members present at a conference concerning Quaker education held recently at High Point.

The remarks were made in the discussion which followed a presentation by President Clyde A. Milner of the plan now functioning to grant the degree of Master of Arts to ministerial candidates and leaders who complete a year of graduate study in the Department of Religion at Guilford College.

Up to the present, the Society of Friends has not required special scholastic preparation for its ministers. The statement of George Fox that "a knowledge of Latin and Greek did not make a minister," has been over-emphasized, and for more than a century education was discounted among Southern Friends. This, of course, was due in part to the harshness of frontier life, which did not permit advanced education.

For almost half a century after Edmundson and Fox established Quakerism in the colony, the Friends were the only organized religious body, but, as one result of the Colonial Wars (in which Friends would not participate) and the Methodist revivals, Quakerism lapsed into Quietism. Some authorities say this period lasted for a century and a quarter. The Friends became a "peculiar people," odd in dress, speech, manner of worship, aloofness from public sports and politics, and as opponents of chattel slavery. Then the mass migration to the Old North West stripped many Quaker communities bare, as they fled from the "Impending Crisis."

During this long period, the ministry among Friends was of a mystical nature—the messages concerned "the Light Within," "the Seed Within," and "the Indwelling Christ." Some authorities question whether the Scriptures were ever read in meeting, and whether "the Gospel was preached." Friends spoke of "convincement," but not of "conversion."

By the time of the conclusion of the Civil War, Quakerism had become almost extinct. It was restored by the Great Revival which commenced in other Yearly Meetings but which spread to this. Among the great evangelists were Marry Moon and Allen Jay. The Revival changed the character of the meeting. Instead of sitting in silence there was forceful preaching, with appeals for decisions for Christ; singing became spontaneous and music soon followed. The young Friends wanted special services, and evening services came into existence.

In many places the revivalists were young men who had been recently converted and called to preach. Many had no Quaker background, but they preached the Gospel, and thousands became converted and wanted Christian fellowship and a church home. Many persons reared upon the frontier knew nothing and cared nothing about historic Quakerism. The revivalists were encouraged to remain, and so the pastoral system came into existence.

Some of these young pastors had no advanced education, but they were able to meet the needs of people in rural areas who, because of the war and the Reconstruction Era, had little opportunities to acquire much learning.

These revivalists and pastors performed a necessary task, and they received very meager compensation.

Times have changed. North Carolina now has a fine educational system: it is no longer "the Rip Van Winkle" state. There is a settled conviction among Friends that we owe it to those who are called to the ministry to prepare them as best we can.

The way has now been opened for Guilford College to offer a series of studies which will give future leaders some better equipment for their difficult task. Guilford College now has three fully qualified instructors in the Department of Religion; the undertaking is sure of financial support; in the near future a new building will be devoted to this purpose; and some students are already enrolled for the course.

The notion that, because George Fox did not have a college education, a preacher today does not need one is fallacious. Fox was an unusual man; he suited his age. A woman told John Wesley that the Lord did not need his learning and he replied: "That is true, and He also does not need your ignorance."

A new day is dawning for North Carolina Yearly Meeting, and if the members will become aware of the significance of this new step, then we can be assured of a better ministry and leadership.

Give and Gain

The "Guilford College Life Income Plan"

Now, you can make a capital contribution to Guilford College, write off on your tax return a percentage of the gift roughly equivalent to the years of your age, and still receive an income as though the gift were a regular investment. This is the "Guilford College Life Income Plan."

It works this way: You place in the hands of the College money or property such as stocks that may have appreciated. The Trustees invest your gift along with other Endowment Funds. The average net income from the pooled investments is returned to you, or to someone you designate, for life. If the property or stocks have appreciated, there is no capital gains tax on the appreciation. Guilford retains the principal as a Permanent Endowment Fund which may bear your name or that of anyone you choose.

You may write off for tax purposes your gift-portion, save capital gains tax and lower your tax bracket. The College will have an assured bequest, and you will have a protected income from a managed trust, for life.

For further information and details please write to David H. Parsons, Jr., Business Manager, Guilford College, North Carolina.

Cold, Brother, Cold

G. Kellock "Kip" Hale III '55 recently visited the campus for the first time since he joined the United States Air Force in 1954.

Kip has served in sub-zero climates during most of his military career, as a member of the Airways and Air Communications section in Labrador and on Baffin Island in the Arctic.

He says that the temperature averaged thirty degrees below zero at the Baffin Island base, used as a supply depot and radar station. He added that, for practical purposes, wind velocity was added to sub-zero reading as a guide. For instance, with a wind of 120 miles per hour, and a temperature of minus forty degrees, it was not feasible to venture from quarters.

Kip also told of "White-outs", a common phenomenon. High wind causes swirling snow to make sight of objects impossible, even at short distances. For instance, he related that a jeep fifteen feet away from the front of his barracks could not be seen on one occasion. "A person could very easily become lost and could freeze to death within a few feet of the barracks," he added.

Living Endowment Chairman Expresses Appreciation

Howard Cannon

In commenting on the response to a letter sent to alumni by Howard Cannon '31, vice-president of the Guilford Alumni Association and chairman of the Living Endowment, Howard made this statement, "I wish to thank each of you who responded to my request for your help in meeting our Living Endowment goal for 1957-1958. By comparative standards, the results were very gratifying. To those of you who have not yet made your contribution, I can only say that your help is needed also. It is my hope that I may be able to be in touch with you again soon, and I also look forward to seeing as many of you as possible at our alumni festivities during graduation week-end. Remember, we still need your help to meet our goal of $10,000.00 for Living Endowment!"

First Choice of Many Students

In a recent survey of the Greensboro Senior High School graduating class, Guilford ranked fourth in colleges preferred by students continuing their education. Only the larger colleges of the state—WC, UNC, State, ranked over Guilford.

Charles Hendricks, Director of Student Promotion, was pleased to hear the report. Charlie remarked, "It is pleasing to hear that Guilford is popular with local students."

97 Graduates Join Alumni Ranks

At Guilford's 1958 Commencement Exercises, colorful with the traditional procession of robed and mortar-boarded graduates, diplomas were awarded to the largest class in the college's history.

The 97 graduating seniors heard Undersecretary of Commerce Walter Williams give a formula for successful living which, in his words, "is not accumulating a lot of money or a lot of power." The ability to get along with people and to meet "a lot of bumps" were among ingredients in his formula for success.

The appearance of Mr. Williams as speaker for the Commencement Exercises was particularly appropriate for this Quaker-founded institution, because his grandmother, Miriam Ann Wilson, attended New Garden Boarding School 100 years ago.

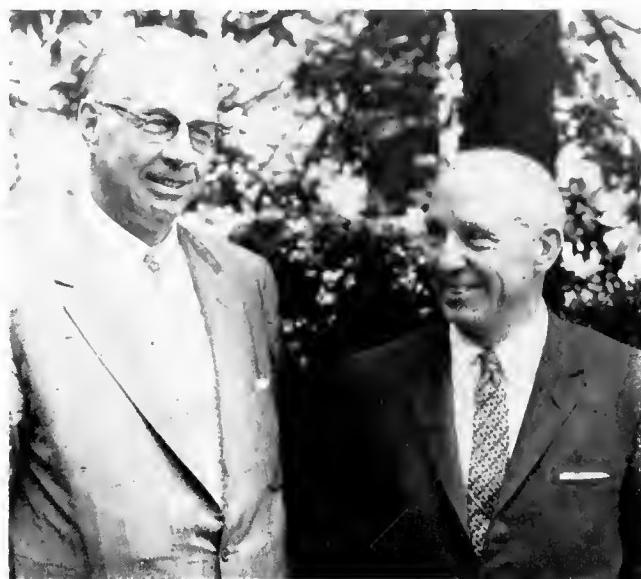

Mr. Williams told the seniors that success lies in having and holding all through life a set of ideals which avoids extremes, a sense of freedom, and a will to work and work hard.

Other principal participants in the program were President Milner, who conferred the degrees, and trustees' president, Robert H. Frazier, who introduced the speaker. Dr. Frank P. Graham, United Nations mediator, was to have addressed the class, but was unable to attend because of illness.

Quaker Collection Receives Papers

Guilford College's Quaker Collection has received a number of extremely old and valuable documents as a gift from Susanna Smedley of Wawa, Pennsylvania. A lifetime member of the Society of Friends, the donor has long been interested in Quaker history and institutions.

The documents consist of annual epistles from Yearly Meetings held in London and in Philadelphia during the late 18th and early 19th centuries. Included in the London papers are epistles for the years 1772, 1773, 1775, 1788, 1791, 1799, 1801, 1802, 1804, 1816, 1824, and 1827. The Philadelphia papers record the minutes of the Philadelphia Yearly Meeting for the years 1776, 1778, 1812, 1821, 1839, and 1862.

The recently received documents are valuable additions to the Guilford College Quaker Collection, which is considered one of the outstanding collections of its kind in the world. In addition to the papers recently received, the collection includes record books, drawings and Quaker lore as well as minutes of Quarterly, Monthly and Yearly Meetings in North Carolina from 1680. In many cases these minutes are continuous to the present date.

In her accompanying letter, Susanna Smedley noted that the documents she has contributed to the College were collected between 1772 and 1862 by her grandfather, great grandfather and great, great grandfather, all of whom were named William Smedley. In her childhood she lived on land received by her family from William Penn in 1684. A direct descendant of the family, William Smedley V. attended Guilford and was graduated in 1953.

50-Year Group Adopts Project

In business session on Alumni Day, the distinguished 50-Year Group elected as president Clifford Frazier '07. The group also formally adopted as a project the establishment of a $200,000 Memorial Professorship in honor of Dr. Raymond Binford, former President of the College.

The resolution forwarded by the 50 Year Group to college authorities follows:

To the President and the Trustees of Guilford College:

As an expression of our appreciation of Guilford College, the Fifty-Year Group of Alumni wishes to sponsor a Memorial Professorship in honor of Dr. Raymond Binford, devoted scholar, educator, religious leader, and former President of the College.

The final sum envisaged for this endowment is two hundred thousand dollars. We desire, however, that all contributions begin to serve at once, in that interest on them be available for use in the area designated for the completed endowment.

While regarding this as the special project for our own group, we realize that other friends of Dr. Binford will doubtless wish to contribute to a memorial for him, and we wish them to do so. Gifts of any size may be made to the Binford Memorial Professorship and sent directly to the office of the President of the College.

Much thought has been given to the area of work for this Professorship. Remembering Dr. Binford's concern that scientific truth contribute not only to practical human welfare but also to the spiritual appreciation and enjoyment of life, we feel that it is appropriate for this professorship to be used to provide, as a part of the Core Curriculum, such functioning knowledge of the scientific bases of physical and mental health as will enable the student to appreciate the significance of these fundamentals, and to make practical use of them in the intelligent direction of his own life and the maintenance of all phases of his personal health.

APPROVED, May 31, 1958, by the business meeting of the Fifty-Year Group of Alumni, Clifford Frazier presiding.

Dr. Ada M. Field 1898, whose vision helped to inspire this project, emphasized that support for, and contributions toward, the Binford Memorial Professorship will be welcomed from all alumni and friends of Guilford College, as well as from members of the 50-Year Group.

Mrs. Nellie Moon Taylor Receives 1958 Distinguished Alumni Award

Mrs. Nellie Moon Taylor '82, who received the 1958 Distinguished Alumni Award, is a woman of many graces and accomplishments.

Following are the remarks made by Ernestine C. Milner at the Alumni Banquet as she presented the award to Luna Taylor Bradshaw '24 for her mother:

"Eighty years ago, a girl whose brown eyes sparkled with spirit, intelligence and humor took a boat at Cincinnati for Charleston, West Virginia; from there she rode by train to Greensboro. At twelve years of age, Nellie Moon enrolled in New Garden Boarding School. She has said that her first year at the School was the most important in her educational life. She studied English, arithmetic and grammar, the latter under Mary E. Davis. Lewis Lyndon and Mary Mendenhall Hobbs also taught her, and with them she formed lasting friendships. Her frequent visits to the College have demonstrated her loyalty to her Alma Mater—she has said she loves everything about Guilford College.

"Her mother, an eloquent Quaker preacher, accompanied by Nellie, went to Danbury to conduct an evangelistic meeting. There they met J. Spotswood Taylor, who later married Nellie. They had nine children—five boys and four girls; six of them attended Guilford College, four graduating. Had there been the award, Mother of the Year, when Nellie Moon Taylor was rearing her distinguished family, she would certainly have been a successful candidate.

"Nellie was greatly influenced by her mother's religious fervor, becoming an ardent and concerned member of the Society of Friends. Affiliated with New Garden Meeting, she seldom missed a session of North Carolina Yearly Meeting. Her last absence occurred when she was a representative at the World Conference of Friends in England in 1952. A friend, looking at this frail little woman, asked her if she did not consider the trip precarious. With a humorous twinkle in her eye, she replied, 'No. If anything happens to me I shall be among Friends.'

"Several years ago at the dedication of the hospital in Stokes County, Nellie Moon Taylor was acclaimed 'The First Lady of Stokes County,' an indication of her contribution to the life of her community.

"Luna, we send this award to your mother, Nellie Moon Taylor, with our love, recognizing her as a most loyal alumna, a dedicated Friend, an excellent mother and a citizen who has rendered outstanding service to her community."

Baccalaureate Service

A beautiful morning of clear skies and warm sun was the setting for the Baccalaureate Service of Guilford's 121st Commencement on Sunday, June 1.

Dr. Kenneth I. Brown of St. Louis, Mo., Executive Director of the Danforth Foundation, selected as his subject the question, "How Many Loaves Have You?" He urged the seniors to dedicate themselves to service without concern for fame, honor or wealth.

He asked the seniors to take an inventory of their material, intellectual and spiritual assets and to use those assets unselfishly, as did the youth in the Biblical miracle of the loaves and fishes.

Dr. Brown was introduced by J. Floyd Moore, a Danforth Associate and Associate Professor of Religion and Biblical Literature at Guilford. More than 600 guests filled the amphitheater set in the central campus. Sacred numbers by the A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Carl C. Baumbach, added to the reverent atmosphere of the occasion.

Summer School

A total of 379 students are enrolled for summer school at Guilford College for the current summer session. Of the total, 184 are taking courses at the Guilford College campus and 195 are enrolled with the Greensboro Division. Summer school began June 5 and will end August 2.

On the Quaker Sports Front

By DOUGLAS KERR

The hopes of Quaker football fans during the 1958 season will be built around twenty-nine returning players from last year's squad, with fourteen of this number being lettermen.

Last year's squad was composed mostly of freshmen and sophomores, and these boys are returning with experience which should help the Quakers in their attempt to climb the conference ladder.

Only six Quaker grid stars were lost by graduation. Gone from last year's squad are All-Conference guard Ralph Nelson; centers Ben Rich (voted "The Best Hustler" of the Quakers for the past two years) and Joe Satterfield; backs Don Deaton and Jack Crenshaw; and end Bob Newton.

At end the Quakers appear to be in good shape. Returning will be Jim Stutts, who was voted Guilford's outstanding undergraduate athlete of 1957. Stutts, a 190-pound sophomore, received honorable mention for All Conference honors as a freshman. Bob Holloway, a 170-pound junior, will team with Stutts. Joe Rudderow, a converted halfback, and Morris Jester will give the Quakers added strength at the end position.

Tackles returning to bolster the forward wall will be Roy Boyles, Wayne Henley, Bill Jones and Ken Deans. All these are lettermen and have unusual speed for tackles.

The guard position has been one of the strongest positions for years at Guilford College, and the return of lettermen Larry Chesson, a candidate for All-Conference, and Carl Opauski give Coach Appenzeller reason for optimism. Others who will be expected to get field duty at the guard positions are Fred Barringer, Larry Younts and Neil Jones.

The vacancy at center, created by the graduation of Ben Rich and Joe Satterfield, will be filled by Daryl Allen, a 205-pound senior. Backing Allen will be another converted halfback, Gwynne Hupfer.

At quarterback the Quakers will be in fine shape. Bill Huber, 185-pound sophomore, will return to handle this vital spot. Several outstanding candidates return to challenge Huber for the starting birth, as Brodie Baker, Jack Williams, and Hal James will all be tough competition.

The fullback spot will be filled by either Lester Parker or Jack Holley. Parker received honorable mention for All-Conference honors last year. Others who will be on hand to fill the fullback position are Bob Smith and Sid Teachy.

Elton Warrick '26 and Coach Herb Appenzeller at Alumni Banquet. Warrick was presented the permanent "Elton Warrick Most Valuable Player Trophy" which will honor an outstanding football player each year. The trophy will remain in the college trophy room.

While quarterback and fullback posts look stronger than in several seasons, there is concern at the half-back position. However, Appenzeller has All-Conference candidate John Meroney returning for his junior year. Meroney, the 170-pound "Red Head," has received the "Best Tackling Award" for the past two seasons. Teaming with Meroney will be Jim Simpson, who played high school football with him at Arlington, Va. Simpson started at Quarterback, but was shifted in the spring to halfback and provides one of the major surprises in the Quaker camp.

The Quakers will have more experience this season than they have had in the past. The success of the team will depend on the play of many sophomores, but with this nucleus Guilford could well be on the road to being one of the powers in the North State Conference.

Alumni Banquet Draws Large Number of Guests

After a day of numerous and varied activities, some 350 alumni attended the annual Alumni Banquet in Founders Hall. The banquet climaxed "one of the most successful Alumni Days" in the history of the college. Bob Poole '37, popular radio announcer of Station WBIG in Greensboro, was master of ceremonies at the banquet for the second year.

Results of heavy voting by alumni were announced by the Elections Committee. Ernie Shore '14 of Winston-Salem and sheriff of Forsyth County was returned to office as President of the Alumni Association after a close race with John Pipkin '54.

Other officers elected were Howard Cannon '31 of Guilford College, vice-president; Charles F. Milner '33 of Chapel Hill, Sarah Richardson Haworth '17 of High Point, Grace Taylor Rodenbough '17 of Walnut Cove, and Nell Stinson '28 of Raleigh, Executive Committee. Grace Taylor Rodenbough, Tecy Beamon Griffin '13 of Troy, and Charles C. Hendricks '40 of Guilford College were elected to serve on the Alumni Foundation, and Paul C. Edgerton '13 of Greensboro was made Trustee of the Loan Fund.

The presentation of awards highlighted the banquet. Frank Allen '33 of Penn's Grove, N. J., presented the special alumni awards.

The Senior Athletic Award was given to Don Hemrick of Winston-Salem, and the Undergraduate Athletic Award to James Stutts of High Point. Wade Macey of Mount Airy, treasurer of the rising junior class, was given the Alumni Achievement Award.

Frank Allen '33 presents Key Senior award to Rachel Ruth Richardson.

Rachel Richardson of High Point, outstanding senior and president of the Women's Student Government, was named Key Senior.

Coach Herb Appenzeller presented to Elton Warrick '26 the permanent "Elton Warrick Most Valuable Player Trophy" which will honor an outstanding football player each year. The trophy will remain in the college trophy room.

The Distinguished Alumni Award was presented by Ernestine C. Milner to Luna Taylor Bradshaw '24 for her mother, Nellie Moon Taylor of Danbury. Mrs. Taylor, who is 92 years old, entered Guilford College at the age of 12, in 1878, when Guilford was still New Garden Boarding School.

MEMORIAL SUNDIAL IS PRESENTED TO COLLEGE

In special ceremonies on Alumni Day, N. Era Lasley, College Registrar, presented a sundial to the college. The sundial is located in the triangle of grass between the library and King Hall, and was made possible by a trust fund set up by Jesse Copeland of Rich Square, who attended New Garden Boarding School from 1880 to 1882.

Several years after Copeland left New Garden, he expressed a desire to do something to preserve the memory of the boardwalk which once ran from Founders Hall to old King Hall, then located where the library stands. He set up a trust fund to be used in some way to commemorate the old walk. Through the years other persons made contributions to the fund, which was left in the care of Miss Annie Petty of Greensboro.

In discussing what should be done, Miss Petty suggested that a sundial be established somewhere near the site of the old boardwalk.

Heading the committee appointed to carry out the wish of Miss Petty was Miss Lasley. Other committee members were Dr. Marjorie Williams, Dr. Garness Purdom, Walter Coble, and David Parsons.

In presenting the sundial to Dr. Milner Miss Lasley said, "May it be a link which binds the past to the future."

President Milner accepted the gift for the college with special appreciation "to all those living and to all those who have joined the invisible host, whose contributions have created this permanent symbol of their loyalty."

Bob Poole '37 and President Milner in a happy moment.

Bob Poole Retires "Shovel"

In the capable performance of his duties as master of ceremonies for the annual Alumni Banquet, J. Robert "Bob" Poole '37 recalled the days when he was a student at Guilford College. Speaking directly to President Milner, he noted that Milner's encouragement had made it possible for him to attend Guilford. Then in a humorous vein, Poole remarked that many of his college hours were spent in company with a shovel, with which he almost singlehandedly built a road.

At the end of his reminiscences, Poole surprised Dr. Milner, and the entire group as well, by presenting to the college a check for $1,000. He termed it an expression of appreciation for the many benefits he had received as a student at Guilford. Bob voiced a desire that this money should be applied to the Chapel-Auditorium-Religious Education Building, and specifically to the purchase of audio-recording equipment for the master control booth which will serve the stage of the new building. He said, "My profession as a radio announcer leads me to hope that with this equipment many of the fine cultural expressions of Guilford College may be preserved for all time." Dr. Milner termed the gift one of the most sincere and generous gestures in his memory and indicated that he felt the designation was unusually appropriate.

Dr. and Mrs. Raiford Entertain Class of '33

The Silver Anniversary Group, the class of '33, was entertained on Alumni Day by Dr. and Mrs. Morgan Raiford '33. Dr. and Mrs. Raiford were host to thirty of his classmates at a special luncheon held at Harolds Restaurant in Friendly Shopping Center near Greensboro.

Melvin Lynn, chairman of the group spoke for the class in presenting a piece of luggage to David Parsons, college business manager, in recognition of his years of service to the college.

The group has a current project calling for the furnishing of two rooms in the college infirmary in memory of Dr. Carl W. Jones, Dr. David West, and Dr. Robert Mears, deceased classmates. Plans call for the raising of $5,000.00 to complete this project.

Mrs. David Caldwell, "King" David Caldwell, Dr. Algie I. Newlin. Dr. Newlin made presentation of engraved silver tray to David Caldwell in recognition of 33 years of service to Guilfordians in Founders Hall Dining Room.

"King" David is Honored

"David Caldwell, Thirty-Three Years Service To Guilford College" reads the engraved silver tray presented to "King" David Caldwell in recognition of his devoted service in Founders Hall Dining Room. The tray was presented to "King" David by Dr. Algie I. Newlin at the Alumni Day luncheon.

In presenting the tray, Dr. Newlin recalled some of the highlights of "King" David's career from 1916 to this past year when failing health forced the "King" of Founders Dining Hall into retirement.

During his cooking days, the "King" was known for his quiet and friendly way and for his excellent cooking.

Alumni Day Program

More than 500 alumni registered at the Student Union to begin one of the most outstanding Alumni Days in the history of the college. Activities of the day included a luncheon at Founders Hall, after which thirteen classes held reunions; presentation of a sundial; tea at Virginia Ragsdale Alumni House; and meetings of special reunion groups of past campus leaders. The annual Alumni Day Banquet climaxed the day's activities.

Registration scene shows Lillian Burrow '61, Polly Key, Jo Cook '60 and Mrs. Mattie Ward, Alumni Office Secretary, greeting alumni Royce Angel '57 (in foreground), Marie Oreis Andrew '49 and James Andrew '48.

She became a member of the home economics faculty at Guilford College and was college dietitian during 1935-1936. Later, she joined the Greensboro school system and was instrumental in the organization of Greensboro Public School cafeterias.

Her husband, who is the brother of President Milner, is Director of the University of North Carolina Extension Division.

Mrs. Crevasse hopes to get an autographed picture of the immortal Tom Zachary '21, who pitched to Ruth the ball he hit for the famous 60th home run. Zachary now resides in Graham, N. C. She wants to hang Zachary's picture alongside that of Ruth.

In the April issue of N. C. Education a short article "Pupil Taught" appeared, and another short article "Hands on My Shoulder" has been accepted to appear later. In addition to her articles, two of Geneva's poems have been accepted for publication in the poetry magazine, Scimitar and Song.

Miss Jean Cochran, Spirit of Augusta's Library System

One of the finest civic selling points of Augusta, Ga., is its library system—judged by authorities to be second to none in cities of its size throughout the nation. And the person who deserves most credit for the fine library set-up is the Guilfordian who serves as director, Miss Jean Dorothy Cochran, '32.

Miss Cochran came to the library in 1949 at a time when the institution itself and the spirits of those interested in its progress needed a lift. She has done a fine job in elevating both.

As an illustration of how the library has expanded since Miss Cochran became director, a total of 492,000 books were borrowed in 1957 as compared with only 62,000 borrowed in 1948.

A Pennsylvanian by birth, Miss Cochran came South with her family immediately following graduation from high school. They made their home in Kernersville, North Carolina.

After a brief period of teaching school, she decided to become a librarian and took graduate work in preparation for this vocation. Miss Cochran joined the Augusta library staff after serving in posts in Lexington, N. C., and Sumter, S. C.

One of Miss Cochran's chief aims has been to make the library a community center for the appreciation of music, educational and cultural motion pictures and other types of cultural activities.

Among the adult education programs initiated by Miss Cochran are several Great Book Clubs and a popular summer feature known as "Music in the Garden."

Listed among the activities she has established are a bookmobile service which takes library service all over the city and county; a record library for owners of "Hi-Fi's" and a steadily expanding audio-visual equipment service. One of the things Miss Cochran has been particularly interested in is specialized service to industries needing technical information.

Her efforts to improve the library system in Augusta have won nationwide recognition for Miss Cochran. She presented, on invitation, plans for a new Augusta Library at the annual 1957 conference of the American Library Association at Kansas City. As a result, Miss Cochran has been nominated for chairman-elect of the Building Equipment Section of the Public Library Division of the organization. She also is a member of the National Friends of the Library Committee of the American Library Association.

Blair To Emcee Annual Alumni Banquet

Ed "Tubby" Blair, '32, much sought after speaker for all occasions, has accepted an invitation to Emcee the annual Alumni Banquet on Saturday, May 30. He is at present serving as Principal of Vanceboro public schools, Vanceboro, N. C.

Ed, known affectionately as "Tubby," has the reputation of being able to "make you laugh or cry." He is equally at home as an after-dinner speaker, or in giving inspirational lectures at Masonic functions. As a student, he was popular on Guilford campus, having been a member of the football team and the dramatics club, and business manager of the "Guilfordian" and "Quaker."

As though preparing for the future, Ed Blair was a star member of the debating team during his four Guilford years, and won the college oratory prize in 1930.

Ed's dedication to his community and his fellow man is attested to by the fact that he is a past president of Rotary, is on the Salvation Army advisory board and the Boy Scouts advisory board, is a thirty-third degree Mason, a past president of his district Principals' NCEA organization, and a Sunday School teacher; he has served as a lay speaker in churches of various denominations. Ed received his MA degree from East Carolina College in 1950.

A brother of William "Bill" Blair, '24, Ed and Mrs. Blair have two children, Sara Jo, 20; and William, 17.

Era Lasley, '13, will serve as hospitality chairman, and Dr. Marjorie Williams, '21, College Union Director, is in charge of refreshments for registrants at the College Union during the registration period.

Charles Hendricks, '40, will serve in his traditional role as director of the reunion luncheon and banquet. Ruth N. Coble, '37, will serve as chairman of hospitality at the Alumni House, including the 4:00 p.m. tea, and Mattie Ward, Alumni Office Secretary, will be in charge of registrations. The Alumni Day Committee is composed of the following, appointed by President Ernie Shore, '14: Ruth Newlin Coble, '37; Sarah Richardson Haworth, '17; Charles Hendricks, '40; and Dr. Marjorie Williams, '21. The nominating committee is N. Era Lasley, '13; Eleanor Grimsley Jamieson, '32; and Joseph J. Cox, '28.

Daryl Kent Appointed Reunion Chairman

Dr. E. Daryl Kent, '36, Associate Professor of Religion and Philosophy, has been appointed Chairman of class reunions for 1959. He is at present contacting class leaders in the interest of the most successful reunions ever. Reservations are being accepted now for the Alumni Reunion Luncheon, the Alumni Banquet, and for lodging in English Hall. Dr. Kent reports that arrangements have been made for accommodations at the very reasonable rate of $1.00 per night per person; and that meals in Founders Hall will be at regular student rates. Babysitting services will be available for those who wish to attend the reunion programs and the banquet.

Message From Gene Key

It is my pleasant duty to convey to you warm greetings, along with a sincere invitation from the administration, the faculty, your class chairman, and the Executive Committee of your Alumni Association for you to be with us for the events of Alumni Day, May 30, 1959, and for graduation exercises Sunday, May 31, and Monday, June 1. Special invitations go to members of the reunion classes, noted elsewhere, but we look forward also to seeing those of you not in reunion classes.

Details of the events are contained in this issue of the "Journal," and more complete details will be forthcoming within the next few days via other mailings. Guilford is growing and developing in many ways. The campus has never been so beautiful, and the buildings are undergoing constant improvement. Many of you have not seen the College Union and beautiful English Hall; nor the enlarged, modernized parlor, infirmary, kitchen, and dining facilities in Founders Hall. Your planning committee is preparing a meaningful, happy, experience for you and yours, but is mindful of your wish to have plenty of time for relaxed visits with old classmates, friends, and faculty members. May I handle your reservations for the luncheon, banquet, and lodging in English Hall?

Mr. and Mrs. King

King Honored At N. C. State

Edward S. King, '10, was recently honored by North Carolina State College, where he served as YMCA secretary for thirty-six years, until his retirement in 1955, with the naming of the "E. S. King Religious Center." This State College YMCA Building was erected in 1916 and expanded recently with the addition of the Danforth Chapel and other facilities for various denominations.

"Mr. YMCA," as he is known at State, spent every summer at the YMCA conference grounds at Blue Ridge from 1912 to 1923 and was helpful in keeping it going in the later years. He is known to the boys with whom he worked at State as the one to whom they could turn in any kind of trouble—for meals, tuition, or medical need. During the depression years, and in all the years since, King's administration has made thousands of dollars available to needy students — those who have wanted an education but could not make the financial grade.

While at Guilford, Edward King was a member of the class debating team for four years and served as president of the YMCA. After graduating he went into his chosen profession and worked at Y's at Auburn, Ala., at the University of South Carolina (where he met his wife, Eunice Baldwin), with the Blue Ridge program, and then at State.

Both of Edward's parents, Alice Rollins Carr and Rufus P. King, attended New Garden Boarding School.

He and his wife have two children, Eunice King Durgin, who lives in Providence, R. I., and Cyrus B. King.

Warren Watkins Praises Education At Guilford

Since I left Guilford College in June, 1958, I have become associated with the J. M. Mathes Company, Incorporated, one of North Carolina's larger wholesale firms which operates warehouses in Durham, Fayetteville, Burlington and Goldsboro, and the Tobacco Leaf Publishing Company which publishes a trade journal in the Tobacco and Tobacco Jobbing Industry. Upon leaving Guilford College I felt somewhat lacking in as much as I had virtually no hours in Economics and Business Administration, and I was destined for a job that might later require such. I found, however, that a liberal arts education is what many firms are looking for. Many manufacturers have stated to me personally that they feel that there is a shift in a new direction as to the methods of recruiting college students for their jobs. So many have related that they have had such success with those who had majors in English, History, Philosophy, and Sociology that they are beginning to look for people with these majors for jobs where it was not absolutely necessary that an engineering degree or a degree in math, for instance, was required. Of course this made me feel good.

I feel that had I majored in Economics and Business Administration I would not have to work so hard as far as my outside reading is concerned; however, I value the vast amount of information which I acquired majoring under Dr. Stafford, Dr. Lovejoy and Dr. Dinkel. Not a day has passed by since I began work that I have not profited in some way from my college major, which has afforded me a great degree of insight on many problems almost every day.

In my opinion Guilford College is a great institution. It meant a lot to me in the two short years and a summer I was there in that its attitudes reflected rich philosophies. These philosophies were realized in the pulse of every single day's life. It seemed to me quite unusual to find a place where people of so many different religious, ethnic, economic, and national backgrounds had such a close relationship, such a close meeting of minds and such warm friendships.

The beautiful garden of Gertrude Hire, '29, was featured in a recent issue of the Charlotte Observer. When Gertrude's house was built, she went against expert advice by deciding against grading away some of the rough terrain on her lot. Instead she set about to use ingenuity, patience, and a green thumb to transform the plot into a garden which has attracted widespread attention. Gertrude is shown above among her plantings.

Harry Wellons Receives Honor

Harry A. Wellons, '33, has been named Citizen of the Year by the Victoria, Va., Chamber of Commerce, and is the newly elected president of the Chamber of Commerce. He is a district supervisor of vocational agriculture for the State Department of Education. He also is president of the Victoria Parent-Teacher Association, a member of town council, president of the Glagavalin Association of Virginia, an assistant scoutmaster and a Sunday school teacher at Victoria Baptist Church.

Wellons' two oldest children, Martha and Harry Albert, graduated from Guilford. Martha, '56, is now Mrs. William Dentiste of Guilford College, N. C. Harry, better known as "Bert," '57, is a student in Medical Research at the Medical College of Virginia. Two more children, William and Nancy, are now students in Victoria High School.

Alexander (Standing)

"Ab" Alexander Is Recognized

Abner "Ab" Alexander, '52, Winston-Salem attorney, has received widespread recognition recently for his chairmanship of the successful Crime Prevention Week program held in Winston-Salem.

The Winston-Salem Exchange Club, of which Ab is a member, sponsored the program featuring an exposition at the Memorial Coliseum in that city. Over 10,000 people attended the exposition which housed exhibits from state, local, and federal law enforcement and government agencies.

The exposition was said to have been the "largest open house on crime prevention ever held in the U. S. A." and the only program with this type format ever offered in the country.

WASHBURN

HARDIN

CARR

With the coming of spring, Guilford athletes have turned their attention to baseball, tennis, track, and golf. Coach Stuart Maynard is again handling the baseball team, and Coach Bob Shoaf is mentor of the tennis team. Coach Herb Appenzeller, who recently finished a successful spring football practice, is dividing his time as coach of both the golf and tennis teams.

The coaches are remaining mum about their respective teams and hesitate to comment or to make any predictions until later in the season. Here is a preview of the teams as they stand to date.

BASEBALL — Coach Maynard reports that the baseball team will be slightly improved. "Hitting and fielding will be two improvements over last year," says Coach Maynard, "but the pitching staff still needs strengthening. Danny Carr and Tom O'Briant, with senior and junior experience, should be better, but have not shown much thus far." But Coach Maynard feels that these two boys will "come around" as the season progresses. Carr is a senior from Portland, Maine; O'Briant is a junior from Durham.

New comers to the mound staff are Charlie Little, a sophomore from Moorestown, N. J.; Jim Childress, a freshman from White Plains, who made straight "A's" last semester; Jerry Davis, a freshman from Winston-Salem; and Richard Burrows, another freshman who comes from Wallace.

GOLF — According to Appenzeller the golf team's outlook is very promising for this season, although there are only two lettermen from last year's squad which finished the season with a 7-3 record. These two golfers are Bob Byrum, a junior from Greensboro, and Gordon Brewer, also a junior, who comes from Winston-Salem.

TRACK — The 1959 track team has been working out since March 24. Only five lettermen are back from last year's squad which posted a 4-3 record.

Alumni Interest Grows And Chapters Increase

By the time of mailing of the April "Journal," twenty one area Alumni Meetings will have been attended by college faculty members during this academic year. Interest has been expressed in forming chapters in Northern Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and in the Tidewater Virginia, Fayetteville, and Asheville areas. Picnics and family outings have been planned by several groups. Space does not permit detailed accounts of spring meetings, but captioned pictures on these pages tell the story of a pleasant series of gatherings attended by Guilfordians since the January issue of the "Journal" went to press. College staff and faculty members participating in these meetings were Dr. and Mrs. Milner, Dr. Purdom, Gene Key, Charles Hendricks, Herbert Appenzeller, Stuart Maynard, Dave Morrah, David Parsons, Dr. Ljung, Walter Coble, and Carroll Feagins.

ON THE QUAKER SPORTS FRONT

Coach Appenzeller reports that the ability of the squad is unknown, and he is looking forward to the first few track meets. He also reports that "the team is working hard and has good potential."

The returning lettermen who are expected to bolster the squad are John Meroney, junior sprinter from Arlington, Va.; Jim Burgess, senior high jumper from High Point; Dave Hardin, senior distance runner from Lansdowne, Pa.; Dudley Cox, senior discus thrower from Norwalk, Ohio; and Douglas Kerr, junior discus thrower and shot putter from High Point.

The number one problem facing Coach Appenzeller is finding a replacement for Harold James who was the star of last year's squad. James averaged around 20 points per meet last year and his loss will be felt when the thinclads take the field.

Tommie Bowers, a halfback on the football squad, is looking good in the dashes and should be one of the strong point-makers on the squad.

TENNIS — Again this year, Jordan Washburn, senior from High Point, will be the spark of the tennis team. Washburn won last year's award for Guilford's outstanding tennis player and has been a member of the team that has twice won the North State doubles championship.

The rest of the team consists of freshmen, except for sophomore Long Vu from Saigon, Vietnam, who was a regular player last year. The freshmen are Brooks Haworth from Winston-Salem, who was one of the best high school players last year; Dave Edgerton from Goldsboro, who was also an outstanding high school player; and Dan Hammond of Greensboro, a transfer from Oak Ridge.

Dr. Philip Furnas, Frances Coble Whitt, '49, and Willie Lee Rudd, '22, chat following the well-attended, enthusiastic Burlington-Graham event.

THE FERRELLS

Rick Ferrell Is Chief Tiger

Guilfordians who know Richard "Rick" Ferrell, '28, were not at all surprised to hear that Rick had been appointed General Manager of the Detroit major league baseball organization.

Since childhood Rick has been known for his keen appraisal of situations; and for succeeding in handling situations with poise and confidence. It is thus no surprise to his friends that Rick has climbed the ladder of success in the baseball world. Although Rick was an outstanding catcher for many years in the Saint Louis American League organization, his level head and keen knowledge of human beings propelled him on to success as a coach, scout, farm club chief, and now to the opportunity as General Manager of the Tigers.

Rick is married to the former Ruth Wilson. The Ferrell's have four children, two boys, and two girls.

Meg Darrow Pens From Ghana

Margaret "Meg" Darrow, '55, wrote the following from Ghana, West Africa, where she is working in the hospital at the Presbyterian Mission:

"I have the two most wonderful laboratory assistants to work with — Wisdom Setordzi and Christian Alornyeku by name. They are eager to learn and have a real interest in laboratory work. They both have a keen sense of humor and can speak English quite well.

"At times I can not believe I am really out here in Adidome, Ghana. When I feel it is really reality I realize what a wonderful opportunity has been opened to me in being able to learn about other people and their culture by being in it, instead of just reading about it. Then too I realize how little I really have to offer and present, to be accepted or rejected as the people see is best for them. I guess we have to daily dedicate and re-evaluate what we do . . .

"I am always glad to help Guilford, since my four years there were most wonderful."

Bettina Wolf Is In Far East

Bettina Huston Wolff '49 is in Bandung, Indonesia where she and her family will live for two years as a member of the Kentucky Contract Team sent out from the University of Kentucky to do educational work.

Bettina writes: "We are on the island of Java — one of the most densely populated areas in the world (Indonesia has the world's 6th highest population.) Bandung has a population of a million — it is comparable in area to Lawrence, Mass., which with a population of 100,000 is the 1st or 2nd most dense city in the U. S. There are almost no buildings with more than one story here. We can not fathom where all the people are, even though the average number of people per room in Bandung would make Mr. Rose's establishment at 3701 Powelton look palatial!"

"As far as housing goes, we are lucky. We were the first family to arrive of the new members of the Kentucky team, so we inherited one of the two nicer houses available (3 good-sized bedrooms, huge living dining room, enclosed back yard, convenient location etc.). We also inherited two of the best servants in the group — a cook and a babu tjutji (wash woman). And we might as well confess now, we have since acquired a total of four full-time servants, having added a babu anak (child's nurse) and a boy (gardener and jack-of-all-trades).

"We are not out of line, even though we feel pretty silly; western families here have at least 2 servants and we are running about par for our size house and family with four.

Bettina's address is: Milo M. Wolff, Kentucky Contract Team, Kotak Pos 312, Bandung, Indonesia.

Dr. Edward E. Terrell, associate professor of biology, received a grant for study at Indiana University at Bloomington, Ind., where he will study botany.

This Summer Institute Program is designed to strengthen the subject-matter competence of science and mathematics teachers, to strengthen the capacity of these teachers for motivating able students to consider careers in science, and to bring these teachers into personal contact with prominent scientists who participate in the Institutes.

Financial assistance from the National Science Foundation makes possible the attendance of many teachers who would otherwise need to supplement their income from summer occupations not related to their professions. The foundation grants to each Institute cover the cost of tuition, fees, stipends, and allowances.

Beloved Former Teacher Dies

J. Wilmer Pancoast, who taught hundreds of students while a member of the Guilford faculty for 26 years, died at Friends Home in Newton, Pa., at the age of 82, on February 22.

Pancoast taught algebra, trigonometry and calculus at Guilford from 1919 to 1945. He retired as associate professor and lived in Greensboro until 1956, being engaged in the insurance and investment business.

A bachelor, Pancoast lived in the men's dormitory at Guilford and was always a spectator whenever the college athletic teams played. For a number of years, he coached tennis. The rose gardens in back of the men's dormitories were planted by Pancoast and he could be seen on pretty days working with flowers on various parts of the campus.

Pancoast studied at Swarthmore College, the University of Chicago, the University of Pennsylvania, Cornell University and the University of Wisconsin.

Prior to coming to Guilford, Pancoast taught at Abington Friends School in Philadelphia and George School in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. In 1918, he went overseas as a physical education director with the YMCA.

For many years he was chairman of the homecoming committee at Guilford, and he was also on the building and grounds committee.

Five Faculty Members Begin "Danforth" Summer Study

The Danforth Grant, made to Guilford College last winter for summer study by specially selected faculty members, has made it possible for five Guilford teachers to engage in summer work this year. J. Floyd Moore, Associate Professor of Religion, is devoting his time to the completion of his doctoral dissertation. E. Kidd Lockard, Associate Professor of Economics and Business Administration, is attending summer school at Colorado State College, where he is working toward his doctorate. J. Stuart Devlin, Assistant Professor of Economics and Business Administration, is working at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill on his doctorate, as is also Herbert T. Appenzeller, Director of Athletics. Mary Catherine Upchurch is attending a special Physical Education course at which she plans to complete her work for the master's degree. President Milner has indicated great satisfaction in the interest shown by faculty members in taking advantage of the Danforth opportunities and has declared that they will mean a great deal to Guilford College.

Commencement Program

One hundred and seven seniors joined the Guilford College Alumni Association at commencement exercises in New Garden Meeting House Monday, June 1. This is the largest group to be graduated from Guilford in the history of the college. The seniors heard Dr. Sylvester Green give the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday, May 31st. Dr. Green selected as his theme, "God, the Perfect Poet," and told the graduating class that there is a symmetry in the works of God which can be found also in the lives of those who follow Christian principles.

The commencement address was delivered by Dr. Gordon W. Lovejoy, Visiting Professor of Sociology at Guilford. Choosing as his subject, "Look for the Stars," Dr. Lovejoy suggested that, upon graduation, the seniors were making an upward progression from one level of society, to which they had belonged, to another, in which they would rise or fall according to the sense of purpose and dedication that accompanied their elevation.

The commencement weekend was marred by heavy rains on Sunday and Monday, and outdoor ceremonies not possible. However, many friends and parents of the graduates were on hand to congratulate them. Guilford will long remember the outstanding contributions made to campus life by the members of this senior class, which contained many outstanding students. The 1959 graduates are:

Alumni Day Honors N. Era Lasley

LUNCHEON, TEA AND BANQUET ARE SUCCESSFUL EVENTS

Gene Key '51, chairman of Alumni Day 1959, reports that the day ranked among the most successful ever. The entire festivities were celebrated in honor of N. Era Lasley '13, retiring Registrar. At the Reunion Luncheon, Ella Young Wood '13, classmate and friend of the honoree, surprised Miss Lasley by showing up with several members of the class of '13 for a special reunion. E. Daryl Kent, chairman of the reunion program, turned the program over to Ella Wood, who presented Miss Lasley with felicitations from her many friends, and informed her that her classmates had initiated an "Era Lasley Scholarship Fund." She turned over a sizable portion of the goal to Miss Lasley during the presentation. Ruth Newlin Coble '37 officiated at the annual tea at the Alumni House, where Era Lasley was also the honor guest.

At the Annual Alumni Banquet, a packed house enthusiastically applauded Edward Blair '32, who amused, entertained, and inspired the audience as he introduced the succeeding dignitaries on the program. Sometimes serious, sometimes humorous, the former Guilford oratory and debate champion held the audience completely between the presentations, surprises, and entertainment of the evening. One '59 inductee into the Alumni Association said, "He caused this to be the shortest two hours I've ever experienced!"

Dr. E. G. Purdom, in delivering an especially dignified address at the banquet, acted on behalf of the Alumni Association in presenting the annual Distinguished Alumni Award. The name called was one in evidence throughout the day — N. Era Lasley. Miss Lasley was presented an engraved silver tray by Dr. Purdom, as the audience gave a standing ovation. Said Era Lasley, "This is the happiest day of my life."

Mildred Marlette '37, returning Dean of Women, set the stage for another big surprise of the evening program. After tracing the service of President and Mrs. Milner through the years since Dr. Milner became Guilford's president, she called Charles Hendricks '40, out of the wings. Charles came forward with a sterling silver service, presented by the Alumni Association in recognition of the "25 years of faithful service of Clyde and Ernestine Milner."

Dr. and Mrs. Milner, although delightfully surprised, recovered and thanked the attending Guilfordians. Said Ernestine Milner, "I am inspired to higher service."

Ella Young Wood '13 (left) presents Era Lasley '13, with initial "Era Lasley Scholarship" funds. The announcement of the initiation of the fund was given at the annual Reunion Luncheon, where Miss Lasley was honoree.

Classes Adopt Projects

Among significant actions taken by class groups on Alumni Day were those by the classes of '54, '56, and '34. Dr. Nelson Jones, chairman of the '34 group announced the intention of his group to provide a $4,000.00 scholarship fund.

James Armstrong '54, chairman of the five-year anniversary group, announced that his class had decided on "a thousand or more by '64" as a slogan, and hoped to designate the fund at their next class reunion.

Ketchel Adams, chairman of the '56 reunion group announced the class's intention of providing at least $500 in new books for the library.

Homecoming Day is November 7

ALUMNI JOURNAL

L. to R.: Ernestine Milner, Mildred Marlette '37, Clyde A. Milner, Miss Marlette, returning Dean of Women, presented the Milners with a beautiful silver service on behalf of the Association for "twenty-five years of devoted service."

Miss Lasley Thanks Alumni

Dear Gene Key:

Please express to the members of the Executive Committee of the Alumni Association and to all the Guilford Alumni my most sincere thanks and deepest appreciation for the many nice things they did for me on last Alumni Day. You can never imagine how delighted I was when I walked into the Founders dining room for the luncheon and found so many of my classmates, none of whom I had expected to see, already seated at a table; nor how surprised and amazed I was to see my picture on the program for the day. When Ella Wood announced that the class of 1913 was establishing a scholarship in my honor, I could hardly believe that I was hearing correctly. And when Dr. Purdom announced that I was to receive the Distinguished Alumni Award I really wondered if I was not just "hearing things." But the engraving on the beautiful silver tray proves that I was not.

Guilford College and the people connected with her mean everything to me, and to have these lovely expressions of friendship from those with whom I have worked as students and alumni is deeply gratifying. Alumni Day 1959 will always stand out as a very high spot in my life.

Sincerely yours,
ERA LASLEY

for JULY 1959

Appreciation Expressed By Milners

To the Alumni Association of Guilford College:

Dear Friends:

We sincerely appreciate your generosity and thoughtfulness expressed through the exquisite silver service given to us at the Alumni Banquet this year. We were truly surprised.

The kindly presentation by Mildred Marlette, with whom we have had such friendly fellowship during the years, added greatly to its significance.

It is unusual and heartening to have been connected with one institution for twenty-five years. During this period Clyde has conferred, as president, 1,728 of the 2,608 degrees that have been awarded by the college. We are now teaching and having fellowship with our "academic grandchildren," and this is a great privilege, giving us an awareness of continuity and relatedness.

We are constantly interested in you, our graduates, for you are our family. We truly hope your emerging needs will be met; we share with you your disappointments and sorrows; we follow your achievements with pride.

Our gratitude for the lovely gift can, of course, be most effectively expressed through our dedicated service to your Alma Mater and her sons and daughters. This we wholeheartedly pledge.

Thanking you most sincerely for the beautiful silver service, we are

Appreciatively yours,
Ernestine and Clyde Milner

Clara Atkinson Is In Europe

Clara Atkinson '58 has been selected to take part in the student education program of the United States National Student Association in Europe this summer with college students from all parts of the country.

Clara left for Europe on June 30 and will return to the United States on September 1. Some of the countries that will be visited are Holland, Germany, Austria, Italy, Switzerland, and France. The program is arranged with European guides who are foreign University students familiar with their country's art, history, and music. There is a mutual exchange of viewpoints concerning life in their respective countries, and in this way Clara will be an informal "diplomat" in a foreign country.

By DOUGLAS KERR

The '59 Quaker athletic program was a success, in view of the fact that all of the Quaker teams were relatively young with not more than nine seniors participating in athletics throughout the six-sports year. Daryl Allen, Larry Chesson and Chester Haworth were the only senior footballers, while Bob Young, Danny Carr, and Jordan Washburn were the only fourth-year men on the basketball, baseball, and tennis teams. Dave Hardin, Billy Wearmouth, and Dudley Cox were final-year track men.

Beginning in September and continuing until May the teams representing Guilford College furnished spirited competition for their opponents; both on and off the field, Quaker athletes built a reputation for sportsmanship and determination.

With only two starters from the '59 grid team lost through graduation, the 1960 Quakers will be an experienced squad, and Guilford's eleven should be equally strong on the ground and in the air. Bill Huber and Harold James have accurate and powerful arms to toss the pigskin to speedy receivers Stutts, Holloway, Price and Simpson. On the ground the Quakers will have Meroney, Bowers, Parker and Smith, all of whom are powerful, fast and deceptive.

The probable starting line-up for next season's squad will be: Ends—Bob Holloway of Elkin and Jim Stutts of High Point; Tackles—Wayne Henley of Winston-Salem and Walter Wiggins of Goldsboro; Guards—Larry Younts of High Point and Fred Barringer of Greensboro; Center—Carl Opauski of Portsmouth, Va. In the backfield, probable halfbacks will be John Meroney of Arlington, Va. and Tom Bowers of Thomasville, with either Lester Parker of Murfreesboro or Bob Smith of Portsmouth, Va. filling the fullback slot. The quarterback position will be contested by three returning juniors—Brodie Baker of Wendell, Bill Huber of Fuquay Springs and Harold James of Virginia Beach, Va. This squad will boast five men with three years of collegiate experience and six with two years.

Defensively the Quakers will be especially strong. On the line, Wayne Henley and Carl Opauski present a formidable wall, while Younts and Barringer plug the remaining gaps. John Meroney, last year's winner of Guilford's Best Tackler Award, will be aided in the secondary by Bowers, Parker, Durham and Wagoner.

Several returning sophomores bear close scrutiny. Halfbacks Wayne Wagoner of West Yadkin and Ray Durham of Siler City have gained valuable speed and endurance through their work on the Guilford spring track group. Tom Price of Canton, Jim Simpson of Arlington, Va. and Charlie Abernathy of Maiden will bolster the strength of the squad, along with several prospects who are arriving with the freshman class.

Carolyn Lee '52 is shown above in the Susse Foundry, Paris. Carolyn is beginning her second year of study on a Fulbright scholarship. The young Guilfordian is learning the technical side of sculpturing, although her scholarship is in the field of painting.

State Champions of 1908

Among the interesting keepsakes of college days in the possession of George S. Nichols '11 is a picture of a great baseball team. Inscribed on the back of the picture are these words: "Guilford College Baseball Team. Won State Collegiate Championship in 1907-1908." George has operated a general store in White Plains most of his life. Two of his daughters have attended Guilford, and he has always been interested in the affairs of his college.

Joseph Wood Is Promoted

Joseph Wood '15, veteran in the field of electrical protective equipment design, has been named to the newly created position of power equipment consultant of I-T-E Circuit Breaker Company, Philadelphia.

He will serve on the staff of G. E. Heberlein, engineering vice president, and assist in sales negotiations, engineering studies and power apparatus projects which incorporate the firm's air and oil circuit breakers.

He also will follow all research and patent developments in the electrical industry and will co-ordinate activities of all I-T-E divisions and subsidiaries on committees of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the National Electrical Manufacturer's Association.

Prior to this appointment, Wood was adviser on high voltage engineering for the company's switch-gear division.

for JULY 1959

New Faculty and Staff

Four new appointments to the faculty and staff of Guilford College have been announced. Bill Lee Yates who has been Guilford's Dean of Men since 1957, becomes Acting Registrar, succeeding Miss N. Era Lasley, retired after 36 years as Registrar; Paul E. Zopf, Jr. joins the teaching faculty as Assistant Professor of Sociology; Gerald W. Vance has been appointed Assistant Professor of Psychology; and Jack S. Barton will be Instructor in Natural Science.

Yates, a 1953 graduate of Guilford who holds the master's degree from the University of North Carolina, was an outstanding athlete, taught at Guilford High School and at Thomasville High School. He has also been senior counselor at Camp Hemlock for a number of summers. Yates is unmarried and will continue to be head resident of English Hall and a member of the counseling committee.

Zopf was born in Bridgeport, Conn., and educated at the University of Connecticut and the University of Florida. He is married to the former Evelyn L. Montgomery of Laurel, Miss. Mr. and Mrs. Zopf have both served as faculty and staff members at the University of Florida. Mrs. Zopf received her B.S. in music from Mississippi Southern College and her master's degree from the same school. Zopf holds bachelor's and master's degrees and has completed the major portion of his work on the doctorate.

Vance received his undergraduate training at Ohio Wesleyan University, where he was awarded the A.B. degree in 1941. He received the S.T.B. at Boston University in 1944 and his master's degree at the University of Connecticut in 1954. He has considerable experience as a minister and teacher. His teaching assignments have included work at Frazeysburg, Ohio, High School, Worcester Junior College, Worcester, Mass., and Oakwood School, Poughkeepsie, New York. Mrs. Vance received her B.S. in Education at Salem, Mass. Teachers College and has had experience as a primary and elementary school teacher. The Vances have two sons, Gary, 14, and Mark, 11.

Alumni and friends in attendance on Alumni Day who wish copies of pictures made during Alumni Day activities may address their requests to the Alumni office, and pictures will be ordered and dispatched as soon as possible.

From the Alumni President

As retiring chairman of the Alumni Giving Fund, I want to thank you for your wonderful response during the past two years. Through Gene Key's efforts and your generosity we reached our goal of $15,000 for the 1958-59 year. We did not quite reach our goal of participating alumni, as we hoped to have a minimum of 1,000. I feel confident that more and more will join those of you who did contribute, and that the number will continue to grow.

It is now my privilege to serve you as president of your Alumni Association. I wish it were possible to meet all of you personally, but of course this will not be possible. I do hope to attend some of your local alumni meetings and to meet many of you there. These meetings present an opportunity for you to renew old friendships and to keep in closer touch with your college. Urge other Guilfordians to attend—"the more the merrier."

I am not at all sure just what the responsibilities of my office entail, but I anticipate studying past administrations, and I have gained much from the spirit demonstrated by Ernie Shore during his years of service.

I expect to work closely with Gene Key, and to seek the counsel of our great president, Clyde A. Milner. But, more important, I want your interest and support. I want you to give us suggestions and make constructive criticisms to the end of a more active, useful Alumni Association—one that will do credit to ourselves and the college.

I look forward to serving you, and I hope you will let us hear from you as outlined above.

Respectfully,
HOWARD CANNON '31

Margaret D. Winslow is Author Of Book Of Guilford History

"A Gift From Grandmother," a book written by Margaret Davis Winslow '09, of Tarboro, is receiving much attention from Guilford College alumni. The book, which fits into the category of autobiography, deals with Guilford College at the time of Margaret Davis Winslow's arrival on the campus with her father, beloved Professor J. Franklin Davis, in 1890.

With an undercurrent of gentle wit, the author relates college history from 1890 through her graduation in 1909. The book makes interesting reading for the objective reader, as well as the subjective reader, as it is steeped in the flavor of North Carolina Quakerism. Guilfordians everywhere will enjoy and appreciate the book. From the standpoint of Guilford College history, the reader will learn of conditions and problems of the college in its early years. The reader will also find pleasure, as he discovers hitherto untold revelations and stories about the personal lives of some of the greats who formed Guilford's faculty at the turn of the century. The stories are never told in jest, but with sentiment by a person who knew and loved the principals as only a daughter, niece, sister, and close friend could.

Mrs. Suzette L. Brown Is New Alumni House Hostess

Mrs. Suzette L. Brown has been appointed to the position of hostess for the Alumni House, according to an announcement by Joseph Cox '28, of the Guilford Foundation.

Mrs. Brown, who comes to Guilford from College Park, Maryland, is the mother of Mary Feagins, instructor in languages. Her late husband, Glenn D. Brown, was for many years head of the Department of Industrial Recreation at the University of Maryland.

An Indiana native, Mrs. Brown, the former Suzette Willecutts, affirms that she is actually "back home." Her family has a deep-rooted Quaker and North Carolina background. Her great-great grandfather, David Willecutts, was the president of the famed underground railroad which spirited slaves to their freedom during the Civil War era. He called Levi Coffin, another famous Quaker, his best friend.

Mrs. Brown invites all Guilfordians in this area on business or for social reasons to make reservations by telephoning Guilford College 6281, or by writing to Alumni House, Box 8253, Guilford College, N. C.

B. CLYDE SHORE, CHAIRMAN OF GUILFORD'S
RELIGIOUS EDUCATION-AUDITORIUM-MUSIC BUILDING CAMPAIGN

Proposed Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building for Guilford

Guilford to Launch Campaigns for $1,000,000.00

Guilford College is beginning two fund raising campaign simultaneously, aimed at the early completion of two major building projects. Funds totaling $1 million are involved in these two projects, and both are scheduled to be completed before Guilford celebrates its 125th anniversary in May of 1962.

The larger of the two buildings is the greatly needed Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building for the Guilford College campus, to cost $702,095.00, according to the estimate of the architects, A. C. Woodroof—A. C. Woodroof, Jr. The other project, estimated to cost $300,000.00 by McMinn, Norfleet & Wicker, Architects, will add a wing to the Greensboro Division Buliding located at 501 West Washington Street.

THE RELIGIOUS-AUDITORIUM-MUSIC BUILDING

The spacious auditorium of this handsome building, providing seats for one thousand, will make it possible for Guilford's student body and faculty to meet together for the first time in more than ten years. Present auditorium facilities are inadequate, and assembly and chapel programs must be divided; thus the sense of unity desirable in a small college is not completely realized.

Stage facilities included in plans for the auditorium will enable the college dramatic department to plan and stage productions of a wide variety not heretofore possible, and opportunities will be available to many more students to participate in dramatic activities. To supplement student programs, artists of national note may be invited to give performances that will increase the students' understanding and appreciation of dramatic and musical entertainment.

A capacity of almost three hundred more seats than needed by students and faculty will enable the college to invite residents of the surrounding community to varied programs. Guilford College considers the enrichment of the lives of those who live nearby as a major responsibility, and eagerly awaits the time when friends and neighbors may be invited to share cultural experiences. The auditorium can be made available to special groups, and members of the North Carolina Yearly Meeting of the Society of Friends will find it especially well suited to their annual gatherings.

Two important educational departments at Guilford College will be housed in this new building. In the wing to the left, facilities for the Department of Religion will enhance the undergraduate and graduate programs already actively under way. Guilford is the only Quaker college offering graduate courses in religion leading to the master's degree and designed to train leaders for the Society of Friends. Also the Department of Religion touches closely the lives of all Guilford students through core curriculum and elective courses. The quality of instruction will be raised materially by the facilities which will be available in this building.

The Department of Music will be housed in the wing to the right. The college choir will for the first time have adequate quarters in which to rehearse. This choir, which is noted throughout the eastern United States for its outstanding ability, will be able to embrace an even greater number of students than

Dana and Reynolds Foundations Offer Guilford $350,000 Toward Two Proposed New Buildings

It is with great satisfaction that Guilford College announces two major gifts toward the contemplated building projects for the campus and the Greensboro Division.

The Dana Foundation of New York City, headed by Charles A. Dana, Sr., has offered $250,000.00 to the college to be applied on these two buildings, and the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation of Winston-Salem, headed by Richard J. Reynolds, has offered $100,000.00 toward the campus building. Both gifts are made as challenges to alumni and friends of Guilford College.

These two gifts, totaling more than one-third of the amount needed for completion of the two projects, are most heartening.

Mr. Charles A. Dana, Sr., founded the Dana Corporation of Toledo, Ohio, which manufactures automotive parts. His great interest in education has resulted in the construction of educational facilities at many institutions in the eastern part of the United States.

Richard J. Reynolds, Winston-Salem industrialist, has long been interested in education in North Carolina, and the foundation he heads has been instrumental in assisting numerous schools and colleges in their curriculum and building programs.

at present. In addition, special rooms for voice and instrumental practice will assure training of the highest quality for those who are majoring in music.

Guilford College fosters the principle that worship belongs at the center of a full and complete life. While Guilford is affiliated with the Society of Friends, it is in practice non-sectarian, and the broad diversity of the student body is worthy of note. During the current academic year the student body is composed of representatives of 27 religious denominations. The largest group is affiliated with the Methodist Church and includes 181 students; these, with Baptist, Presbyterian, Episcopalian and Lutheran students make up 65% of the student body. There are 120 students who belong to the Society of Friends.

It is important that programs of a spiritual nature be developed to meet the needs of all students and that their awareness of worthwhile spiritual values be strengthened during their years at Guilford.

The Department of Religion, with its added facilities, will be able to encourage participation in religious activities on the campus by all students and to offer more effective instruction in religious principles. Of special interest will be the chapel designed as a typical Quaker meeting room in the religious education wing. This room will be of major importance in the training of leaders for the Society of Friends and will also serve as a meeting place for many small groups.

THE GREENSBORO DIVISION ADDITION

The addition to the Greensboro Division will be joined at the west end of the present building and will be three stories in height. In this building space will be allotted to chemistry, physics, biology, psychology, arts and crafts, and mechanics laboratories. Many courses of instruction not now possible will be added to the curriculum.

The present Greensboro Division building was opened and dedicated on March 3, 1959, and already the demand for courses has exceeded its capacity. During the current year, approximately 1,500 individual students will attend the Greensboro Division, and the proposed wing is considered an absolute necessity now, three or four years earlier than originally anticipated.

The Greensboro Division was established eleven years ago, and in that time more than 7,000 Greensboro adults have taken advantage of the educational opportunities afforded at times convenient to their work schedules. Civic, business, and industrial leaders of Greensboro have expressed the opinion that the Greensboro Division fulfills a major educational need in the city, and educational leaders throughout the state have praised its program and purpose.

The first floor plan of the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building reproduced here shows the location of the chapel and classrooms in the religious education wing to the left, and the choir room, with broadcasting and library facilities in the wing to the right. As will also be seen in the plan, there is adequate space for the production and staging of theatricals, with work and dressing areas adjacent to the stage.

The second floor plan (not shown) provides for space in the two wings, the lobby, and the balcony. This space includes two large classrooms suitable for visual aids education in the religious education wing, and classrooms and soundproof practice rooms in the music wing. Careful consideration by faculty members concerned with instruction and dramatic activities in the building has resulted in efficient arrangement and adequate facilities for their departments.

B. CLYDE SHORE HEADS CAMPUS CAMPAIGN

B. Clyde Shore, prominent Winston-Salem realtor and member of the Guilford College Board of Trustees, has accepted the important position of chairman of the campaign to raise funds for the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building on the campus.

Shore, a member of the Class of 1925, and an outstanding student while at Guilford, has long been interested in Guilford's welfare and growth. He was the donor of the Kathrine Hine Shore residence hall for women, one of the most handsome buildings on the Guilford campus. His enthusiasm and the efficient manner in which he is organizing his campaign committee assure successful completion of this project. Trustees serving with Shore on the campaign committee are Edwin P. Brown of Murfreesboro, Ruth Newlin Coble of Guilford College, Hugh W. Moore, of Philadelphia, Pa., and L. Elton Warrick of Goldsboro.

As this journal goes to press, men and women to serve as area chairmen are being selected, so that all alumni and friends of the college can be given the opportunity to assist in building this greatly needed campus facility. A handsome brochure outlining the need and functions of the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building is being placed in the hands of the campaign workers and will be given to alumni and friends when they are solicited for capital gifts.

THE CENTURY AND A QUARTER SCROLL

The Century and a Quarter Scroll will be a bronze tablet to be placed in the foyer of the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building. On it will be inscribed the names of friends of Guilford College who have contributed a total of $125.00 or more to the development program begun in 1957 and scheduled for completion in May, 1962, when Guilford College will celebrate proudly 125 years of uninterrupted educational service.

THE GUILFORD COLLEGE BENEFACTORS SCROLL

The Guilford College Benefactors Scroll will be a bronze tablet bearing the names of friends of the college who have made gifts totaling $1,000.00 or more to the 1957-1962 development program. This scroll will also be mounted in the foyer of the new building.

Gifts to the Religious - Education - Auditorium - Music Building may be extended over a period of three years to assure the greatest possible tax advantage for donors. For inclusion on the Benefactors and the Century and a Quarter Scrolls, however, pledges for such gifts should be made prior to May 31, 1962.

C. O. JEFFRESS HEADS GREENSBORO CAMPAIGN

C. O. Jeffress, general manager of the Greensboro News Company, publishers of the Greensboro Daily News and the Greensboro Record, is serving as chairman of the campaign committee for the Greensboro Division.

CARL O. JEFFRESS

Jeffress is an active and dedicated civic leader and is a member of the Greensboro Advisory Board to Guilford College. He has been vitally interested in the development of the Greensboro Division for a number of years.

The current Greensboro campaign will be restricted to a limited group of business and industrial firms in the city and in Guilford County, and early completion of this project is anticipated.

Members of the promotion and finance committee of the Greensboro Advisory Board who will assist Jeffress are Ceasar Cone II, John Harden, D. E. Hudgins, Huger S. King, J. Van Lindley, J. Spencer Love, Ralph C. Price, and C. M. Vanstory, all prominent in the civic, business and industrial life of Greensboro.

Basketball Begins

There was an air of enthusiasm on the Guilford campus Saturday night, November 28, when the Quakers opened their 1959-60 basketball season against East Carolina.

The maroon and gray Guilfordians lost the season opener to the much taller Pirates, 109-102, but won a thunderous cheer from the full house for their play.

Even though the Pirates out-scored the shorter Guilford cagers in the final few seconds of the contest, Coach Shealy's boys won a moral victory and proved to the campus that they were a basketball team! Prior to the game campus rumors had the Quakers beaten by 20 points. Students and local fans felt they were too short and lacked experience to cope with the big North State Conference powers, but now the Quaker fans hold an optimistic outlook.

Just how the Quakers will do after the Christmas holiday remains to be seen. They met three tough teams right at the beginning of the season—High Point, Appalachian, and Lenoir Rhyne—and lost to all three, despite good teamwork and spirited play.

Coach Shealy, who took over as basketball mentor in September when Bob Shoaf resigned, hasn't said much about his Quaker cagers yet, but is happy with their play to date. The starting Quaker cagers:

Forward: Don Lineberry, 19, Asheboro; 6' 1". Major: pre-med. Class: sophomore. A second year member of the Quaker team, this sophomore could develop into one of Guilford's greatest scorers in history. He scored 41 points, 13 field goals and 15 free throws, against ECC. This performance by the 6-1 shotmaker set a new scoring record at Guilford. The previous mark was 39, set by Bill Atkins against Appalachian in 1955. Lineberry has scored well in all games to date.

Forward: Buddy Key, 26, Portsmouth, Va.; 6'. Major: economics. Class: junior. Elected co-captain by his team-mates, Key is known as the team leader and is one of the top free throwers in the North State Conference. A hustler on offense and defense, Key drives well and is a good ball handler.

Center: Jim Lancaster, 21, Martinsville, Va.; 6' 4". Major: economics. Class: junior. A fine shot from the corner, Lancaster is showing much improvement on rebounding and defensive play. This is his third year as a Guilford cager.

Guard: Brooks Hayworth, 19, Winston-Salem; 6' 1". Major: history. Class: sophomore. A reserve forward last year, Hayworth was moved to the guard position by Coach Shealy. He is a good outside shooter and has an exceptional jump shot.

Guard: Jon Burwell, 19, New Bern; 5' 10". Major: history. Class: sophomore. A great ball handler and playmaker, Burwell is the spark of the Quaker five. He shoots well from outside and is a quick defensive play. A former high school All-American, Burwell serves as co-captain and as one of the best all-round players in the North State.

Battling for the No. three forward post are Bill Thrower of Raleigh and Howard Braxton of Scotland Neck. Other Quaker cagers are, all guards, Conrad Parker of Woodland, who is one of the best defensive players on the team and who saw some action last year, Bill Flippin of Francisco, Mike Tohn of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Tom Whitely of Greensboro.

Ansccombe Book Published

Dr. Francis C. Ansccombe, former faculty member, has recently had published a book, "I Have Called You Friends," through Christopher Publishing House in Boston.

The work covers the history of Quakerism in North Carolina, and Dr. Ansccombe has spent many years in research on this work. His book reaches back to the days when Quakerism was born in England, and to the short visit to the colonies by George Fox. It sets before the objective reader a series of events which led Quakerism to be the dominant religious force for fifty years in North Carolina, only to become almost nonexistent before the ravages of the Civil War and other factors.

His chapter on Guilford College traces the history of the college from its infancy through the middle fifties, and accomplishments of Guilford's presidents and faculty are acknowledged at length.

Dr. Ansccombe's book is not merely a record of facts about North Carolina Quakers, not a mere history. His humble gratitude and love for the Society with which he has been associated for his lifetime shine through his book. His treatment of his subject is with a gentle but intense feeling. A sense is conveyed by the book that this work is a noble effort by a great Christian person whose life has been spent in loftly pursuits to crystallize some of the heritage of Quakers in North Carolina for benefit of future generations.

On the Quaker Sports Front

Guilford's most valuable player of 1959 at the annual football banquet held in Greensboro.

The redheaded Quaker halfback was presented the Elton Warrick trophy at the banquet. During the season he gained 595 yards rushing and scored 66 points and averaged 5.5 yards a run. The red flash also won the best tackler award for the third straight season, proof of his ability as a defensive back in addition to his offensive power.

The banquet, presided over by Athletic Director and head football coach, Herb Appenzeller, was attended by members of the 1959 football squad, coaches and faculty members.

Other awards went to center Carl Opauski of Portsmouth, Va., as the best blocker, and back Charlie Little of Moorestown, N. J., as the best hustler.

The six seniors on the squad were also honored. They are Meroney, Opauski, end Bob Hollaway of Elkin, fullbacks Bob Smith of Portsmouth, Va., and Lester Parker of Murfreesboro, and center Gwynne Hupfer of Winston-Salem.

The Ralls family

Ralls Is Alumni Treasurer

Dr. Marion Ralls, '48, has been appointed treasurer of the Guilford College Alumni Association. The action, announced by president Howard Cannon, came as a result of a unanimous vote of the association's executive committee.

Dr. Ralls succeeds Dr. Marjorie Williams, who resigned following her move to Washington, D. C. He is married to the former Jean Presnell '49. The Ralls family recently moved into their new home in Arcadia subdivision near the college campus. Marion and Jean have four children, Louanne, 8; Johnny, 5; Nancy Jean, 3; and Charles Benjamin, 1.

Pearson Receives Promotion

Paul C. Pearson '42 has received another promotion with the Chemical Division, Celanese Corporation. The Pearson family recently moved to Point Pleasant, West Virginia, where Paul takes over as plant manager of the Point Pleasant plant.

Since Paul began with the firm in Texas in the mid-forties, he has enjoyed rapid advancement. He has been consultant in the organization of many new plants of the rapidly growing concern, and has been praised in the press for his achievements with the corporation. A high official stated that "Paul was the youngest chemist we ever hired."

The Pearsons have three children, Paul III, 12; Linda, 8; and Deborah, 6.

From the Alumni Secretary

It is part of the heritage of our country that many worthy educational institutions are supported by private philanthropy and are encouraged to grow by the generosity of civic-minded men and women.

The federal government, knowing the wisdom of this, has set up a tax structure favoring the private donor—therefore the donor's contribution offers advantages to the institution and the individual.

In general, alumni support of educational institutions is growing. This comes naturally from a general concern over the challenge facing higher education, and private, church-related colleges in particular, and many colleges enjoy 40, 50, and even 60 per cent alumni participation in Annual Alumni Giving. Guilford support has grown from 8 to 20 per cent in this respect since 1957, and it is foreseen that Guilford will soon take its place with the leaders.

Our progress in alumni activity has been encouraging, but much remains to be done. You will note in this issue important details about the proposed Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building and the campaign for capital funds for its construction.

Except in rare instances, each Guilford alumnus will be interviewed personally and given the opportunity to help with this building, which has been a dream of so many for so long. The alumni office is confident that alumni response to Guilford's first appeal for capital gifts in many years will be as enthusiastic as it has been to our appeals for annual giving since 1957.

Armfield "Alumni Song"

As a part of the program at the Founders Day Convocation on November 6, the Guilford College Choir, under the direction of Mr. Jerry Smyre and accompanied by Mr. Carl Baumback, sang an Alumni Song composed by Lucille Armfield of the Class of 1894. Lucille Armfield, who died in 1948, was a sister and classmate of William J. Armfield of Asheboro, North Carolina. At the close of her senior year at Guilford she was awarded the Bryn Mawr Scholarship which, at that time, was given to the young woman in the graduating class who had made the best record during her four years in college. Miss Armfield is also the author of a book of poems.

While preparing the programs for the Founders Day Convocations, the committee in charge found this Alumni Song in a copy of the Proceedings of The Old Students Association of New Garden Boarding School and Guilford College, which had been carefully saved by Miss Annie Petty and which she had

Founders Day Program Honors Guilford Women

Five outstanding Guilford alumnae returned to the campus as speakers during Guilford's annual Founders Day celebration on Thursday and Friday, November 5 and 6, which paid honor to the college's 984 women graduates.

At the opening session on Thursday morning, Mrs. Grace Taylor Rodenbough, '17, of Walnut Cove, spoke on her experiences as a representative in the North Carolina legislature, where for three regular sessions and one special session she was the only woman member of the body.

Sharing the Thursday program with Mrs. Rodenbough, who is currently supervisor of schools in Stokes County, was Miss Isabella Jinnette, '31, prominent Baltimore librarian, who spoke on books and her experiences in library work.

The Thursday morning session, presided over by Mrs. Hazel Monsees Macon, '41, of Greensboro, was further enlivened by the appearance of the junior high school choir directed by Mrs. Eileen Dornseif Nichols, '41, of Greensboro.

Featured at the Friday morning chapel were Mrs. Eldora Haworth Terrell, '49, physician of High Point, who gave a delightful talk on her medical school days; Mrs. Ruth Newlin Coble, '37, of Guilford College and a member of the college board of trustees, who spoke on home making and community service; and Mrs. Marianne Victorius Felton, '50, whose home is now in the Mojave Desert in California, who spoke on her experiences in the foreign services. Mrs. Cora Worth Parsons, '39, of Guilford College, presided over the Friday session.

Included in the social activities was a tea held Friday afternoon in the College Union which honored Guilford women graduates, a number of whom returned to the campus for the occasion.

The two-day convocation ended with the Tenth Ward Lecture given by Mrs. Dorothy Gilbert Thorne who lectured on "Quakerism in Fiction and Poetry Recently Written by Women."

Maude Gainey is Recognized

During Founders Day festivities, Miss Maud Gainey was surprised by special recognition, given by N. Era Lasley '13, who noted that Miss Gainey was the only living person who served all four Guilford presidents. Miss Lasley said, "During this Founders Day celebration we have been delighted to have with us one many of us have known and loved for a long time. She came to Guilford in 1901 as secretary to Dr. Hobbs, President of the College. In her spare time as the President's secretary she helped Professor George

She did such a good job of this that after Professor White's sudden death in 1917, the trustees made her Treasurer of the College. She served in this capacity during the remainder of Dr. Hobbs' term of office, while Dr. Thomas Newlin was President, while Dr. Raymond Binford was President and set Dr. Milner off to a good start when he became President twenty-five years ago. She retired in 1945, and the total term of her service was forty-four years. Miss Maud Gainey, so far as our records show, is the only living person who served Guilford College under all of her four presidents.

Homecoming Day '59 although celebrated on a very chilly November 7, was adjudged a success by all who attended, although the powerful Appalachian team deated the stubborn Guilfordians by the score of 20-9.

The day's activities, attended by over 2,000 visitors, included several planned class meetings, several impromptu gatherings, and a special presentation, along with the usual Homecoming activities. A delicious meal was enjoyed by students, alumni, and visitors alike in Founders Hall before the final event of the day, the annual Homecoming Dance.

Homecoming Day festivities were highlighted by the enthusiastic participation of student body members in the parade of floats and dormitory decoration. The halftime show was elimaxed by the crowning of Miriam Almaguer as Homecoming Queen. Earlier the crowd had cheered the parade of floats and the announced winner, Yankee Stadium.

Archdale Hall placed first in men's dormitory decorations, and Founders Hall gained honors for the girls' division.

Probably the most unique feature of the day was the "Oldtimer" reunion of the football team of '49. The group, which had upset favorite Appalachian in 1949, hoped the '59 boys could do it again. They failed to win, but the '49 team was high in its praise of coaches Appenzeller and Maynard and their charges.

In addition to those who attended, regrets were wired by Bobby Spencer, Al Johns, and Coach Eddie Teague, now of The Citadel. Present were: Walter Moon, Reginald Roberts, Jerry Clapp, Chuck Whitcomb, Hubert Wright, Lawton Gresham, Darwin Hawley, Binford Farlow, Abner Alexander, Phil Feeney, Ben Baker, Bill Topping, Sam Shugart, Joe Myers, Bill Oden, Bob Yarbrough, Sam J. Lynch, Bill Yates, W. Tuttle Sherrill, George Tate, Bill McCormick, and Bill Teague.

The '49'ers formed a dignified, handsome group, and made a profound impression on all who were in attendance. Professions represented by the group were law, medicine, dentistry, life underwriting, pharmaceutical representative, coaeching, teaching, sales representative, sports editor, businessman, real estate developer, and insurance executive.

Doak Portrait Presented

In a special ceremony held in the Guilford Gymnasium on Homecoming Day, a portrait of the late Charles Glenn Doak '12 was presented to the college. One of Guilford's most outstanding athletes and former beloved coach, Doak was known affectionately as "Mr. Charlie" to students and as "Chiek" to his close friends.

Dr. Algie I. Newlin '21, who played football under "Chiek," presented the portrait, donated by Mrs. Doak, to President Clyde A. Milner, who accepted it on behalf of the college. Charles H. Hendricks '40 presided over the ceremony, which was attended by alumni, faculty and members of the Doak family.

In accepting the portrait to be hung in the Doak Memorial Room, President Milner said, "Upon a similar occasion, on Homecoming Day, October 18, 1947, I had the privilege of dedicating this men's lounge and Trophy Room in the Guilford College Gymnasium in honor of Robert S. Doak, Class of 1909. Coach Bob, who died in 1942, served his alma mater from 1916 to 1927.

"It is highly fitting that at this Homecoming celebration in 1959 we should accept for this Doak Memorial Room—to be placed beside the portrait of Robert Doak—a portrait of Charles G. Doak, his brother and his predecessor as a Guilford coach from 1911-1914. We thus make this room more significantly and truly The Doak Memorial Room, commemorating as it does here at the College the lives of two stalwart and exemplary Guilfordians."

Charles Doak lived many of his 71 years in sight of the Guilford campus. His mother was the first teacher of music at the College, and he did his preparatory work and most of his work for the bachelor's degree here. From 1914 to 1916 he was head baseball and basketball coach at the University of North Carolina, and from 1916 to '18 and in 1920 at Duke University. He was freshman baseball and assistant football coach at North Carolina State College from 1922 to 1923, and head baseball coach from 1924 to 1939.

While at Guilford "Chiek" was a four letter man—baseball, football, track, and basketball, and he holds the unique distinction of being the only coach to have won championships in four North Carolina colleges—Guilford, Carolina, Trinity, and N. C. State. His book, "Baseball, How to Play and Coach It," won high praise.

The former Guilford coach, whose baseball team won the conference title in 1913, played 14 years of professional baseball, and while in the Carolina League was a consistent .300 hitter. He played every position on the diamond at one time or another. His best record was at his best position, third base. In his eight years in this league, he had 3440 fielding chances, accepted 3196, for a total fielding average of .926. Included in his baseball career were many years spent scouting for the St. Louis Cardinals, the New York Yankees, and the Boston Red Sox.

Twice during the spring of 1950, "Mr. Charlie" was paid special honor. The North Carolina State College Inter-Dormitory Council presented to him a special trophy for his 28 years of service as coach, physical education teacher, and "most of all as a friend." Later he was honored at a banquet of the Raleigh Chapter of the National Hot Stove League, a club of enthusiastic lovers of baseball, which presented to him a plaque designating him as "the man who has done more for the game than anyone else in this area."

In his closing remarks, President Milner said "It is especially suitable for us to express thanks and appreciation for this portrait of Charles Glenn Doak. In honoring this outstanding leader in his chosen field of endeavor—in which he exemplified the highest ideals of character and of service—we are dedicating Guilford College, once again, to those ideals upon which it was founded—those ideals which it still endeavors to promote."

Alexanders Tour Germany

Ed Alexander '50, and wife Martha have recently returned from a two weeks tour of Germany, where they were guests of the Volkswagen automobile organization.

Ed, who is partner in Alexander and Mann Motor Co., in Greensboro, was one of fourteen dealers making the tour from this country. He listed his tour of the modern, efficient Volkswagen factory as a highlight of the trip, and was impressed greatly by famous old Heidelberg University, especially ". . . the buildings, the grounds, and their unique system of operation; tuition is $165 per year."

"Our tour of East Berlin, though short and restricted, told us much. People are starving, and they have not come back from the destruction of World War II. There are no signs of progress. Three hundred people daily leave all they have behind, and escape into West Berlin, although police and Russian soldiers are everywhere.

"My Guilford courses, and especially Philosophy 24, increased greatly my enjoyment of the trip. This was particularly true in the old German towns, where ancient architectural and art forms are in evidence. I truly would suggest to every student that he take full advantage of what Mrs. Milner offers in Philosophy 24."

Ed was amazed at the contrast between East and West Germany. "The West Germans are a thriving, happy people. They were very friendly toward us; they have intense pride in their appearance; the towns are spotless; there are no weeds, no unsightly gullies; fields are mowed clean, right to the creek and river banks . . . no cigarette butts, no beer cans in gutters. Even among lower income groups, windows and walks were spotlessly clean."

Grimsley T. Hobbs Given High Award

Grimsley T. Hobbs '47, associate professor of philosophy at Earlham College in Indiana and son of R. J. M. Hobbs '09 of Chapel Hill, has been awarded the college's Ira Doan Distinguished Teacher travel award for 1960, according to a recent account in the Chapel Hill Weekly.

The award carries a stipend of $3,000 to be used for the purpose of travel by the recipient and his immediate family "wherever he desires or this money will take him."

According to the donors, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Ira Doan and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson I. Doan, the award is to "bring additional pleasure into the lives of the finest of Earlham's skilled and devoted teachers."

Conditions of the award are that travel should be conducted at least outside of Indiana and that the recipient will not engage in any other profitable activity that might detract from the relaxation and change which the award should provide.

At Earlham since 1951, Hobbs also holds an M.A. degree from Haverford College and a Ph.D. degree from Duke University. He is married to a Guilfordian, Lois Hunkele '48.

sent to the college to be preserved in the Quaker Room of the Library. The third verse was "written expressly for the reunion" held fifth month, 28th, 1902 at which approximately eight hundred former students were present. The words of the song which was sung to the tune of "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" follow:

ALUMNI SONG

I.

Oh! Guilford, our dear Alma Mater,
The home of the good and the true,
The pride of each son and each daughter,
We pledge our affection anew.
Thy calls make Alumni assemble
At times that are grave and are gay,
Thy colors make loving hearts tremble.
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!
Thy colors make loving hearts tremble,
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!

II.

Oh, Guilford, thou art our fair lady!
Thy knights, fond and true, see us now;
Our lot may be sunny or shady;
We pledge faith to thee, hear our vow.
Thy walls, as of old, safely hold us
From harm, for one brief little day,
Thy dear loving arms now enfold us—
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!
Thy dear, loving arms now enfold us,
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!

III.

Oh, Guilford, and dear old New Garden,
These names thrill the young and the old.
For thy sons and their children's children
Of thee pleasant memories hold.
Tho' some have grown gray in thy service,
Thy sons and thy daughters today
Assembled now, lustily give
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!
Assembled now, lustily give
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!

1960 Commencement Exercises

Ninety-seven seniors joined the Guilford College Alumni Association at the commencement exercises on Monday, May 30th. Beautiful weather made it possible for both the baccalaureate service and the graduation program to be held on the central campus.

On Sunday, May 29th, the seniors heard Keith W. Irwin, Executive Director of the Faculty Christian Fellowship of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States of America, give the baccalaureate sermon. Irwin replaced Hubert C. Noble, who was called to Europe because of an automobile accident involving his daughter.

In his sermon Irwin asked the graduates to bear the marks of education and develop the authority that is the result of insight, and of conforming their actions with their words. He called attention to the turmoil caused by dictators, racial conflict and other woes of mankind in the current period, and assured the seniors that only the authority of the educated man is strong enough to face these difficulties.

Landrum R. Bolling, President of Earlham College, delivered the commencement address to the seniors and to John Pipkin, Guilford's first candidate for the degree of Master of Arts. While praising the class for its accomplishments in completing an educational program, Bolling urged them to realize that education is not a way to solve all problems. This is the best educated age in human history, but the horrors of our age are being perpetrated by educated men. Bolling pointed out that he was not attempting to foul his own nest by making these assertions, but simply indicating that education is not enough with which to meet the forces in life not easily reduced to rules. He urged the seniors to meet life fearlessly and to use their knowledge wisely.

Many friends and parents of the graduates were on hand to congratulate them at the completion of the commencement program concluding Guilford's 123rd year.

Guilford's First Masters Degree Conferred on Pipkin

John Moses Pipkin '51, now pastor of White Plains Friends Meeting, received his master of arts degree in religion at the annual commencement program. This was a history making event for Guilford and the Society of Friends, for Guilford is the only Quaker college presently offering graduate courses in religion leading to the master's degree. The program was begun in 1957 and Pipkin's was the first graduate degree awarded by the college in its 123 years of educational service.

"A thirst for knowledge and a realization of a need for further education" plus the patience and perseverance of his family were the key factors in his successful study at Guilford, Pipkin says. "When I finished studies for the A.B. degree, I knew that if Guilford ever developed a graduate program in religion I wanted to be a part of it." Pipkin was graduated with high honors in 1951.

In hooding the candidate, Frederic R. Crownfield, head of the department of religion, said: "When I first came to Guilford College twelve years ago, I soon learned that President Milner was even then looking forward to the day when it would be possible to offer here advanced training in the field of religion, especially for leaders in the Society of Friends. In 1957, way seemed open for us to inaugurate such a program. Today the seed then planted has borne its first fruit, and we are happy to see conferred on John Pipkin, Friend and Guilfordian, the first master's degree ever awarded by Guilford College. It is with a sense of great privilege that I now invest him with the hood which is the traditional symbol of his degree."

The professors in Guilford's department of religion—Crownfield, E. Daryl Kent and J. Floyd Moore, all hold the Ph.D. degree and are recognized as outstanding teachers and members of the Society of Friends.

U. S. Steel Foundation Gives $20,000.00 to Guilford

Guilford College has received a special grant of $20,000.00 from the United States Steel Foundation. The presentation was made by Arthur V. Wiebel, President of U. S. Steel's Tennessee Coal and Iron Division, with headquarters in Birmingham, Ala.

According to President Milner, this grant will be applied to the building fund for the new Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building on the campus. Construction of this building is scheduled to begin in the early fall, with completion anticipated by the opening of school in September, 1961. President Milner said that this expression of interest in Guilford College by U. S. Steel was most encouraging and that it would be of great help in reaching the total goal of $722,000.00 for the building.

Twenty-one other North Carolina colleges and universities are being assisted to the extent of more than $70,000.00 under the 1960 aid-to-education program of the United States Steel Foundation, Inc., said Mr. Wiebel.

A $13,000.00 grant was made to the North Carolina Foundation of Church-Related Colleges. $2,000.00 went to Wake Forest and $1,000.00 to Davidson College.

Under the United States Steel Foundation's 1960 aid-to-education program a total of $2,677,000.00 is going to 710 liberal arts colleges, universities and institutes, and to 27 organizations devoted to elevating educational quality in America, it has been announced by Roger M. Blough, chairman of the board of trustees of United States Steel Foundation, Inc.

"Pete" Moore Receives Ph.D.

J. Floyd Moore, Associate Professor of Religion at Guilford, may now be addressed correctly as "Doctor Moore."

Moore, one of the most popular teachers at Guilford, received his Ph.D. from Boston University at the commencement exercises held on June 5th. His thesis for the doctorate was entitled "The Ethical Thought of Rufus Matthew Jones with Special Reference to Biblical Influences." During the preparation of his thesis, J. Floyd Moore also prepared and delivered the Ward Lecture at Guilford College in 1958 on "Rufus Jones: Luminous Friend."

With the awarding of the doctorate to Moore, all the members of the religion department at Guilford now hold the Ph.D., and the teaching faculty of this department is considered exceptionally strong.

Known as "Pete" by his many friends and hundreds of former students, Moore was graduated from Guilford College in 1939.

Hugh W. Moore Completes 29 Years of Distinguished Service With AFSC

Will Continue to Serve.

Hugh W. Moore

After 29 years with the American Friends Service Committee, Hugh W. Moore '20 is handing over his responsibilities as head of the Finance Department. However, by no means has he retired, for he will continue giving his full time to the Committee as a fund raiser.

During his service with the Committee, Hugh Moore made five trips abroad to visit many AFSC programs. In 1955, he was a member of the Friends group which visited the Soviet Union on a good will mission on behalf of the AFSC.

Hugh Moore received a Master's degree in sociology from Vanderbilt University in 1921. From 1922 until 1930 he served as pastor of the Winston-Salem, N. C., Friends Meeting. He joined the Service Committee in 1931.

Below is an expression from the AFSC Finance Committee:

"The Finance Committee wishes to express its appreciation for Hugh W. Moore's 29 years of service as head of the Finance Department. During these years the Service Committee has been able to carry on larger and larger programs. A great deal of this increase in operations and financial stability is due to the efforts of Hugh Moore. The Committee also deeply appreciates the manner in which the fund raising has been done. His concern that contributors should not be high pressured into giving, but should give because they really wish to contribute to the work of the AFSC has resulted in a true Quaker spirit in our fund raising. For all these reasons and because Hugh Moore is the fine person that he is, the Finance Committee wishes to record its appreciation and looks forward to an equally happy relationship in future years."

Moore is a member of the Guilford College Board of Trustees. He is married to Alma Chilton Moore '21. The Moores live in Philadelphia, Pa.

Alumni Day Program Was Enjoyed by Many

Alumni Day 1960 was most successful, although the festivities conflicted with a vigorous primary election in which many prominent Guilfordians were involved; and rain threatened early in the day.

Approximately seven hundred visitors registered throughout the day, beginning with the registration-coffee hour at the college union. Dr. Algie I. Newlin '21, chairman of reunions, presided at the reunion luncheon. Highlight of the program was the honoring of two of the oldest living alumni of the institution. Robert Hodgin '96, oldest graduate of Guilford College, received a gift from the association. Said Robert Hodgin, "I appreciate this honor . . . I attribute my age and good health to clean living, keeping good hours, keeping good thoughts, and not worrying—understand though, I don't consider myself old!"

Mrs. Rodema Lindley Crutchfield, oldest living student of New Garden Boarding School, was honored in absentia. Harriet Crutchfield Hood '17 received a gift on behalf of her mother, and said, "Mother is here with you in spirit." Immediately following the program, Mrs. Crutchfield's children in attendance conveyed the greetings to her on behalf of the college and the Alumni Association. Alma Crutchfield Nunn '14, Dr. James Crutchfield '14, Harriet Crutchfield Hood '17, and Frank Crutchfield '25, were present. The late Eleanor Crutchfield Nelson '13, the remaining member of Mrs. Crutchfield's family, was also a Guilfordian.

The continuing family connection with Guilford was also noted, in that six grandchildren attended Guilford, three children married Guilfordians, and two of the grandchildren chose Guilfordians for mates.

At the annual Alumni Tea, Guilfordians and guests filed through for delicious refreshments served by hostess Ruth Newlin Coble '37. The grounds of the Virginia Ragsdale House have seldom been more beautiful for the annual occasion.

Howard Cannon '31, president of the association and master of ceremonies for the annual Alumni Banquet, introduced a lively series of items on the program, and entertained the capacity crowd with accompanying remarks.

John Googe '50 presented the Key Senior Award to Thomas O'Briant, and announced alumni awards and honors to students for the year.

President Clyde Milner addressed the group, and Mildred Marlette '35 inducted the class of '60 into the association. Gene Key gave the annual progress report of alumni activity.

The highlight of the evening was Alma T. Edwards' presentation for the association of the Dis-

Dr. Hobbs, former faculty member, retired dean at the University of North Carolina, and son of Guilford's first president, addressed the group briefly. "The world is in need of educated people. Not just those with degrees and honors—but real educated people . . . our great need is for more integrity." Dr. Hobbs was presented an engraved gold pen by the association.

From Your Alumni President

Dear Guilfordians and Friends:

The past year has been an interesting and exciting one for all in the Guilford Family.

Mr. Charles A. Dana, the Reynolds Foundation, and others have become interested in our program, and all of us should take great pride in this.

Our Annual Giving Program has reached new heights, both in amount and in number of givers, and the Executive Committee has lent assistance in the current building campaign. The campaign continues, and we will be seeing Guilfordians in areas not yet contacted. We know that these Guilfordians will be fully as enthusiastic as those in areas already canvassed.

You have chosen me your president again, and I look forward to our association's taking part in important developments. I also shall look forward to working with you again.

Sincerely,
HOWARD CANNON '34

In Memoriam

Augustine W.
Blair

Augustine W. Blair '90, professor emeritus of Rutgers University, died February 18, 1960, in High Point Memorial Hospital. Blair received his bachelor's degree from Guilford College in 1890 and his master's degree at Haverford College, returning to Guilford to teach history and science. It was in 1896, while acting as instructor of chemistry, that he started the first chemistry laboratory at Guilford. Dr. Blair, who was always interested in education and especially in science, established a scholarship fund at Guilford College in the name of his wife, the former Genevieve Mendenhall Hobbs '90, who was the sister of Mary Hobbs.

During a 12-year stay in Florida, holding the positions of state chemist and chemist at Florida Agricultural Experiment Station and Agriculture College, he laid the foundation for his 28 years service at the New Jersey College of Agriculture and Experiment Station. He directed research work in soil chemistry and fertilizer at Rutgers University, teaching graduate courses.

Dr. Blair has been credited with hundreds of scientific papers and articles appearing in international and national magazines, bulletins, and journals. His research work and studies carried him to South America, Europe, and Great Britain.

Following his retirement in 1940 he returned to High Point to make his home, until his death at the age of 93. A member of Springfield Friends Meeting, A. W. Blair always took an active part in community and church work, being particularly interested in Sunday School activities.

By DOUGLAS KERR

A center, a pair of ends, and an overall defense. That's what Coach Herb Appenzeller needs to strengthen his 1960 Quaker football squad and to improve over last year's squad. In general, the pre-season outlook "is certainly a big question to all the coaches and the followers of the Quakers."

Coach Appenzeller will count on 18 returning past four years. (Incidentally, John has signed a letterman to offset the loss of John Meroney, Little All-American halfback and outstanding scorer for the tract with the Green Bay Packers for the coming grid season.)

The big problem for the Quakers is the line. Carl Opauski and Gwynne Hupfer, centers, and end Bob Holloway will be missing from the Quaker front wall, due to graduation. Who will replace these boys? That's one of the problems facing Guilford's coaching staff.

All-Conference Wayne Henley, Walt Wiggins and Charlie Abernathy will man the tackle slots. Larry Younts, the outstanding lineman of spring practice, adds to the guard position. At end, the only returning lettermen are Frank Simpson and Bob O'Daniel.

To counter the loss of fullbacks Bob Smith and Lester Parker, Jim Stutts, veteran end, has been moved to the plunging spot. Stutts was the outstanding back in spring practice and should give the Quakers a strong middle attack.

Tom Bowers, Wayne Wagoner, Ray Durham and Jim Elks will have experience at the halfback position along with several promising freshmen.

THE RELIGIOUS EDUCATION-AUDITORIUM-MUSIC BUILDING
Construction Now in Progress

Construction Has Begun on Major Campus Building

A dream will soon come true! Construction has begun on the new Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building on the Guilford campus. Stakes have been driven marking off the proposed area and the dirt is beginning to fly. Site of the building includes a part of Hobbs Field, and the structure will face the entrance drive from Friendly Road.

This new structure will provide an auditorium to seat 1,000 and classrooms for the departments of religion and music. It will no longer be necessary to have two separate chapel services for upperclassmen and freshmen. The religious education wing will have a small meeting room to seat approximately 180, and the music wing will provide a practice room for the choir. A fully equipped stage will make possible dramatic presentations and various entertainment programs which are not now feasible.

Construction of the building is being handled by H. D. Barnes, Inc., and the architect is A. C. Woodroof-A. C. Woodroof, Jr. The cost of the structure, including furnishings and stage equipment estimated at $114,867, will be $719,540. It is expected that the new building will be ready for use at the opening of the academic year in September, 1961.

Charles A. Dana Science Hall to Be Dedicated October 27

The new science addition now being completed at the Greensboro Division of Guilford College on West Washington Street will be formally dedicated and named the Charles A. Dana Science Hall in ceremonies Thursday, October 27.

Dr. Milner stated that Guilford is honored to have this Greensboro unit of the college bear the name of Mr. Dana, New York philanthropist and industrialist who made a gift of $150,000.00 toward construction costs totaling $300,000.00.

The dedication ceremonies will take place at 4:00 p.m. Thursday, October 27, featuring civic leaders and educators, and will be followed by a tour of the new building and a reception in the library.

At 7:00 p.m. a dinner in Founders Hall on the Guilford campus will honor Mr. Dana and his party. On this occasion the first ten Dana Scholars at Guilford College will be presented. These scholars are the first in a program instituted this year at Guilford by Charles A. Dana. Next year there will be twenty Dana Scholars and the following year, thirty. Recipients, who are selected on the basis of character, leadership and academic attainment, must have been students at Guilford for at least one year. The entire group of Dana Scholars will devote time to a special program of study concerning liberal arts education, its meaning and its depth.

On Friday morning, October 28, Mr. Dana will address the Guilford College student body in a special assembly program. Friday will also be observed as Founders Day and will feature the 11th Ward Lecture in Memorial Hall Auditorium by Dr. James M. Read, new president of Wilmington College, Wilmington, Ohio. The subject of the Ward Lecture this year will be "The Responsibility of a Quaker College to Train for World Leadership."

The Dana Science Hall is a three-story structure containing approximately 22,000 square feet of laboratory, classroom and office space. The third floor is devoted entirely to science laboratories, with facilities for instruction in chemistry, physics and biology. In addition, there is a general purpose research laboratory to be made available to industrial and educational groups for special projects. The second floor of the building provides laboratories for language and psychology, as well as classrooms and studios for the study of various graphic arts. The ground floor is devoted primarily to general purpose classrooms and a laboratory for special craft projects. The building is connected to and directly west of the Greensboro Division building completed in 1958.

New Athletic Center to Be Named in Honor of Father and in Memory of Two Members of Armfield Family

All Guilfordians will be pleased to learn of a special gift by members of the family of William J. Armfield, Jr., of Asheboro, who was graduated from Guilford in the Class of 1894. This gift will enable the college to relocate and greatly improve its athletic facilities and establish The Armfield Athletic Center, named in honor of William J. Armfield, Jr. and in memory of his sons, Britt M. Armfield and William J. Armfield, III.

The center will include a baseball diamond with permanent seating for 500 spectators and a football field surrounded by a quarter-mile track with permanent seating for 2,500 spectators. Presentation of the special gift to the Guilford College trustees was made in behalf of the Armfield family by Mrs. T. Lynwood Smith.

A special feature of this athletic center will be a commemorative wall extending the length of the development, with a columned entrance leading to steps down into the natural bowl formed by the grade of the land on which the field will be established, east of the present Hobbs Field.

A part of the construction of the baseball field has been completed, and construction of the remaining sections of The Armfield Athletic center is to begin immediately, with the contract awarded to H. D. Barnes, Inc.

William J. Armfield, Jr., '94, long a leading citizen and builder of Asheboro and Randolph County, was prominent in athletics when he was at Guilford College and has maintained his interest in the college and in its athletic program. Britt M. Armfield was an enthusiastic and cooperative member of the Greensboro Advisory Board to Guilford College and a supporter of the Greensboro Division of Guilford College until his death on September 16, 1953. William J. Armfield III, who died February 1, 1956, attended Guilford and was an active supporter of its programs, especially the organization and development of the Greensboro Division.

Members of the Armfield family participating in the gift are Mrs. Britt M. Armfield, Greensboro; Mr. and Mrs. John V. Hunter, Winston-Salem; Mrs. W. J. Armfield, III, Greensboro; Henry M. Armfield, Asheboro; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Armfield, Winston-Salem; Mr. and Mrs. T. Lynwood Smith, High Point; Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Armfield, Greensboro; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cannon, Asheboro; Mr. and Mrs. Donald McMillion, Greensboro; and Mr. W. J. Armfield, IV, Greensboro.

According to President Milner the new athletic center will make possible broader student participation and encourage greater alumni interest in the athletic program of the college. The relocation of the athletic fields is a major item in the current Guilford College Development Program begun in 1957 and scheduled for completion in 1962, when Guilford will celebrate 125 years of continuous educational service.

of the University of Louisville, Kentucky, from 1935 to 1943. He will become the president of Wilmington College on October 15, 1960, and will be the thirteenth chief executive of that institution.

Dana Scholarship Program to Begin At Guilford College

Guilford is extremely fortunate to be included in the worthwhile scholarship program instituted at a number of colleges by Mr. Charles A. Dana. This program will recognize students who are outstanding in leadership, character and scholastic attainment. The following is the official statement concerning details of the program:

THE CHARLES A. DANA SCHOLARSHIPS

Charles A. Dana takes pleasure in offering the opportunity to students to secure the following scholarships during the next three years at Guilford College:

1960-61 academic year — 10 full tuition scholarships.

These scholarships are to be awarded by a committee consisting of the academic dean, the dean of men, the dean of women and three full professors elected by the faculty, with the president of the college serving as chairman. To be eligible for consideration, men and women students must have completed a full academic year or its equivalent as a duly enrolled student at Guilford College. During this year such a student must have demonstrated marked quality of character and evidence of leadership, and have acquired a minimum academic quality average of 2.00. The scholarship committee will make selections from the available candidates after careful study of their complete records and after personal interviews.

A Dana Scholar will receive a scholarship in the amount of the full academic tuition charged by the college for that academic year. The scholar will enroll in and attend regularly a two-hour seminar each week during the academic year. At least two professors will be present to direct each seminar. A schedule of professorial and subject assignments will be prepared so that the maximum mutual advantage to both scholars and professors can be realized. The seminar will be on the philosophy of liberal education at Guilford College. The core curriculum, the unity of all knowledge, the college book list, and the inter-relationship of assembly and special resource programs with the entire educational program; the interdisciplinary character of learning will be among the subjects considered. The two-hour seminar will carry one academic hour's credit each semester.

A Dana Scholar will serve Guilford College five hours each week, acting as a teaching assistant in his major field, or pursuing some subject or project

1960 Enrollment Announced By College Registrar

Bill L. Yates, registrar of Guilford College, has announced a total enrollment of 715 students for the 1960-1961 academic year. Of these 261 are freshmen and transfer students; 434 are upperclassmen; 15 are special students, and 5 are enrolled in the graduate program in religion, the only such program offered by any Quaker college.

Of the freshmen 75 are from out of North Carolina and of the upperclassmen 130 come from other states. The total number of students from Greensboro is 115; of the latter 87 are men and 28 are women. Of the total number of students 487 are men and 228 are women.

In commenting upon the increased enrollment for the current year, compared with Guilford's desired limit of 650 students, President Clyde A. Milner stated that the predicted pressure for college admittance by qualified students is being experienced several years earlier than anticipated, and that increased demand can be expected in the years ahead.

discussed in detail by the seminar, or planning, directing or leading an assembly or Friday evening program. A Dana Scholar may be reappointed each successive year during his college career, provided the standards are maintained and there is evidence of increasing maturity, of growth in understanding of the total college program and purpose, and of the development of effective leadership.

Charles A. Dana Scholarships establish a new maximum of financial aid and thus supersede and cancel any previous grants.

By Sid Hart

At the time of this publication, the Guilford College Quakers, under Coaches Herb Appenzeller, Stuart Maynard, and Clyde Parrish, have lost their first two games of the 1960 football season and won the third. Elon bested the Quakers 19-7, and East Carolina defeated them 7-0. Guilford defeated Randolph-Macon 12-7. The East Carolina game cheered Quaker supporters as pre-game predictions had Guilford on the short end by from three to five touchdowns. East Carolina is a perennial conference power, but the game before a capacity East Carolina crowd showed that the Guilford team is rounding into a solid eleven. Results of the Randolph-Macon game are further evidence of this.

For the first time since he has been at Guilford head coach Herb Appenzeller has what he considers two first string backfields. Quarterbacking the first unit is Harold James, a senior. Running at fullback in the James-unit is Jim Stutts, still another senior. The halfbacks are Tommy Bowers and Ray Durham, both speedsters. Stutts, probably the strongest runner in the backfield, gives the Quakers a strong game up the middle while Durham and Bowers are fine outside men.

Along with Baker in the other first string backfield is Tom Waters at fullback and Jim Elks and Bob O'Daniels at the halfback positions. Combine the two backfields and Guilford has a fine running attack, and the passing of both James and Baker is improving.

In the line Frankie Simpson and Larry Gill are holding down the first string jobs at end. Assistant coach Clyde Parrish believes that both Simpson and Gill are good as any in the conference. Backing up Simpson and Gill are Dick Grant and Tommy Barnes.

At tackle are Wayne Henley and David Wells, the first stringers, Charlie Abernethy and Hardin Hodges, a freshman promoted to the second string. The guards find Larry Younts and Walter Wiggins on the starting eleven. Here is one of the strongest positions on the team, and Younts is thought of as being one of the top guards in the conference. Other strong guards listed on the roster are Fred Barringer, Neil Jones, Don Maynard and Sherrill Doby. Jack Holley is the first string center, ahead of Bob Goldie.

Stutts and Younts, both fine players and well respected by their teammates, are the co-captains.

On the basketball front, excitement is evident over prospects under Coach Clyde Parrish. Parrish is expecting a trio of New Jersey freshmen to bolster the Quaker basketball fortunes. They are Wayne Wyckoff, Dan Kuzma, and Ken Ward. Ward is a big 6-6 center; and Wyckoff and Kuzma stand 6-4. Both are good jumpers, and can play the backcourt or forward positions.

Parrish also reports that a large group of other promising freshmen will greet him at the opening practice in mid-October. He believes All-Conference Don Lineberry and veterans Jon Burwell, Howard Braxton, Brooks Haworth, and other basketballers will get needed assistance under the boards from the newcomers.

Alexander Heads Quaker Club

Abner Alexander, '52, has been appointed chairman of the Guilford College Quaker Club. He was elected by an executive group which met in June to discuss ways and means of improving athletics at Guilford College.

After the program was discussed with the college Physical Education Department, the administration, trustees, and alumni leaders, the new revitalized program went into effect. The committee plans to solicit financial support from those alumni and friends who express an interest in the college athletic program. "No general solicitation will be done," said Alexander. "The committee of loyal Guilfordians who form the committee reaffirmed our pride in our college and its contribution to the world. We, in no way, intend to limit our support to a particular area of college activity, as most of us are participating in the worthy campaign now in progress. We wish only to express our further faith in our college by rallying support for a vital activity from the standpoint of student and faculty morale, public relations, and favorable publicity for the college. Our work will be through college channels, and our efforts will be confined to seeking support to help defray the rising costs of an athletic program at our friendly small school."

The committee has plans for a newsletter to go to all Quaker Club members at least five times annually; and to sponsor on-campus events to enlist the interest of additional alumni.

The Quaker Club Committee includes George Parker, '35, W. Tuttle Sherrill, '50, Dr. Marion Ralls, '48, Robert Young, '59, Samuel Lynch, '52, Jack Tilley, '49, George Ralls, '50, Dalton Myers, '51, John Haworth, '48, Melvin Lynn, '33, Herbert Shoelkopf, '48, Lee H. Jacobson, '59, Gene S. Key, '51, and Dr. Norman Fox, '51.

The committee announced that the program has been set up for two classifications of support: $10.00 to $24.00 membership annually invites the member to attend all athletic events on campus; $25.00 and over annually invites the member to all home athletic events with full guest privileges. Both classifications will be recognized in listings in the football programs and in the Alumni Journal.

- I am interested in the Athletic program at Guilford College. Please add my name to the list receiving mailings about the program.
- Please enroll me as a member of the Quaker Club. ($10)
- Please enroll me as a sponsor member of the Quaker Club. ($25—full guest privileges.)
- I would like information relative to advertising in the football program.

Homecoming

Homecoming '60, by virtue of its date of October 8, falls in a period whereby it could not be announced in the October Journal; nor could it be reported in this issue. Pictures and reports of the festivities will be listed in the January Journal.

Guilford Faculty Members Attend Five Years Meeting

At an evening session, an informal roll of Guilfordians was called, and approximately seventy-five answered—these represented a wide range of professions, ages, and geographical locations.

Lyra Miles Dann, who was a Guilford College Faculty member during the 1920's, died Monday, July 27th, in Salem, Oregon. She had been in declining health for a year. In addition to her teaching at Guilford College, she had taught at three Oregon Colleges. She had traveled widely doing work for the Friends World Committee and was widely known among Quakers in North Carolina. She was a member of the Board of Directors of the AFSC and is survived by a sister, Mrs. Algie I. Newlin of Guilford College.

Nellie Jones Lentz 1900 passed away June 30, 1960, after a period of declining health. She was active in the nursing profession for 50 years.

Robert A. Slaughter, a student in the Preparatory Department in 1891-1892, was killed in an automobile accident August 20, 1960. He had been visiting friends and was about to take a bus for his home in Raleigh when the accident happened. Before retirement he had been a custom tailor.

Word has come of the passing of William Rufus Neave '36.

Joshua E. Hedgecock 1900 passed away September 22, 1960. He was 84 years of age and had spent his entire life in High Point. For thirty years he was associated with the Thomasville Shooting Club. Joshua Hedgecock was the grandson of John Carter, superintendent of New Garden Boarding School from 1864 to 1867. His daughters, the late Edith Hedgecock Warrick '27 and the late Esther Hedgecock Knight '28 were Guilfordians, as were his granddaughter, Emily Warrick Privott '56 and his grandson, Leslie E. Warrick, Jr. '54.

Many laudatory statements have come to Guilford College concerning the life of Augustine W. Blair '90, whose death was reported in the July JOURNAL. Mr. Blair was a constantly interested supporter of his college and education on all levels. By way of correcting a statement in the report, Mr. Blair was married to the former Genevieve Mendenhall, sister of Mary Mendenhall Hobbs. A scholarship fund established by him bears her name.

“Remember Alma Mater In Your Will”

Who, Me?

BY AN ANONYMOUS ALUMNUS

(Reprinted by Permission)

“That bequest business is only for the big boys, not for me.” This is the thought that goes through my mind whenever bequests to worthy causes are mentioned. And I imagine the same thought occurs to most of us who don’t enjoy a private income or live off our wife’s fortune—in other words, all of us of modest means.

When a piece of fund-raising mail or other solicitation suggests that I remember my college in my will, I shrug, “Why should I?” And I instantly decide that there are others who should and can make gifts of this kind to charity or education. Certainly not I.

At least, this used to be my reaction. Recently I had occasion to take a closer look at my reasoning, and I began to wonder if I was so free of responsibility as I had thought. Is it true, I asked myself, that legacies to educational institutions are only for the wealthy to make? Or are they also the obligation of people of average means and perhaps stronger-than-average convictions?

I reviewed briefly my own obligations to the legacies of others. I recalled that when I had decided college training was essential to the kind of work I wished to pursue, the college of my choice was waiting for me. Its buildings, its laboratories, its libraries, and its wealth of talented manpower—the result of years of accumulation—all these things were ready because someone’s gift had made them possible. A sense of responsibility seemed to say, “Continue this line unbroken so that others will have the chance I had.”

Another thought came to mind: Would I be in the position I’m in now if it were not for the influence of my college training? Hasn’t my professional growth been nourished by the preparation I received in college? Of course it has. To whom do I say “thank you” for this aid? I know my tuition paid the college only about half the cost of educating me. Can I call myself a “self-made” man?

If I am to make a bequest to an institution, that institution must be something very special in my life.

I must believe in what it stands for, and that belief must be next to my family and my spiritual self. I’ll give to many causes during my life—a few dollars here, a few dollars there, mostly to quiet my conscience and to get rid of solicitors. But when I consider a bequest, there is no motivation but my own conscience, and that reaches deep into my whole life.

If I leave a bequest to my college, I mused, my money will be multiplied through its effect on many students. How much greater will be the ripples that spread out from its expenditure than if I had passed it to a single individual. In a sense, then, I can perpetuate my resources into eternity. I could see in my mind’s eye the wonderful work even my perhaps relatively small bequest might do in providing educational opportunities for others.

I had convinced myself. Then I became interested in knowing more about this kind of gift. I found that the trend of giving shows an increasing number of people making charitable bequests—particularly to education. These range from a small token gift to a multi-thousand-dollar addition to endowment. And these gifts come from all kinds of people in all kinds of circumstances.

An individual without an immediate family is frequently one who has spent his life intimately involved with his own profession. One way he can make this close association endure is by placing his resources, whatever they may be, at the disposal of the institution that has made it possible for him to grow and achieve a measure of personal and professional satisfaction.

Many couples have few responsibilities beyond each other. Where finances permit, they may leave their worldly goods to each other and provide for any remaining principal sum to pass to an institution which has been a source of inspiration, satisfaction or nourishment throughout their lives. Couples may think also of the possibility of their perishing at the same time in a common disaster. Who will then inherit? A provision by will can insure that any part of such an estate would revert to an institution they choose.

It happens, too, that couples with families see their children grow to be entirely self-sufficient—in fact, prosperous. A man looks to his own children and grandchildren, but it is not uncommon for him to feel literally closer to an institution than to some distant or unloved relative. Such a man will reflect upon those deeper currents in his own life which have shaped his career, and he may find that a sum bequeathed to his college could yield great satisfactions to himself and to the generations who will partake of his generosity.

Then again there is the person of substantial means who provides for his family and finds that, after a certain point, additional wealth for them may be a difficult tax and management burden. To him the appeal of tax-saving through a charitable bequest has real meaning.

The decision to make a bequest is a very personal one. Only a man's conscience knows the importance in his own life of the institution he chooses. It has been said that such a gift is "the act of a man whose wealth is in ideas, in spirit, in beliefs." I know from personal experience that such a provision can give one great satisfaction in the knowledge that he can help to perpetuate an institution in which he believes.

Many Guilfordians and friends of the college, because of regular contributions to development programs, are almost eligible for "Century and a Quarter" membership, awarded to all who have contributed $125.00 or more since June 1, 1957. All members will be honored on a permanent bronze tablet in the new Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building. Guilford's goal is 1,000 members . . . be one of them.

STEEL RISES ON THE RELIGIOUS EDUCATION-AUDITORIUM-MUSIC BUILDING
Dedication and Founders Days October 27, 28, 29, 1961

Autumn, 1960 . . . A Busy Season At Guilford

Highlights of the fall at Guilford, in addition to Homecoming and the beginning of construction on the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building and the Armfield Athletic Center, were the dedication of the Charles A. Dana Science Hall at the Greensboro Division, the Founders Day Program featuring Dr. James M. Read, President of Wilmington College, who delivered the eleventh Ward Lecture, and the naming of the first ten Charles A. Dana Scholars at Guilford. These Dana Scholars are: Brenda Louise Alexander of Burlington, N. C.; Miriam Margaret Almaguer of Miami, Florida; James Franklin Childress of White Plains, N. C.; Douglas Purnell Connor of Lansdowne, Penna.; Maurice Terrell Raiford of Daytona Beach, Fla.; Linda S. Sheppard of High Point, N. C.; Steen Holst Spove of Gentofte, Denmark; Dora Anderson Smith of Goldsboro, N. C.; Penelope Lee Smith of High Point, N. C. and Doris McDaniel Walker of Greensboro, N. C.

To be eligible for consideration, men and women students must have completed a full academic year or its equivalent as a duly enrolled student at Guilford College, and must have demonstrated marked quality of character and evidence of leadership, and have acquired a minimum academic quality average of 2.00.

Dana Scholars receive grants in the amount of the full tuition for the academic year. The scholars will enroll in and attend regularly a two-hour seminar each week during the academic year, under the leadership of carefully selected professors. The seminar will explore the philosophy of liberal education at Guilford College, the core curriculum, the unity of all knowledge, and the interdisciplinary character of learning.

A Dana Scholar may be reappointed each successive year during his college career, provided academic standards are maintained and there is evidence of increasing maturity, of growth in understanding of the total college program and purpose, and of the development of effective leadership.

Capital Campaign Continues

The campaign for funds for the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building continued through the fall with success in many areas. More detailed reports of the status of this campaign will be published in the April issue, and special notes of certain individual gifts will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Grading for the Armfield Athletic Center

The Mary Pemberton Moon Meeting Room

It is with deep appreciation that Guilford College announces a special gift of $25,000 from Mrs. Nellie Moon Taylor of Danbury, N. C. toward the construction of the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building now being built on the Guilford Campus. This gift will be used to establish a traditional Quaker Meeting Room in the new building in memory of Mrs. Taylor's mother, Mary Pemberton Moon, a noted Quaker preacher during the latter part of the 19th Century. The memorial will be named "The Mary Pemberton Moon Meeting Room" and will be an especially interesting part of the Religious Education Wing of the building scheduled for completion in September, 1961.

Mary Pemberton Moon felt a call to preach shortly after her marriage in 1865 to Jonathan Moon and began her ministry in Kansas. During her lifetime she traveled widely among Friends in Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Kansas, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Colorado and Oklahoma, speaking to Friends and to other denominations as well. Nine years after the death of Jonathan Moon in 1883 she was married to Franklin Meredith, who with her served a number of pastorates, spent several years working among the Indians, and set up the Yearly Meeting in California. Their later travels included Mexico and Canada, England, Ireland, Norway and Denmark.

In the early years of Mary Moon's ministry her eldest daughter, Nellie Moon, accompanied her mother on a journey that brought them to Danbury in Stokes County, N. C. where Nellie met Spottiswood Taylor, who became her husband.

In her long life, Nellie Moon Taylor has been active in her community and has been acclaimed "the First Lady of Stokes County." She has also made many contributions to Quakerism and to Guilford College through regular attendance at sessions of the North Carolina Yearly Meeting and at occasions sponsored by the college. Because of her deep interest in Guilford, maintained since she entered the institution in 1878, and in recognition of her contribution to its life and spirit, she was given the Distinguished Alumni Award in 1958.

Six of her nine children were Guilfordians: Dr. J. Spottiswood Taylor, Joseph John Taylor, Mary Anna Taylor, Paul T. Taylor, Grace Taylor Rodenbough, and Luna Taylor Bradshaw. A granddaughter, Nancy Kate Taylor, is presently a sophomore at the college.

The Mary Pemberton Moon Meeting Room will be an adaptation of an early Friends Meeting Room and will be used extensively in Guilford's religious education program for undergraduates majoring in that field, as well as for the graduate program in religion leading to the master's degree. According to President Milner this room will have great significance to the college and to Quakerism in North Carolina in that it will not only preserve the memory of an outstanding Friend and minister, but will also establish permanently the traditional atmosphere of Quaker worship.

Esso Foundation Grant

Guilford College has received from Herbert Carson, representing the Esso Education Foundation, a check for $2,000. This grant is unrestricted and is part of an annual program initiated in 1955. Since that time the Esso Education Foundation has granted a total of $9,465,644 to 494 privately operated educational institutions. The 1960-61 total exceeds $1,600,000.

Mr. Carson, who made the presentation on behalf of the Esso Education Foundation, is the Greensboro representative for Humble Oil and Refining Company.

'60 Homecoming Is Held "Away From Home"

Homecoming 1960 was a unique occasion in some respects. Hobbs Field, scene of pageantry and fierce athletic contests in the past, contained brick, lumber, and huge amounts of dirt. The Auditorium-Religious Education-Music Building was under construction!

The activities were re-scheduled at Guilford High School Stadium. A bitter cold, rainy day failed to dampen the spirit of the huge throng in attendance, and even as the Quakers bowed in defeat 15-7, the crowd was a lively one. Betsey Winesett, '62, of Pinnacle was crowned Queen of Homecoming.

The Greensboro-Guilford County chapter of the College Alumni Association were hosts at the college union for a barbecue after the game which was enjoyed by all. A well attended dance and reception, sponsored by the Student Women's Athletic Association, completed a successful day of events. Pictures on these pages tell a part of the story.

Quaker supporters on hand in spite of bitter weather were Ben Baker, '51, left to right: Royce Angel, '57, and James Crumpler, '53.

Barbecue is served by Shannon McKenzie, '52, to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Talbert of Guilford College, while Walter Cable, '20, Thornton Hawkins, '52, and Hardy Carroll, '44, wait for their turn in line.

Howard "Loosey" Coble, '53, explains the situation to friend and James and Gail Holderby Crumpler, '53 and '55 (left) during barbecue at College Union.

Jennie Montgomery Goes to Rome

Mrs. Jennie S. Montgomery, clinical social worker, at the VA Hospital, departed from Salisbury on December 24 to attend the 10th International Conference on Social Work to be held in Rome, Italy, January 8-15.

Mrs. Montgomery, the only person attending from North Carolina, will join 299 other delegates from the United States.

A member of the VA Social Work Service staff since June, 1958, she received her A.B. degree from Guilford College and her M.S.W. from the University of North Carolina School of Social Work. She is married to John R. Montgomery, chief chemist at the North Carolina Finishing Company.

Mrs. Montgomery has been given leave by the VA Hospital to enable her to make the trip.

At the New York Alumni Meeting, Elizabeth Marshall Morris, '44, discusses Guilford with Henry Tew, '27.

Guilfordians Are Participants

Two Guilfordians participated in meetings of the North Carolina Chapter of the American Association of Teachers of French, German, Spanish and Portuguese on October 22, 1960, at the University of North Carolina.

Robert Marshall of Statesville High School, member of the Class of 1950 at Guilford, addressed the Spanish teachers on "Aspects of Foreign Language Teaching in the Elementary Schools of Statesville."

At the same session, Hiram H. Hiltz, Professor of Spanish at Guilford College, spoke on "Cuba in September, 1960." Professor Hiltz's five years' residence and continued interest in Cuba, his travels there and his broad range of experience in Latin American affairs have made him widely sought as a speaker. His wise interpretations of Latin American actions and attitudes make his remarks of great value to those who are privileged to hear him. In September Hiram Hiltz visited Cuba and upon his return prepared a paper which has been widely acclaimed for its insight. Space in the Journal does not permit publication of this document.

By Sid Hart

Well into the basketball season, the Guilford College Quakers basketballers had not copped a win for coach Clyde Parrish.

Says Clyde, "We look well at times, but the freshmen make enough mistakes to lose a close game." At the present time, the starting five, beginning with little Jon Burwell, 5'10" guard, and all conference Don Lineberry, is rounded out with freshmen Don Kuzma, 6'2", Wayne Wyckoff, 6'5", and Ken Ward, 6'6". One of the big problems is the lack of a pivot man. No Quaker has played the position in high school. "A good big man is a must for the position," says Parrish. Even though he still has optimism for the present season, Coach Parrish is already looking for this needed player.

Bright spots thus far have been the steady performance of Jon Burwell, the rebounding of Dan Kuzma, and the shooting of Wayne Wyckoff. Looking to the future, Wyckoff appears to have the makings of a great conference player. Ward has not yet shown predicted form, but freshman Mike Allred, 6'1", Monty Milner 6'0", and speedy guard Edlwood Parker 5'9", promise fireworks for future Guilford spectators.

Also encouraging has been the play of Ted Tighman 6'4", Brooks Haworth 6'1", Tom Whitely 6'0", and Howard Braxton 6'0".

Quakers Win Over ACC!

For the first time since Jan. 5, 1960, the Guilford College Quakers marked up a win as they spurted in the second half to dump Atlantic Christian 79-73 here tonight.

After being behind by a large margin in the first half the Quakers made a move in the second half, and continued the assault in the final 20 minutes to mark up their first win after 24 straight losses. To date this season Guilford owns a 1-12 mark.

Atlantic Christian now is 2-4 in conference action.

The Bulldogs broke fast from the start and raced to a 17-4 lead. Guilford slowly began a comeback, and narrowed the margin to five points by the halfway mark, 36-31.

With 12 minutes left in the contest Wayne Wyckoff and Don Lineberry combined to put the Quakers in front for the first time at 50-46. The Quakers held on to the lead throughout the remainder of the game, with the biggest spread being in the closing score.

Jon Burwell was the big spark for the Quakers. With less than two minutes left in the game Burwell put on a dribbling exhibition that brought the spectators to their feet.

Quaker Club Activities

Abner Alexander, '52, Chairman of the Guilford College Quaker Club, announces that the drive for members will continue through April 1, 1961.

"We have made progress," says Ab, "but we need all the help we can get from those who wish a strong athletic program at Guilford. We are proud of our teams and our coaches, who have represented our College well."

In discussing the situation Abner said, "We are getting every co-operation from our college administration. If we wish to stay in the prestige-laden North State Conference, it will take continuing support from interested Alumni."

The group chairman stated that a newsletter has gone to the Quaker Club mailing list, outlining progress and statistics to date. "Any interested person not receiving one should contact the college, as it outlines the programs, aims, objectives, and general philosophy of our organization," said Abner. "Quaker Club Memberships now apply toward Century and A Quarter Membership," he said.

Crownfield's Textbook Is Published

Dr. Frederic R. Crownfield, Head of the Department of Religion at Guilford College, was honored by the library on Monday, November 21, on the occasion of the publication of his textbook, A Historical Approach to the New Testament, by Harper & Brothers, Inc. A reception was held at four o'clock in the Fine Arts Room of the Guilford College Library and invitations were extended to Friends ministers and to teachers of religion in neighboring colleges. Faculty members and residents of the Guilford community, as well as a number of librarians in this area were also invited.

Dr. Crownfield's book is intended for college classes studying the New Testament and is to be used with the Bible. It aims to acquaint students with the problems, methods and results of scholarly study in this field. The emphasis is on what the original authors were trying to say in the context of their times. This necessitates the consideration of literary and historical problems presented by the sources, and the social and religious background of the times, both Jewish and Hellenistic.

President Milner has noted that the new college text further establishes the strength of the Department of Religion at Guilford College, which is organized not only for the teaching of undergraduate courses but for graduate work leading to the M.A. degree.

Rosa Dickhut Distinguished Kansas Legislator

Rosa Been Dickhut, '13, has completed three distinguished terms in the Kansas State House of Legislature. Mrs. Dickhut reports a very fruitful and interesting life since leaving Guilford.

"God has been very good . . . years at Guilford have meant much," she relates. She moved to Kansas in 1910 with her family, helping form a Quaker Community in Scott County. She taught school in Oklahoma and Kansas, and when 21, took 160 acres of land under the Homestead Act. She relinquished this when she married Clarence Dickhut, a farmer and stockman.

The Dickhuts raised two children, Wendell and Margaret who attended Kansas State University, and now live in Scott County. In 1952 Rosa Been Dickhut became the first woman to represent Scott County in the Legislature. She elected not to run again after three terms, during which she served on the Ways and Means, House and Grounds, Irrigation, and Horticulture Committees. Mrs. Dickhut is one of the many Guilfordians who have served with distinction in the field of government. However, her political life reflects only one facet of her very busy community life.

Says Mrs. Dickhut, "I truly hope to return to the campus soon!"

C. Elmer Leak, 1902, Makes Handsome Gift to Guilford

President Milner and Seth C. Macon, Chairman of the Greensboro Campaign for the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building, have announced with pleasure the gift of one hundred shares of Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company stock by C. Elmer Leak.

C. Elmer Leak has long been a faithful supporter of Guilford in all its projects and has maintained his interest in the college since he was a student, graduating in 1902.

A Tribute

In accepting the Distinguished Alumni Award in May 1960, the late Wilson Hobbs, a member of the Board of Trustees of Guilford College, a fine teacher known both for his scholarship and his humility, said he accepted the award not for himself but in memory of his family.

Several Guilfordians have known personally Wilson Hobbs' father and mother, Lewis Lyndon Hobbs and Mary Mendenhall Hobbs. However, for members of the present college generation who have known them by name only, the following excerpt from a letter of Corilla Lamson to her friend, Ellen Raiford Glenn '18, will be revealing:

"Woven all through their letters to Gertrude is such a beautiful love story—of a home where the presence of two rare spirits so lived, that the husband could say in reply to his wife's spoken wish that she could get things in good order: 'They are that way now, just fine. This is such a comfortable place I do not see how heaven could be any better.' Then her loving thought: 'Dear Fellow, he sees things that way, and I see the undone vast—I am glad home seems good to him. That is what I have been working for all these years.'

"Such love and appreciation is much needed in our homes today. What a joy it must have been to be invited to share its warm hospitality and absorb the rays as they shone from these lamps of wisdom, love and understanding."

This letter was found by Ellen Raiford Glenn in her copy of Letters to Gertrude (which Corilla Lamson had borrowed some time before) the day after Wilson Hobbs death when she was looking through her copy of the book to find references to Wilson Hobbs.

In Memoriam

ALAN WILSON HOBBS

Class of 1907

Alan Wilson Hobbs, as he received the Distinguished Alumni Award, 1960.

Alan Wilson Hobbs, '07, died suddenly of a heart attack on October 20, 1960, at his winter home in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. His cheerful presence and wise counsel will be particularly missed by the Board of Trustees of Guilford College, on which he served continuously since 1932.

A son of the first president of Guilford and Mary Mendenhall Hobbs for whom Mary Hobbs Hall is named, Wilson Hobbs was destined to be a Guilfordian from his birth. After his graduation from Guilford, Wilson Hobbs taught mathematics and directed athletics at Guilford College for several years, and then continued his education at Haverford College, and at Johns Hopkins University, where he received the Ph.D. He was an athlete during his college career and played professional baseball with the New York Yankees before accepting, in 1917, an appointment to the mathematics faculty of the University of North Carolina. In 1924 he was married to Nell Blair, then a librarian at the university, and in 1930, he was named the first dean of the College of Liberal Arts at Chapel Hill. He remained in this office until 1946, when he withdrew to teaching, from which he has been retired only a few years.

Dr. Hobbs continued his interest in athletics, being chairman of the university's Athletic Council continuously for twenty years. In 1941-42 he was president of the Southern Conference, which he also served at various times in other capacities.

A member of the American Mathematical Society, Dr. Hobbs was co-author of the book, "Theory of Relativity," and published many pamphlets dealing with mathematical subjects. At the Alumni Banquet during Guilford College's 1960 commencement program, Alan Wilson Hobbs was given the Distinguished Alumni Award by his fellow Guilfordians.

He is survived by his wife; one son, William G. Hobbs of Spartanburg, S. C.; one brother, Dr. R. J. M. Hobbs of Chapel Hill; and a sister, Mrs. R. D. Korner of Guilford College.

Ragan Estate Benefits Guilford

Guilford College has received $50,000 from the estate of Robert R. Ragan, former trustee and benefactor of the college who died December 21, 1955. The funds received from his estate will be added to the Amos and Martha Ragan Memorial Fund, bringing its total to $75,000.

Proceeds from this endowment fund are used to give financial assistance to Young Friends, both men and women, while they are students at Guilford College. Special consideration is given to Young Friends from the Trinity and Archdale communities. Income from the Ragan Fund is sufficient to provide material assistance to from ten to fifteen students each year.

Robert R. Ragan became a member of the Guilford Board of Trustees in 1941 and served with distinction until the time of his death. He was an outstanding citizen in the community where he lived and a devoted member of the Society of Friends. He was born on February 16, 1870 in the community known as Bloomington, near Archdale, N. C., and was educated at Springfield and Bush Hill High School, at Trinity College and the University of North Carolina. His interests were wide and extended into several fields, including the manufacture of furniture and textiles, hotel operations, and banking.

According to President Milner, the Amos and Martha Ragan Memorial Fund serves an exceptionally high purpose at Guilford College, and the recent addition to it is received with deep appreciation and respect for the memory of Robert R. Ragan.

"The Little Singers" Is A D. Waring Smith Project

A municipal venture that is receiving increasing interest throughout the country is "The Little Singers," directed by D. Waring Smith, '45, the Boys' Choir and Girls' Choir of Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Following are excerpts from a letter from the Guilford graduate, which describes the progress and accomplishments of the group:

"The Fort Lauderdale Boys' Choir was begun four years ago as an experiment to see just what a choir master could really do with talented and devoted students in one elementary school. We found that with work and extremely high standards we could command the school's activity. Soon we were invited to take the choir out of the school system and begin a city-wide professional choir. We did, and developed one of the few choirs that is privately owned. The

James Foundation Grant

Guilford College has received a grant of $25,000 toward the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building from the James Foundation of New York, Inc. This grant brings the total gift of this foundation to $50,000.00 for the building project.

The James Foundation of New York, Inc., organized in 1941, is a non-profit corporation under the membership corporation law of the State of New York. It administers funds accruing from the estate of the late Arthur Curtis James. During the calendar year 1959 this foundation authorized cash grants from income to charitable, religious and educational institutions throughout the U. S. in an amount totalling $2,457,000.00.

According to President Milner, the new James grant to Guilford brings the College's effort to secure funds for the new building closer to completion. The first James grant of $25,000 was made several years ago. Other foundations which have contributed to this project are the Charles A. Dana Foundation, the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation and the United States Steel Foundation.

Active campaigns are now being conducted among Guilford College alumni in many areas and the president stated that it is hoped to announce completion of the goal of $722,000.00 early in 1961. The building for which these funds are being raised is expected to be ready for use in September of 1961 and will be dedicated during that fall. It is the last major project in the 1957-62 development program leading toward Guilford's celebration of 125 years of continuous educational service in June, 1962.

Alumni Support Requested

Although there have been many encouraging developments with respect to the current campaign for funds, about which you will read herein, there also remains much to be done. The campaign continues. No matter how successful we are in different areas of development, the heart and core, the strategic area is alumni support. Increasing alumni support has been encouraging, but we still have a long way to go to reach the desired objectives. Annual Giving must continue, if we are to have a participating, active Alumni Association. Also, our goal of 1,000 Century and a Quarter members must be reached if we are to achieve our minimum objectives. At present we need approximately 350 members to reach this number, but many Guilfordians among the 1,500 on giving rolls (with Century and a Quarter credit) are close to qualification for inclusion on the scroll to be placed in the new Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building.

Guilford Receives Texaco Grant

Guilford College again has been selected by Texaco, Inc. as one of the privately financed United States colleges and universities to be included in the company's aid-to-education program. The grant of $1,500 is for the 1960-61 academic year, and is without restrictions as to its use.

Dr. Milner stated that, as in recent years, this most helpful grant will be used for Guilford's Tutorial Program, whereby outstanding scholars give counsel and aid to students who are less successful. children pay a monthly tuition for the training, and they rehearse from 4:30 p.m.-5:30 p.m. every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

"The choir has sung 78 programs including some state and national conventions that have met here in the past three years. They have given 7 major concerts and 19 television shows. This Christmas season we accepted 30 engagements to sing in this area including 6 television appearances on WPST-TV (Channel 10 in Miami).

"We organized a Girls' Choir along similar lines a year ago. This, according to the New York Public Library's Research Department, is very likely the only choir of its kind in existence.

These little singers, both boys and girls, sing Bach, Mozart, Brahms — and songs in several languages learned phonetically. It is a jolt to the dear souls who frequently ask them, condescendingly, if they know what they are really singing: they do!"

Waring Smith's teaching record includes a total of 7 years of Senior High School Choral Music at Columbia Military Academy, Columbia, Tennessee; Phillips High School, Birmingham, Alabama; and Sylacauga High School, Sylacauga, Alabama, and a total of 4 years teaching Junior High School Music with 2 years at Sylacauga, Alabama, and 2 years at Olson Junior High in Broward County, Florida.

Smith has a B.S. degree from Guilford; a B.M.Ed. from Birmingham Southern College; and half of the work for a master's degree at the University of Miami, in Coral Gables, Florida.

Guilford College Begins Its Century and a Quarter Year June 1, 1961

Charles A. Dana Makes $750,000 Challenge Offer

Charles A. Dana has offered Guilford College a challenge gift of $750,000.00, on condition that the business and industrial interests of Greensboro will provide $750,000.00 and that the Guilford College Trustees and interests outside Greensboro will provide an additional $750,000.00—for a total of $2,250,000.00.

This challenge has been accepted by a group of Greensboro industrial and business leaders to be known as the Dana Associates, and by the Guilford College Board of Trustees.

The purpose of the Dana Challenge is to make possible an expansion at Guilford College so that total enrollment may be increased from 650 to 850 students and the resident student body from approximately 425 to 650 students. According to Dr. Clyde A. Milner, the Dana Challenge is an unprecedented opportunity which will enable Guilford to serve the Greensboro community more effectively and to prepare for the rapidly increasing demand for college educational opportunities.

Physical facilities in this expansion program include a men's dormitory to house 254 students, and a women's dormitory to house 158 students. These dormitory additions will not only accommodate the increased number of students, but will relieve crowded conditions in existing dormitories and allow additional space for counselors. Also necessary are additions to the library to include enlarged stack areas and general purpose classrooms; an enlargement of the dining room so that 600 students may be served "family style"; and additions to the college power plant to accommodate these added facilities. Design features of all new construction will be compatible with existing buildings on the campus. Architects for the projects are McMinn, Norfleet & Wicker of Greensboro.

On a recent visit to Greensboro and Guilford College, Mr. Dana approved preliminary plans for the physical additions and inspected projects in which he has had special interest. He visited the Charles A. Dana Science Hall at the Greensboro Division of Guilford College, 501 West Washington Street. This structure was made possible by Dana's challenge gift of $150,000.00 which was met by the civic, business and industrial interests of the city. Dana also observed progress on the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building now under construction at the campus, for which he has also made substantial contributions.

Charles A. Dana Industrialist and Philanthropist

Construction of the new facilities is expected to begin in late summer of this year so that they will be ready for use at the opening of school in September, 1962.

Guilford College is now completing the development program begun in June, 1957, and announcement of success in the financial campaign for the campus auditorium building is expected at commencement exercises one full year ahead of schedule. Completion of the current projects will make possible immediate activity on the new Dana challenge.

According to President Milner, the new Dana challenge is especially significant, as it comes at the beginning of Guilford's 125th year of uninterrupted educational service. Special events of the 125th anniversary year will include Founders Day activities in late October, 1961, at which time the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building will be dedicated; Charter Day programs in January, 1962; and the Century and a Quarter Celebration in June, 1962.

What Must Guilford College Alumni Do To Meet The New Charles A. Dana Challenge? One Thing . . .

Guilfordians must complete the Century and a Quarter Development Program by Alumni Day, May 27, 1961. This must be done in order that the entire effort of the administration may be placed upon the enormous task of making the new Dana program possible.

Guilfordians have responded well to the campaigns of the Century and a Quarter Program, but it is not yet finished. Approximately $120,000 must be raised for the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building now under construction on the campus, and pictured here.

This can be done if a total of 200 Guilfordians who are able to do so will become Benefactors by making or increasing their pledges to $1,000 or more; and if a total of 1,000 Guilfordians will become Century and a Quarter Club members by making gifts of $125 or more. To date 120 names are listed for the Benefactors Scroll and 535 for the Century and a Quarter Scroll. However, many Guilfordians are within reach of these goals and can easily make certain that their names will be recorded on the bronze plaques in the handsome new building. Pledges may be made to extend through May 31, 1962, thus embracing two calendar years.

All Guilfordians are asked to consider the benefits they have received from education at Guilford College and to make possible not only the completion of the program upon which we embarked in 1957, but to clear the way for the inspiring new program for which Charles A. Dana has made his generous challenge offer. While Guilfordians will not be asked to engage in an active general campaign for the funds needed in the new program, wholehearted support of the campaign we are now completing will be an inspiration to business firms, foundations and special donors when they are solicited to meet the Dana challenge.

Results to date in the Century and a Quarter Program:

Four of the seven objectives have been achieved:

I—A sustained enrollment of 650.

II—A permanent endowment of at least $2 million.

On June 1, 1957, the endowment was $1,608,500.

By March 1, 1961, it had grown to $2,127,700.

III—A graduate program of special training for leaders in the Society of Friends, leading to the Three objectives are still in process:

V—Relocation and Building of Athletic and Recreational Areas to be known as The Armfield Athletic Center.

VI—Religious Education Auditorium-Music Building, to be dedicated October 27, 28, 29, 1961.

VII—Alumni Organization.

Minimum of 3,000 contributors, including at least 200 Benefactors

(Gifts and pledges of $1,000 or more).

1,000 Century and a Quarter Club members (Gifts of $125 to $1,000).

2,778 degrees have been conferred by Guilford College.

7,000 Guilfordians are currently listed, including present students and their parents.

Present Goal—To complete the Century and a Quarter Program by Alumni Day, May 27, 1961. What will you give and pledge at once to complete the Century and a Quarter Program one full year ahead of schedule?

In June, 1955, he retired with the title of Chancellor Emeritus.

To his A.B. from Guilford, Dr. Fitzgerald added an M.A. from the University of Tennessee, and eleven institutions have presented him with honorary doctor's degrees.

Dr. Fitzgerald's service to education has been outstanding and unselfish. Notably, he served as president of the Association of American Colleges, in which he was also vice-president and treasurer and on the board of directors. He served as president of the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and as a member of the National Commission on Accrediting. More recently, President Eisenhower named him chairman of the State Department Advisory Commission on Educational Exchange.

By Sid Hart

In retrospect, the 1960-61 football and basketball seasons were not without encouragement. Coach Herbert Appenzeller's gridmen performed in fine fashion all year, but victory eluded them by narrow margins on many Saturdays. There were no humiliating romps, no playing of second and third teams against the Quakers!

Coach Appenzeller points out that the 1961 season is a question mark. "You can't lose boys like Wayne Henley (little All-American, All-Conference), Harold James (All-Conference) and Larry Younts (All-Conference) without feeling it. We must depend on some freshmen to give us good performances if we play representative football."

The basketball team was a disappointment to some who felt the New Jersey trio of Dan Kuzma, Wayne Wyckoff, and Ken Ward could step in and play North State caliber ball in their freshmen year. Coach Clyde Parrish gambled on several combinations in the interest of building a solid unit from the lettermen and freshmen. At one point, when the Quakers seemed ready to roll, he lost vital strength due to ineligibility.

Although the much bemoaned lack of the "big man" still plagues the Quakers, as 6' 6" is the tallest height, there are brighter days ahead. Coach Parrish uncovered a potential star in Mike Allred 6' 1", of Mt. Airy, North Carolina, and he feels that Dan Kuzma and Ken Ward, with a year's experience, will off-set the loss of Don Lineberry. Wayne Wyckoff is expected to exceed expectations, as he closed the season strongly.

Baseball

The Quaker baseball team is off to a slower start than the torrid 1960 beginning, but appears to be basically more solid than a year ago. Stuart Maynard has found a pitching star in Larry Gill, and a shortstop in freshman Elwood Parker. Vigorous competition for all positions is evident. Veterans Brodie Baker, Jim Stutts, Conrad Parker, Bob O'Daniel, Ed Kelly, and Bobby Hodges, are being pressed by Mickey Faulk, Bobby Johnson, Dan Kuzma and other freshmen. Currently the Quakers are 3-3 in the Conference.

Quaker Club Activities

The Guilford College Quaker Club, revitalized last year in the interest of added support for the Quaker Athletic teams, has plans in progress for the next year, says Ab Alexander '52, Chairman.

At this point, there are just fewer than three hundred regular and sponsor memberships representing a total of $3,830.00 in cash and pledge to the program.

"We must make an effort to increase this to a minimum of $5,000.00 by June 1, 1961," said Abner, "If we are to meet our obligations. Also, we must raise our goals for next year. Our College has cooperated in every way, and the program lies squarely in our hands. We need gifts of $10-$25 and up to insure a representative program."

Grady Love to Be Honored

Dr. Grady E. Love, Director of the Greensboro Division of Guilford College, will receive an honorary citation at the commencement exercises at Wingate College, N. C. on May 28, 1961. The citation is given in recognition of his outstanding service to that institution and to education in general. Love has been active in the rapid growth and development of the Greensboro Division of Guilford College at 501 West Washington Street since its founding, and continues to direct its activities in a sound and vigorous manner.

New Danforth Associates

Dr. and Mrs. Carroll Feagins, members of the philosophy and language departments, respectively, have been appointed Danforth Associates on the Guilford Campus for the next two years, succeeding Floyd and Lueretia Moore, and will attend the annual orientation program for new Danforth Associates at Camp Miniwanca, Shelby, Mich., early in September. The Moores will now join Dr. and Mrs. David Stafford as senior associates.

Milner Delivers Ricks Lecture

Clyde A. Milner, Guilford's president, was honored this year by an invitation to give the third Ricks Memorial Lecture, which he presented on March 23 at the Friends Meeting House in Richmond, Virginia. This annual lecture was established as a memorial to J. Hoge Ricks, '05, distinguished judge of Richmond, Virginia. Judge Ricks served for many years as a member of the Guilford College Board of Trustees, and his sister, Katharine Ricks, is Librarian Emeritus of the college.

The first lecture in the series was "Unity According to the Experience of Friends," given by Henry J. Cadbury. The second, entitled "The Witness of Hoge Ricks," was given by Dr. Elton Trueblood. Dr. Milner's subject was, appropriately, "The Role of Education in Quakerism."

In his presentation President Milner called attention to Friends' educational heritage, as a continuing concern of the Society for the expression of spiritual values in daily life. Essential emphases here, he said, are "the establishment of a distinctive community; the spiritual motivation of the educational process; the dedication and concern of teachers and staff; the strong appeal to conscience—moral suasion; and the preparation for a ministry of life." Quakers in the future, Dr. Milner said, must apply "the proved verities of their educational experience" to emerging situations in all parts of the world. Among the goals for such a program he suggested: "the education of the whole man, and the extension of the intellectual horizons of students to include knowledge and understanding of the peoples of the world." Also needed are "the preparation of a carefully-planned program to train students for alternative service" and "the creation of an educational community where 'life is lived as it should be, not as it is.'" Dr. Milner indicated there is every reason to believe that the future of Friends' education should continue to fulfill the promise of its past and present, if Friends will meet the challenge of today in the spirit and commitment that has motivated Quakerism throughout its history.

Richmond Alumni Meeting

Guilfordians in Richmond, Va. enjoyed a dinner at Thalheimer's dining room with twenty in attendance, on March 24th. Katharine Ricks '04, Librarian Emeritus of Guilford, arranged details, and Reginald Roberts presided. President Clyde A. Milner was the special guest and speaker. This enjoyable occasion followed Dr. Milner's presentation of the Ricks Memorial Lecture at the Richmond Friends Meeting House on the previous evening.

Elmer Leak

Makes

Generous

Contribution

C. Elmer Leak, Class of 1902, has made gifts of stock valued at more than $10,000.00 toward construction of the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building now nearing completion. This generous contribution will be used to furnish an appropriate feature of the building, as designated by the donor.

During his collegiate days, Elmer Leak was a very active, "all-round," and popular student. He belonged to the Debating Society; he took part in dramatic presentations; he was active in the Literary Society; he was devoted to athletics and himself played football.

He has had a long and distinguished career with Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company. Beginning in 1911 as clerk, he was made company secretary in 1931, vice-president the following year, and executive vice-president in 1947. Since his retirement from this office in 1951 he has been a member of the board of directors.

Elmer Leak's record of achievement in his chosen field and as an outstanding citizen has resulted in many honors, both from his company and the community.

Louise Brown Wilson Is Norfolk's "First Citizen"

Louise Brown Wilson '43, by virtue of a long list of civic achievements, including the founding of the Friends Meeting and aid in founding the Friends School, was selected as Virginia Beach's "First Citizen for 1960."

Presentation of the annual award was made at a banquet at the Dunes Hotel on February 28, 1961, to which the public was invited. Many weeks of balloting and screening of qualifications preceded this selection by the committee of the local service club which sponsors the award. According to George F. Darden, Jr., chairman of the First Citizen Committee, the interest and response for this year by the people of Virginia Beach far exceeded any previous year.

Selection of Mrs. Wilson was made on the basis of her many notable contributions to the community, the foremost being the founding of the Virginia Beach Friends Meeting in which she takes an active and vital part. She has gained recognition on a national scale by her many articles which have appeared in magazines and newspapers.

Her outstanding contribution to the educational welfare of the community is her leadership in estab-

50-Year Group Has Been Active

The fifty-year group has been very active during the current year. The major concern of the group has been the development of an informative brochure about the late Dr. Raymond Binford, President of the College 1918-1934. Many interested persons have contributed with writings about the life and works of Raymond Binford, with emphasis on his great contribution to Guilford College.

Alma Edwards '07, Chairman, and Alice White Mendenhall '08, Secretary, have been working with a committee including the Binford children, Dudley Carroll '07, Algie Newlin '21, Ada Fields '98, and Dr. William Wolfe '23.

The Alumni Office is co-operating in the project and hopes are that the booklet will be ready by commencement time. The group has a stated objective of endowing a professorship in memory of Dr. Binford. The goal has been set for $200,000.00.

Discussing the professorship Dr. Clyde A. Milner said: "An endowed professorship, such as the Craven and Binford projects now being established at Guilford College, represent not only an unusually fitting and distinguished memorial, but a peculiarly valuable sustaining contribution to the institution. The benefits of such a fund extend far into the future for many generations of students and faculty yet to come. Such gifts stabilize and implement the entire instructional program of the college."

Alumni Day Is Carefully Planned

John Googe '50 will preside at the reunion luncheon at 12:30 p.m. in Founders Hall. Howard Cannon '31, Alumni Association President, will preside at the traditional Alumni Banquet at 6:30 p.m. in Founders Hall. The high point of Alumni Banquet will be the formal induction of the graduating class into the Alumni Association. The induction will be performed by Mildred Marlette '37, Associate Professor of English. A highly significant event will be the presentation of the Annual Distinguished Alumni Award given by the Alumni Association to an Alumnus who has distinguished himself by contributions to the college and his community. The announcement of the Alumni Award will be made at the evening program also. Returning Alumni are invited to remain for the Baccalaureate and Graduation Ceremonies on Sunday, May 28th, and May 29th.

Era Lasley '13 is Reunion Chairman, Charles Hendricks '40 is Nominating Committee Chairman, Grace Kinney Maddrey '30 will serve as Hostess at the traditional Alumni House Tea and Lena Marshburn '27 is serving as Hospitality Chairman in charge of the registration hour at the College Union.

Lottie Marshall Robertson To Be Honored

Through a generous gift to Guilford College, a room in the new Religious-Education-Auditorium-Music Building on the campus will carry the name and perpetuate the memory of Lottie Marshall Robertson of White Plains, N. C. Six of her seven children attended Guilford College, as did nine of her grandchildren.

Lottie Marshall Robertson, born August 27, 1867, lived a long life of great usefulness and died at the age of eighty-eight. At eighteen she began to teach school, and she helped to raise funds for the first graded school at White Plains. As a Friends minister she served widely, helping to organize meetings at Ivy Hill, Union Hill and Ararat. She was postmistress of her town for fifteen years and a civic leader in all good causes, especially that of temperance.

Although widowed in 1913 after twenty three years of marriage she never ceased to give time to the discouraged, the sick, and the dying. She never wavered in her concern for Quaker education, and through her influence—and that of her sons and daughters—hundreds of Northwest North Carolina young people have been helped on their way to a college education. Many attest that but for the

91 Seniors Receive Degrees

Dr. Rufus H. Fitzgerald, chancellor emeritus of the University of Pittsburgh and a 1911 graduate of Guilford College, was the principal speaker at the commence exercises on Monday morning, May 29th, at which 91 seniors received diplomas.

Deering the "moral backwash" of the recent wars, and reflecting upon the history of education in America, Dr. Fitzgerald stressed the importance of church and private academic institutions. Too often, today, right and wrong are conceived as conditioned by circumstances, and it is imperative that a sound moral basis be rediscovered. To this end, the student's college years are especially formative and the church-related college is particularly valuable in helping to establish sound ethical and moral principles.

The Rev. Hubert C. Noble, general director of the Commission on Higher Education of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States, delivered the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday, May 28th.

He emphasized the importance of learning in the framework of Christianity and insisted that all Christian colleges must be free from domination. "They may serve the church, the community and the state, but they must be free from domination by any of these."

Both services were held on the main lawn of the campus.

Dr. Clyde A. Milner, instead of his traditional remarks to Alumni at the Reunion Luncheon, yielded the floor to Charles A. Dana, nationally prominent industrialist and benefactor of the college.

Alumni Day Draws Crowd

Alumni Day 1961 was a success. Some eight hundred guests attended one or more of the functions planned for returning Alumni and friends, and many special features pleased those in attendance.

Dominating the day were returning members of the class of 1911. Headed up by C. C. Smithdeal, the committee work led to the recognition at the reunion luncheon of the group as having the largest percentage of their class present. Noel West '11 received a gift for coming the longest distance, from Laguna Beach, California. (He received this honor after Edward Berey '51 had traffic difficulties getting away from Seattle, Washington. Said Ed in a wire of regrets, "Guilford has more alumni than money. Please accept this extra century and a quarter gift in my stead.")

Rufus Fitzgerald '11, Chancellor Emeritus of the University of Pittsburgh, made the Commencement address, and John Whitaker '11, received the Distinguished Alumni award. John Whitaker delighted the graduating seniors and alumni at the Alumni Banquet with his humorous talk, following presentation of a gold pen to him by classmate C. C. Smithdeal on behalf of the Alumni Association.

Guilfordians were pleased at the luncheon by surprise honored guests. Dr. Clyde A. Milner yielded the floor to Walter Mann, Dana Foundation Trustee; and Charles A. Dana, Dana Foundation Chairman and benefactor of the college. Mr. Dana said to the Alumni gathered, "I have heard many fine tributes, and have seen presentation of many gifts. Now, I want my present. We want to make Guilford into a greater institution, and I'm going to help. When we achieve this, this will be my present."

Summer School Record Is Set

Summer School enrollment at the college this year is the largest in the history of Guilford College. A total of 242 students are registered on the campus and 250 at the Greensboro Division.

Of those engaged in study on the campus 163 are men and 79 are women; 121 are in residence and 111 are day students.

New Alumni Officers

After a record ballot by mail, conducted among Guilford College Alumni, Officers for the 1961-62 term were announced at the annual Alumni Banquet. William Linwood Beamon '32, was elected president; Charles Milner '33, was elected vice president; and four members were chosen for service on the association's executive committee. They were Grace Taylor Rodenbough '17, Sara Richardson Haworth '17, Herbert Schoelkopf '48, and William B. Smith '60. Haworth and Rodenbough were incumbents.

Returned to the trustees of the Alumni Foundation were Charles Hendricks '40 and Grace Taylor Rodenbough '17; while Paul Edgerton was re-elected as trustee of the Alumni Loan Fund.

Those who are participating in the Danforth summer grants this year are as follows: Herbert T. Appenzeller, Director of Athletics, study toward the doctorate in education at Duke University; Hiram H. Hilty, Professor of Spanish, study toward the doctorate at Duke University; Thomas J. Moore, Assistant Professor of Business Administration and Secretarial Studies, study toward the doctorate at the University of North Carolina; Jerry M. Alva Lindley Is Praised Alva Lindley '08, was recently lauded for his effort in the campaign for funds for Wilmington Friends School, Wilmington, Delaware. The campaign goal was set at $1,250,000, but the goal had been exceeded in February, 1961.

Alva Lindley was General Secretary to the YMCA of Wilmington, Delaware from 1919 to 1953. Upon his retirement at that time he began a renewed participation in YMCA and church work. He helped organize the local USO organization; and the local Council of Churches was organized under his leadership in 1920. Alva has been a member of Rotary for forty years, and has served as Chairman of the Board of Managers of Wilmington Friends School for six years. He is married to Guilfordian Alice Woody Lindley '09.

A Tribute to J. Franklin Davis and His Family

Delivered by Algie I. Newlin at the Alumni Luncheon, May 28, 1961

Guilfordians who have borne the name Davis have played an honored and conspicuous role in the drama of Guilford's history; in the faculty, in the student body and as alumni in the life of communities widely scattered over the country. Their names fill an appreciable space in the Directory of Guilford College—and that does not take into account those of Davis descendants who carried other names.

The name "Davis" means "beloved," and we see this quality in full flower in J. Franklin Davis and in the members of his immediate family. They have contributed richly to Guilford College, and they draw our affection and admiration in rich measure. To those Guilfordians graduated more than thirty years ago—and especially to those of us who were here forty years ago or more—the name "Professor Davis" needs no identification. That appellation is as clearly defined in our minds as Founders Hall or a college diploma. Everyone who traveled the full course to a Guilford degree came under his tutelage.

Some of Professor Davis' students never came to know him intimately. To many of them he was an enigma; a person who seemed cold, aloof, even gruff. But those who came to know him well found him sympathetic, kind and tender, as well as a truly great scholar. One semester I was the only student in his first year Greek class, but just for me he rode horseback to the campus, hitched his horse to a tree near King Hall and met me as regularly each scheduled class period, and as gladly, as if the class had been a large one. As he divided his time between the Greek language and critical Biblical study, he was, I found, at his greatest in scholarship, in spiritual leadership and in kindness.

J. Franklin Davis stands in the central position of a Davis family which has been connected with this center of learning since its beginning in 1837. His mother, Anna Henley, was one of the fifty students in the first student body in the fall of that year. His father, Henry Davis, entered the school the following year. His granddaughter, Margaret Davis, daughter of Henry and Irene Davis, graduated in the Class of 1960. Professor Davis was a student in New Garden Boarding School from 1866 to 1871, and when Guilford College began its career in 1888 Franklin Davis was one of the nine members of that historic first faculty who had the courage, the ability and the consecrated determination to launch the infant institution well on the road to its present position. These nine great souls did all the teaching and, in addition, all the administrative work. For the next forty-two years Franklin Davis was an important member of the Guilford College faculty.

His three children all received the bachelor's degree at Guilford: Henry graduated in 1909 and then went on to receive a degree from Haverford College; Margaret Davis Winslow also graduated in 1909, and it is to her that we are indebted for the story of the Davis family, dedicated to her grandchildren and entitled "A Gift From Grandmother," published in 1958. It is a fine and valuable contribution to the history of Guilford College as well as to the history of the Davis family. Her daughter, Anna, followed the ancestral path to Guilford College. Professor Davis' youngest daughter, Anna Davis McArthur, graduated in 1913. Her daughter, Mary Laura McArthur, is a member of the Class of 1940. One niece of Professor Davis was a student here from 1901 to 1903, and her daughter, Mary Alice Futrell Denny, is a member of the Class of 1930.

The life of Professor Davis had other close ties to the life and spirit of Guilford College. His first wife, Laura Mendenhall, the mother of the three children, died when Anna was a baby. She was the daughter of Nereus Mendenhall, the great scholar, teacher, doctor, engineer, who stands high in the history of this institution and in the history of North Carolina. Laura Mendenhall studied at New Garden and later taught English in New Garden Boarding School.

His second wife, Mary E. Mendenhall, studied here and was a member of the famous first faculty as a teacher of English. She also served as Librarian, as Secretary of the Faculty, and as a member of the Committee of Three which was responsible for the building of New Garden Hall, now known as Mary Hobbs Hall.

His last wife, Josephine Rhoades, taught music at Guilford for two years, from 1913 to 1915. She is now living near Philadelphia. For this last wedding, Professor Davis went to his closest friend, President Hobbs, and said, "Lyndon, will thee stand with me at my wedding as thee has in my previous weddings?" Dr. Hobbs replied, "Well, Frank, I will be glad to do so, but I want it clearly understood that this must be the last."

So the life and work of every member of J. Franklin Davis' family were intimately merged into the life stream of Guilford College, either as student or teacher, or both.

Franklin Davis was born on July 4, 1850. The next twenty-five years were tragic years in the history of the land in which he lived. They included four years of the bloodiest war ever fought on the American Continent. The war was followed by lean years in North Carolina, but in spite of the hardships of the times he lifted himself by his bootstraps to a position of scholarship which should challenge every Guilford student and faculty member. Beginning under the tutelage of Nereus Mendenhall, in Deep River's Little Monthly Meeting School, he went to New Garden Boarding School, then to Westtown Boarding School. After graduating at the head of his class of 1875 at Haverford College, he studied at Johns Hopkins University, received his master's degree from Haverford in 1879 and then did graduate study in Leipzig and Strassbourg Universities. Among the studies he pursued were German, English, Anglo-

A Message From Your New Alumni President

Dear Guilfordians:

I accept the office of President of the Alumni Association with humility and with full realization of the tremendous task that is before us. I can't recall a time in Guilford's history that there has been such opportunity for growth, and such an important need for services of all the alumni. I think we are truly faced with a "New Frontier" in Guilford's history. It is my desire that more alumni think seriously about our college and help support it every year, because Guilford has meant much to all of us. It is a tribute to Dr. Milner that Guilford is on the threshold of such tremendous growth and prestige.

I hope to attend many of the local alumni meetings, and I will always try to be available to assist local alumni chapters in any way I can. I wish to thank all of you who have responded so generously during the past two years to the many calls for financial support. I hope more and more will join in the crusade to help make Guilford an even greater college.

Sincerely,
W. L. Beamon '32

Guilford Is Growing Be A Part Of Her Growth

Faculty Members Retire

Eva G. Campbell

Now Professor Emeritus of Biology, Eva G. Campbell retired this year after 37 years of skillful, devoted service on the Guilford College faculty. After earning an A.B. from Ohio Wesleyan and an A.M. and Ph.D. from Ohio State University, she had further graduate study at the University of Michigan and the Woods Hole Marine Biological Laboratory.

Many distinguished doctors, medical technicians and teachers of biology credit Dr. Campbell with starting them on the road to professional competence and success. Through classroom instruction and laboratory techniques she led them to acquire intellectual discipline; and her personal encouragement and inspiration supported them over the years. She corresponds widely and helpfully with a large number of these students who received their start under her careful instruction.

Philip W. Furnas

Philip W. Furnas retired this spring, becoming Professor Emeritus of English, after 34 years of teaching on the faculty at Guilford College. He came to the college in 1927; his A.B. was from Earlham, with his A.M. and Ph.D. from Harvard University. He also pursued further graduate study at the University of Wisconsin and at Columbia University.

Dr. Furnas' work was characterized by a deep love for his subject and unusual interest in his students. Through his encouragement many writers received their initial stimulus to creative effort, and many other students were given a love for good reading and writing that will always enrich their lives. His interest in the history of the meaning and structure of words delighted his classes, while his personal concern for his students' welfare made fast friends of them over the years. He is frequently called upon to officiate at their marriages and also corresponds widely with many of them.

Gay H. Spivey

Gay H. Spivey, who retired this year from her position as Assistant Librarian at Guilford, came to the college in 1955. Her preparation included the B.E. from Woman's College and the B.S. in Library Science from the University of North Carolina. Her work on the campus was characterized by an unusual gift for friendly interest in everyone, as well as special helpfulness to students and faculty alike. The attractive displays so carefully arranged each week, just inside the north entrance, were the work of Mrs. Spivey and revealed her interest and enthusiasm for everything connected with Guilford College.

Tribute To J. Franklin Davis

Saxon, Romance languages, and later Sanskrit and Hebrew. His teaching experience began in the public school at Mt. Airy. After his graduate work he taught English for two years at Haverford, a position which he left to become a member of Guilford College's first faculty.

In scholarship Professor Davis was perhaps unsurpassed by his contemporaries or by any in succeeding generations. As President Hobbs said: "He (Professor Davis) passionately loved learning in any and all its phases or varied subjects—the Latin and Greek and German and English languages and the literature in them all; mathematics, philosophy, ancient and modern; but most of all, perhaps, he became an authority in Biblical literature and its interpretation." His scholarship in this field, combined with his courage and fidelity to teaching the truth, brought strong criticism from more conservative Biblical interpreters. Tradition says that he was called before members of the Board of Trustees for indulging in "Higher Criticism." The members of the Board were so overwhelmed by his knowledge of the sources and versions of the Bible that he was left to pursue his own course in the teaching of Biblical Literature.

And so J. Franklin Davis, in the midst of a noble family stands in the front line of the all-time great of New Garden Boarding School and Guilford College.

Margaret Davis Winslow '07, daughter of J. Franklin Davis responded gracefully and appreciatively to the presentation honoring her father. She said in part, "It is a lovely thing to keep alive the memory of a noble person. . . . But it is far lovelier to perpetuate the principles of integrity, scholarship, and dedication which such a person courageously upheld. . . . Though Guilford today may be different from the Guilford that Franklin Davis knew, I believe that basically it is the same, upholding the same high standards to which he devoted his life and his work."

Work To Begin On First Units Of The Charles A. Dana Challenge Program

(See Cover Pictures)

Construction is scheduled to begin early in October on the first two projects included in the Charles A. Dana Challenge Program announced in the April, 1961 Alumni Journal. A men's dormitory for 256 students and a women's dormitory for 162 students will begin to rise this fall, and completion is expected for the beginning of the 1962-1963 academic year.

The men's dormitory features apartments for two councilors, as well as recreation and utility rooms. It will be a handsome edifice overlooking the greensward leading to the college lake. All furniture is built-in and each room is equipped with a lavatory. Its location will be in line with English and Cox Halls and beyond the tennis court area.

The women's dormitory will have facilities for one councilor and recreation and study rooms. Built-in furniture is also included in the women's dormitory. It is located west of Shore Hall and directly behind the College Union.

Architects for these two buildings are McMinn, Norfleet & Wicker of Greensboro. As the Journal goes to press, bids are scheduled to be received and contracts let.

Other construction projects in the Dana Challenge program are the enlargement of the dining room to accommodate 600, and enlargement of the library to include special reading rooms, reserve book rooms, greater stack space and other facilities to make the use of the library more effective. The power plant facilities at the college will also be increased to accommodate the new buildings.

The total Dana Challenge program is expected to involve approximately $2,250,000, of which $750,000 has been pledged by Mr. Dana and $750,000 by industrial and business interests in Greensboro. Guilford College trustees are charged with securing the remaining $750,000 from sources outside Greensboro.

Coming Events of Special Interest

The weekend of October 27, 28 and 29 will be one of great significance at Guilford College, marking, as it will, the dedication of the last major projects in the Century and a Quarter Development Program and the beginning of a new development era. The events scheduled for the dedication weekend are:

Dedication of The Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building

The Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building, which was completed and occupied early after the beginning of the current school year, will be formally dedicated in ceremonies at three-thirty on Friday afternoon, October 27th. Quakers, friends of Guilford College and a number of outstanding educators are cordially invited to attend and inspect the handsome new structure, which has seating capacity for one thousand in the main auditorium and appropriate assembly and classrooms for the religion and music departments.

Friday, October 27th, will also be observed as Founders Day, featuring the twelfth annual Ward Lecture in the auditorium at 8:00 p.m. The lecture this year will be delivered by George Loft.

George Loft is particularly well qualified to deliver the Ward Lecture at this moment in history when world tensions are unusually high. His contributions to Friends activities are widely known, and he has had experience in posts of international importance. At present George Loft is head of the Friends representation at the United Nations.

The Armfield Athletic Center

Guilfordians will return to the campus for Homecoming and dedication of the handsome new athletic facilities made possible by the family of William J. Armfield, Jr. A football game between Guilford and Newberry begins at two o'clock, and dedication ceremonies will take place during the half.

The Armfield Athletic Center includes the football field, track, and baseball diamond. This center will be dedicated in honor of William J. Armfield, Jr., prominent citizen of Asheboro, N. C., and in memory of his sons, Britt M. Armfield and William J. Armfield III.

Special guests at the dedication ceremonies will be William J. Armfield, Jr. and members of his family. Other Guilfordians who have been prominent in athletics at the college have also been invited.

Convocation Sermon

The final event of the three-day program which includes the dedication of the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building, Founders Day, and Homecoming, with the dedication of the Armfield Athletic Center, will be a convocation sermon to be delivered on Sunday morning, October 29.

The Century And A Quarter Year

Guilford begins its 125th year looking toward completion of the development program begun in 1957 and scheduled for completion in June of 1962 when the Century and a Quarter celebration will be observed.

Progress has been encouraging in the raising of funds for the last major project—the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building now in use. However, approximately $70,000 is still needed for this building and efforts are to be made to secure this sum from alumni and other sources during the coming year. As has been noted previously, there will be no active campaign among alumni for the new Dana Challenge program, but Guilfordians are urged to assist the college in reaching the Century and a Quarter goals.

A total of 700 Century and a Quarter Club members are on the rolls, having made gifts and pledges of $125.00 or more since April, 1957. A total of 130 Benefactors are listed, having made gifts and pledges of $1,000 or more. Both Benefactors and Century and a Quarter Club members will be honored by listings on bronze tablets in the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building.

Details of the Century and a Quarter celebration in June, 1962, will be published in the January Journal.

Ernestine C. Milner Is New Altrusa President

Ernestine C. Milner, professor of Psychology, Guilford College, was installed as Altrusa International's new president, July 27, 1961, at Altrusa International's biennial convention held in Denver, Colorado. She is shown above with Miss Elizabeth Beath, U. N. Observer from Altrusa International.

Born in Ohio, and educated in Troy, Ohio public schools, she was a graduate of Miami University, Oxford, receiving both the A.B. and B.S. degrees in four years, as well as being elected to Mortar Board and Phi Beta Kappa. She has a master's degree from Wellesley College, and took graduate work in psychology at Columbia University and Ohio State University.

Mrs. Milner's distinguished career began at Parson's College in 1924-26, where she was Dean of Women. After that, she became Dean of Women at Earlham College, 1926-1930. Her marriage to Clyde A. Milner in 1928 brought her to Guilford College, where she has been director of Personnel, Dean of Women, Associate Professor and now Professor and Head of Psychology.

Mrs. Milner has been a member of Altrusa International since 1933. Established in 1917, Altrusa is the pioneer of classified women's service clubs, having a membership of 16,000 executive and professional women. As president, Mrs. Milner places the main emphasis of the forthcoming two-year program on international relations, stressing several aspects.

First, the Grants-In-Aid program, with a budget of $28,787 for allocation next year, for the assistance of women students from other countries is being extended to the Near East. When the fund was established 16 years ago, the program encompassed only Latin American women. However, in 1955, the program was expanded to include women of Far Eastern Asia. As of June 30, 1961, $237,552 has been awarded in grants, ranging from $250 to $750.

The Frazier-Sellars Choir Room

The spacious choir room in the music wing of the Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building will be known as the Frazier-Sellars Choir Room. This designation as a memorial to Baxter Scales Sellars and his wife, Gertrude Sellars, is made possible through a generous gift from members of the Frazier family. Participants in the gift are Robert H. and Florence Hyde Frazier, Eugene and Luette Frazier Wager, Walter and Mary Power Frazier Lambeth, Jr., and Cyrus Clifford and Jeanette Fair Frazier, Jr.

The Frazier-Sellars Choir Room will serve as the scene of recitals, musical programs of an intimate nature, and as a practice room for Guilford's highly regarded A Cappella Choir.

Baxter Seales Sellars '12 and Gertrude Frazier Sellars '10 met as students at Guilford College. Throughout their lives they were loyal Guilfordians, maintaining their interest in the program of the college until December 12, 1959, when both died within a few hours of each other at Fort Lauderdale, Florida. On that afternoon the Sellars were addressing Christmas cards, and an envelope had been addressed to President Clyde A. Milner; with it was an uncompleted pledge card to the Guilford College development program. Since that time, members of the Frazier family have felt that it was the wish of the two loyal alumni that an appropriate gift to the college be made.

Oscar Sellars, a brother of Baxter, also attended Guilford College and was a member of the Class of 1907.

The family of Gertrude Frazier Sellars has long been associated with Guilford, and members of her

New Organ Given As Mitchell Memorial

The college administration announces with deep appreciation a gift from Rober, Warren, Arnold, Thomas, Joseph, Loman, Howard, and William Mitchell and Mary Mitchell Wilkins and Martha Mitchell Kirkman. These members of the Mitchell family have presented the college with the organ installed in the new Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building. This gift is made as a memorial to their mother, Louella Covington Mitchell.

According to Carl C. Baumback, head of the music department at Guilford College, this organ, an Allen two-manual instrument especially adapted for the new auditorium, will be a tremendously valuable piece of equipment. It will enable musical programs of a distinguished nature to be presented in the auditorium and will serve many other functions, both educational and cultural.

New Faculty Welcomed At Opening of College Year

Seven new faculty members joined the Guilford staff at the beginning of the Century and a Quarter year. Biographical information concerning Dr. Bryden, Mr. Boyd and Mr. Galloway appeared in the July 1961 issue of the Alumni Journal.

Dr. George W. Cobb, Associate Professor of English, holds the A.B. and M.A. from Emory University and the Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins. He was a minister for sixteen years, before becoming a college teacher. Since 1934 he has been a member of the Society of Friends and he has taught at Friends University and at Tusculum College as well as other institutions. He comes to Guilford from Westminster College, New Wilmington, Pennsylvania. He is married to a former teacher and their three children all have their college degrees and are now teachers.

Mrs. Marion Townend, Assistant Professor of English, earned her A.B. at Tufts University and her A.M. at Duke. Both of her children are now in graduate school. After her husband's death she returned to teaching. She comes to Guilford from Charlotte, N. C., where she has made her home for a number of years and been active in cultural and especially musical organizations, as she is a 'cellist. She has published considerable writing, particularly book reviews.

Dr. Ilma T. Morell, instructor in Mathematics, received her undergraduate degree from the Friends School (Colegio de los Amigos) in Holguin, Cuba and her Doctor of Science from the University of Havana in physics and mathematics. Her father was principal of the Friends School in Holguin for thirty-one years and her mother also taught there for many years. Her parents are making their home with Dr. Ilma Morell in one of the Frazier Apartments on the campus.

Mrs. Nell Swain Laws, Library Assistant, comes to Guilford College with considerable experience in library and secretarial work and will be a valuable addition to our library staff.

Binford "Tribute" Published

The Fifty-Year Group of the Alumni Association has completed a very important step toward realization of the two hundred thousand dollar Binford Memorial Professorship project.

An attractive booklet, entitled "A Tribute" has been published, largely through the efforts of Alma Edwards '07, past president of the group; and Elsie Mendenhall '09, secretary.

The publication, bound in a blue cover with silver embossed letters, has been circulated among Guilford College Alumni through the classes of 1917, and will be mailed to all classes which were at Guilford during Dr. Binford's tenure.

The booklet contains writings on Dr. Binford's life and works. Contributors include Miss Edwards, Mrs. Mendenhall, the Raymond Binford children, Margaret Davis Winslow '09, Dudley Carroll '07, and Algie I. Newlin '21. Ada Field '98 has served as consultant for the project.

A Message From The Alumni Secretary

The 1961-62 year will be the most eventful and challenging in the history of Guilford College. We are now using the handsome new Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building and the Armfield Athletic Center fields. Work is to be started at once on two new dormitories. Other projects known to all of us will follow. The end of the Century and a Quarter program will find the "Dana Challenge" program already in progress.

Where do Alumni fit in? First, we need to complete the Century and a Quarter objectives. Some three hundred additional members of the Century and a Quarter Club are needed to complete the goal of 1,000 by June, 1962. All members will be listed on a bronze plaque in the Auditorium, and payment schedules can be arranged to suit the individual. When this program has been completed, the Alumni Association will not be involved in the three-year Dana Challenge program. Alumni, in general, will not be asked for capital gifts in a formal campaign.

Our opportunity and challenge, then, becomes even greater. We must open new horizons of support for our college. We will concentrate on raising our percentage of alumni giving to Living Endowment, Quaker Club, class projects, and special projects. Guilfordians must show their appreciation to individuals, business, and corporate interests who are investing $2,250,000.00 more in the future of coming generations of Guilfordians.

President Milner Reports On His Visit to Africa

President Milner and J. Floyd Moore recently attended the meeting of the Friends World Committee at Kaimosi in Kenya, Africa. Moore, Associate Professor of Religion, returned from Africa too late for details of his trip to be included in this issue of the Journal.

President Milner's trip extended over a period of five weeks, during which he visited London, Paris, Geneva, Rome, Athens, Cairo, Addis Ababa and various points in Kenya, returning to the campus on September 11th. At the social faculty dinner on Friday evening, September 15th, he reported a number of his impressions of the African situation and also the reaction of state leaders to the current threat of war.

It was President Milner's feeling that Kenya, while demanding independence, is determined not to make the mistakes that were made in the Congo. The Kenyan people are eager to receive the responsibility of self-government but are determined that that responsibility shall be justified. Dr. Milner also reported that, in direct contrast to attitudes noted in 1938 during a European trip, there is a general feeling among state leaders that war is now unthinkable and that problems facing the world will be solved, regardless of how great they are.

In his remarks, President Milner expressed gratification for the work being done by Friends in Kenya, where every effort is being made to raise the cultural and educational level. There are now 33,000 adult members of the Quaker faith and 60,000 children in

W. Ernest Younts

Guilford County residents and Guilfordians mourned the death of W. Ernest Younts '08 July 15, 1961.

Ernest Younts retired in 1947, following 35 years of service as principal of Bessemer School in Guilford County. E. D. Idol, retired superintendent of Guilford County Schools, stated that "No man in Guilford County has rendered greater service to public education than Ernest Younts. He has been connected with every movement for civic improvement in his community."

Ernest Younts was loyal always to his college, having sent many fine students to Guilford during his educational career, and having supported the college program in all ways possible. He was an active member of the Board of Stewards of Bessemer Methodist Church, and taught Sunday school for 25 years.

Byron Haworth Appointed Clerk Of Yearly Meeting

During the 264th annual session of the North Carolina Yearly Meeting of Friends, held on the Guilford College campus the first week in August, many Guilfordians took prominent roles in the proceedings.

Byron Haworth '28, High Point jurist, was appointed presiding clerk, and sat at the head of the meetings during the week-long session. He replaced Dr. Algie I. Newlin '21, clerk for the past twelve years, and professor of history at Guilford. Byron Haworth has been deeply involved in several areas of service with the Society of Friends for many years on the local, state, and national levels. Byron has also been active, since his graduation, in the affairs of his college.

Charles Snow '60 was elected to the position of reading clerk, replacing Larry Emerson '57. Charles Hendricks '40 was elected chairman of the directors of Quaker Lake Conference Center, and Binford Farlow '50 was elected president of North Carolina Quaker Men. Ruth Reynolds Hockett '23 was elected president of the North Carolina Society of Friends Women.

Announcement was made of the naming of delegates to the Friends World Conference in Kenya, Africa. John Pipkin '54, J. Floyd Moore '39, and Clyde A. Milner attended these proceedings.

Landrum Bolling, president of Earlham College, and Louise Brown Wilson '43, Friends leader from Virginia Beach, Virginia, were among the guest speakers at the Yearly Meeting.

President Milner and Lovely Guest

The week of July 22, 1961 was an exciting one for Guilford College and the Greensboro community, and the events of that week have taken on new significance with the naming of Maria Beale Fletcher as Miss America.

The Guilford College Jaycees, with the co-operation of the college and the Guilford and Greensboro communities, sponsored the 1961 Miss North Carolina Pageant in the new Greensboro War Memorial Auditorium. Miss Fletcher was chosen to carry the banner of North Carolina to the Atlantic City Miss America finals.

Dr. Clyde A. Milner was host to Miss Nancy Ann Fleming, then the reigning Miss America; Miss Ann Herring, Miss North Carolina of 1961; and seventy-five hopeful contestants (including the current Miss America) at an elaborate luncheon in Founders Hall on July 21. Algie I. Newlin '21, mayor of the Town of Guilford College, participated in the program, and Gene Key '51 served as master of ceremonies. Dr. Norman Fox '51, was state pageant chairman, and was credited with heading up one of the most outstanding state pageants ever held.

Other Guilfordians who were Jaycee participants in the huge project were William B. Smith '60, James Lomax '54, Harold Moag '51, Robert O'Neal '59, Robert Newton '58, A. T. Barbee '61, James Brewer '51, Douglas Dettor '50, Richard Pleasants '50, John Haithcox '54, and Royce Angel '51.

An impromptu breakfast was prepared by Charles Hendricks '40 for the new Miss North Carolina on July 23, prior to an all-day executive conference with Jaycee officials. Autographs given to several summer school male students have now become collectors items, with the advent of her selection as the new Miss America.

Henry F. Tew Receives Special Honor

Henry F. Tew '27 has been elected to the Division of Fellows, New Jersey Science Teachers Association. Henry received this honor as a result of outstanding work in the field of teaching science. He has taught in Tenafly High School since 1930, and has sent a score of outstanding students to Guilford.

At a recent State Science Day held at Rutgers, Henry's team of four won the highest total score in the examinations. Henry is a constant attender at northern alumni meetings, and recently visited the Guilford campus. He is pictured here in front of an electronic board in the school laboratory.

"Bill" Gibson Receives M.D. Degree From UNC

Dr. William "Bill" Gibson '56 has received his M.D. degree from the University of North Carolina. The degree was conferred at the annual graduation ceremonies at the university in June.

Bill, wife Joyce Fingado '56 and Christopher Stephen, 6 months, have moved to 8 Pleasant Court, Geisinger Memorial Hospital, Danville, Pennsylvania, where Bill will serve his internship. Bill and Joyce will be remembered as very active Guilfordians, Joyce having participated with the choir, and Bill having been a star athlete, president of the Monogram Club, Who's Who, president of the Student Affairs Board, and Biology Club president.

John Googe Appointed Chairman

At the July meeting of the Alumni Association Executive Committee, President W. L. Beamon '32 announced that John Googe '50 has been appointed chairman of Century And A Quarter alumni activities. Alumni activities during the Century And A Quarter celebration will center around Alumni Day, June 2, 1962.

He also announced the appointment of Ruth Newlin Coble '37, college trustee and member of the centennial class, as reunion chairman. Although regular reunion classes will have special activities, a general welcome is to be extended to all Guilfordians, according to the newly appointed chairman.

"We are hopeful that this will be the largest and most significant event in college history," said Googe, "and we ask that class leaders start immediately to plan for large and enthusiastic reunions in 1962."

Regular reunion classes are '61, '47, '46, '45, '44, '28, '27, '26, and '25. The class of 1912 will join the honored 50 year group, and Herbert Sawyer is already at work on plans for this group. The class of '37 will be honored as the 25th anniversary class. The class of '52 will celebrate its tenth anniversary; the class of '57, its fifth; and the class of '22 will celebrate its fortieth anniversary.

"Jase" Ralls and family group

George "Jase" Ralls, '50, former president of Men's Student Government and athletic great at Guilford College in the early post war years, has been named president of the Greensboro Jaycees. He is to head what is considered one the most powerful Jaycee organizations in the state.

George has been active in the civic life of Greensboro since graduation, and has compiled an outstanding record as an insurance executive in his home town. He has been active also in the Toastmasters, and has taken a great interest in the affairs of Guilford College since graduation. He is on the executive board of the Guilford College Quaker Club, and recently served as a division leader in the Greensboro campaign for funds for the new Religious Education-Auditorium-Music Building.

Living Endowment

President Milner has stated his evaluation of the Living Endowment Program as follows:

"The annual contributions of Guilfordians to Living Endowment not only give tangible evidence of deep, continued loyalty, but also provide regular, steady support for the college's alumni projects. The fund is used to support, in part, the preparation and distribution of the Alumni Journal, the maintenance and improvement of the Ragsdale Alumni House, and the general work of the alumni organization—which must keep records, correspond widely with former students, and reach out continually to increase its services and to develop projects for the college."

Dr. Milner added, "The giving person is usually a happy person. Contributors to Living Endowment are those who want to show appreciation for their college, through annual expressions of faith and gratitude."

As the 1961-62 academic year begins, the Guilford College football and basketball fortunes depend on many "ifs."

Said Coach Herb Appenzeller, "How can you lose men such as Wayne Henley (all-Conference and Little All-American Tackle), Larry Younts (all-Conference Guard), Harold James (all-Conference Quarterback), Jim Stutts, and Brodie Baker without being affected?"

But he went on to say that the "ifs" were diminishing. "Larry Addleton is a real college quarterback. I have no doubt of that now. Our backfield, with Bob O'Daniel, Tom Bowers, Tom Waters, Wayne Wagoner, and Ken Hedrick, is strong and speedy. Hedrick has all-conference potential."

The Quaker line is impressive, but very shallow. Sherrill Doby and Walter Wiggins at guard; David Wells and Charlie Abernathy at tackle; and Frank Simpson and Tommy Barnes at ends are impressive. Coach Appenzeller refused to be pessimistic about depth, although admitting that "the tackle position is critical." He pointed out, however, that Bill Flynt shows good possibilities, along with Jim Wiles, and Bill Davis, at this position.

Coach Clyde Parrish will be playing his basketball hand much the same as last year, even though Guilford only won one conference game. He says, "We didn't play bad ball last year, even though there were times when we had five freshmen on the floor."

Parrish has his New Jersey trio, Dan Kuzma, 6', Wayne Wyckoff, 6'5", and Ken Ward, 6'6", returning intact. Ward had trouble developing poise last year, but is expected to assume the role of a workhorse this year. Kuzma showed flashes of brilliance as a defensive star. He is expected to be a standout at rebounding, defensive work, and an accurate forward. Wayne Wyckoff developed more rapidly than expected, and held his own with the best in the conference at times. Stellar guard Jon Burwell 5'10" returns for his final year and is expected to exceed even his last year's brilliant performance. Three unsung sophomores are one key to Parrish's optimism: Mike Allred 6'1" forward from Mt. Airy; Monty Miller, 6'0", of Chapel Hill; and little Elwood Parker, 5'9", baseball shortstop and Dana Scholar.

Three outstanding freshmen add to Parrish's hopes for this year: Fred Rabb, Garner; Jack Davis, Junior College transfer from Baltimore, and Roy Williams, transfer from Greensboro.

Garland Murray Is Honored

A signal honor has been accorded Garland Murray '43, past governor of the North Carolina Division of Optimist International. Garland was named among 10 outstanding men in the United States membership of the organization.

In an announcement from St. Louis, District 18 (North Carolina) was also singled out as "one of 10 outstanding districts for 1961-62." The district fulfilled high qualifications in boys' work, establishment of new clubs, membership, and attendance. Murray is credited in a large degree with the success enjoyed during his tenure as governor of the district.

He has been associated with Recreation and Water Safety, American Red Cross, Greensboro, for several years.

It is the intention of the Journal to publish a more complete dissertation on President Milner's experiences in an early issue.

While in Africa attending the Friends World Committee sessions, the president joined with other members of the North Carolina Yearly Meeting in extending an invitation to hold the Fourth Friends World Conference in Greensboro, North Carolina in 1967. This invitation was accepted, and North Carolina Friends look forward to the opportunity of being hosts to this world-wide gathering of Friends.

Bert Wellons Is Doubly Blessed . . . Wed, Made Med.

Harry Albert "Bert" Wellons, Jr. '57 was among 89 receiving the M.D. from the Medical College of Virginia in June. Dr. Wellons was representative for the student American Medical Association, and prior to his graduation was secretary and president of the organization. He was also a member of Phi Chi Fraternity and was elected to Alpha Sigma Chi Honorary Leadership Society.

Bert was recently married to the former Florence Lee Daniel of Richmond, Virginia. The couple will reside in Madison, Wisconsin, where Bert will complete his internship. He is the son of Harry and Esther Lindley Wellons '33 and '31, of Victoria, Virginia.

Ernestine Milner, Altrusa President

In broadening its international relations program, Altrusa International also will aid the Indo-American Club in Chengannur, Kerala State, South India, a project to build friendship between India and North America. Altrusa Clubs are asked to provide books and periodicals for their library, films for their motion picture project, and typewriters for their commercial school.

A third area of Altrusa's expanded world understanding effort is in the direct relationship between each club and a person or community of another country.

This stepped up program of international relations is only one area in which Altrusa will concentrate in fulfilling its biennium theme, "MAKE REAL THE IDEAL"—the ideal being service.

Other objectives are: (1) a thoroughly informed membership; (2) a chronicle for each club; (3) a service project in each community promoted and financed by the local club; and (4) an increase in the Founders Fund, which helps women who, because of reverses or physical handicap, need special help in preparing to earn a living. The appropriation for 1961-1962 is $18,346.

BUSY 1961 GRADUATES

By PEARL NEAVE

The ALUMNI JOURNAL is more than happy to hear from its Alumni, and is especially pleased when the recently graduated seniors let us know what they are doing, where they are living, and how they are getting along.

This summer many of the 1961 graduates have helped us by sending just such information. Some have remained in North Carolina and some have gone to other states to start their life's work.

MARRIED

Six of the girls have received their M.R.S. degrees since their graduation. Margaret English Haworth of High Point was wed to Rawley L. Young July 15 and is living with her husband in Winston-Salem, where she teaches high school English. Dora Anderson Smith married Charles William Snow '59 August 12. Charles did graduate work in Religion last year at Guilford and has accepted the position as minister at Forbush Monthly Meeting of Friends. August 20, Betty Lou McFarland and Alan George Atwell said their vows in Aberdeen. Alan, also 1961 graduate, is attending the Marine Corps Officers candidate school, while Betty Lou teaches. August 26 was the date of two weddings: Susan Priscilla Drake married Frank Bradshaw Smith, Jr. in Gastonia, N. C. and Helen Mae Brown, a transfer from Woman's College, married George Daniel Barrow. Helen and Dan will be living in Guilford College while Dan completes his senior year at Guilford College. Helen teaches third grade at Guilford School.

TEACHING

Several recent seniors are teaching: Erma Lee Baum is in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Jane Lilly Allen is teaching in The Friends Academy in New York. Betty Lou McFarland Atwell, Arlene Sheffield, and John Meroney are in Virginia. Dora Smith Snow, Melvin Poplin, Lillian O'Briant, James Kellam, Patty Burgess, Margaret Haworth Young, Larry Younts, and Ernest N. Jenkins, Jr. are teaching in North Carolina.

Co. in Greensboro (Home Office); Kenneth Wayne Henley, group insurance representative for Security Life & Trust; and John Furman Herring, Jr., assistant to the director of Hospital Saving Ass'n Claims Dept. in Chapel Hill.

Those constantly meeting the public as salesmen and representatives are Allen George Clifford, James Perry Griggs, Harold Duke Haskins, Kenneth Toomes, and Jeff Hartsell.

Guilford graduates also represent other professions: Billy Edwin Flinchum is now a minister in Summerfield; Wilma Snipes Washburn is a interviewer with the Employment Security Commission of North Carolina; Arthur Graves Stokes, a clerk in Kernersville; James Louis Key, sales representative with Standard Oil Co. in Portsmouth, Va.; Carolyn Louise Nimitz, Teenage Director at the YWCA in Asheville; Angela Kopley, secretary for Doubleday Publishing Co. in New York; Elizabeth Bell (Robin) Heritage, social case worker in New York; Otis Davis, commercial artist in Greensboro; Jesse Thomas Copeland, Jr., research physicist in Maryland; William Crow, II and Carol Adolphus Barkley, Jr., Chemical Bank New York Trust Co. and Security analysis trainee at Wachovia Bank and Trust in Winston-Salem, respectively; Charlie Eugene Thrower and James Warren Corderman, administrative assistants in Greensboro and New York, respectively.

Guilford College is proud of its Alumni and is interested in the progress they are making after leaving Guilford. Let us know what you are doing and we will let the Alumni know about your activities.

In Memoriam

Word has come of the death of Delos Hammer '97 at his home in Winchester, Virginia. He had enjoyed a distinguished career in education, having taught in Guilford County schools; and worked with the U.S. treasury department for some years.

Guilfordians were saddened to learn of the death of Hugh P. Leak '03 on August 18, 1961. His son, Joseph '51 was also a Guilford graduate.

Robert P. Dicks '04 has passed away at his home in Rockingham, N. C. Robert Dicks has been known through the years for his deep devotion for his college, and the support of its worthy programs.

As a memorial to Dr. Buscom Palmer '11, deceased, one of the finest eye institutes in the United States will bear his name. The Basecom Palmer Eye Institute, now under construction in Miami, Florida; is near Jackson Memorial Hospital in that city.

The recent death of Oscar L. Sapp '18 at his home in Greensboro was noted here recently. He was a civic and business leader of the greater Greensboro vicinity, having held positions of trust with two companies before embarking upon successful ventures of his own. He was president of Sapp, Bowman & Teague, Inc. at the time of his death.

Charles W. Gough '30 died unexpectedly on August 30 at his home in Hamptonville, N. C. His daughter Amanda Gough Allred is a student at Guilford.

Richard C. Cox '31 died recently at Moses Cone Hospital in Greensboro.

Dr. Marjorie Applewhite, former professor in the department of history, died recently in Chapel Hill, N. C. Dr. Applewhite had recently retired from teaching at the University of North Carolina due to ill health. She taught during the late forties.

Annual Giving Is Important

Charles Milner '33, Alumni Association Vice President and Annual Giving Chairman, announces that the 1961-62 Annual Giving Goal is $15,000.00. "We should exceed this goal, as more Guilfordians are becoming interested. Also, our Alumni list now has grown from 4,000 to approximately 6,000 in the past four years.

"The costs of mailing the Alumni Journal, special events, invitations, and other publications have increased more than the one-third reflected in increased numbers. Therefore, it is now even more important that a larger number of Guilfordians participate in our Living Endowment program. This will make possible a release of permanent endowment funds for faculty salaries and instruction," said Chairman Milner.

He went on to list other values offered by Living Endowment. "It puts to wise use the modest gift, and allows everyone to remain an active participant in the affairs of Guilford. A gift to Living Endowment is a gift to a vital institution. The destiny of man is allied closely to education, and the private, church-related college certainly has a valuable role in education," he said.

Gifts to class projects, Quaker Club, and special projects also accrue to Annual Giving credit.

With all the new facilities under construction on Guilford's campus, and those to be started soon, some campus visitors have stated that "Guilford seems ready to fulfill her promise." Others have stated that "We finally have found the support that we needed."

With these new facilities, Guilford comes closer to fulfilling her promise. But there is much to be done! The interest expressed by foundations and corporate interests will increase if we receive strong Alumni support. Therefore, during the next five years, gifts to the program of Annual Giving will be of strategic importance. A gift to Living Endowment or another worthy program will help maintain the momentum that has been developing at your college. Use the enclosed envelope—today!

Special Alumni Awards

Four annual Alumni awards were announced during Century and a Quarter proceedings. Johnny James Boles was awarded the Key Senior Award, given to the outstanding graduating senior. The award was presented by Dr. Clyde A. Milner.

Thomas Barnes, a rising senior, was presented the Alumni Achievement Award, given in recognition of his outstanding accomplishment in campus affairs and academic life during the past year. He was presented the scholarship award by Charles Hendricks '40.

Outstanding athlete awards were presented to Frank Bailey, senior; and Daniel Kuzma, undergraduate. Both athletic awards were presented by Gene Key '51.

The awards to Barnes and Kuzma carry scholarship stipulations.

Class of '25 Prepares Booklet

An interesting and constructive project was undertaken by the class of '25 in anticipation of their reunion this year. An attractive booklet was composed of information received from the different members of the class.

Nell Chilton White compiled the material. Ethel Watkins Crutchfield made the attractive cover, decorated with the Guilford Seal and a floral design. The motto on the inside cover is listed as "Not to Study Before or After Supper."

Replies to the inquiries directed to class members revealed a variety of undertakings on the part of the class. Some of the listed vocations are doctor, lawyer, author, engineer, teacher, minister, librarian, technician, housewife, businessman.

The booklet reveals much interesting and varied information about the members of one of Guilford's most distinguished classes.

Nereus English '26 (left) was presented the Distinguished Alumni Award by classmate Edwin Brown. The presentation was made on behalf of the Alumni Association.

Alumni Day Draws Crowd

Alumni Day, 1962, must go down as one of the most successful Alumni Days in the College's history. Registration revealed a record crowd at the reunion luncheon, and the evening attendance was impressive despite torrential rains that began during the traditional alumni tea at 4:00 p.m., and continued throughout the evening.

Outstanding among Alumni Day events were the lavish buffet spread by Slater service under the direction of Charles Hendricks '40; the annual tea, under the direction of Margaret Coltrane '37 (held this year in the lobby of Dana Auditorium); the naming of Nereus English '26 as Distinguished Alumnus of the year; and the presentation of "In Faith and Unity" the play written by Dorothy Gilbert Thorne about Guilford College's history. Guests were welcome to Virginia Ragsdale Alumni House, English Hall, Archdale Hall, and Founders Hall.

Especially remembered will be the Century and a Quarter Address by Clyde A. Milner, and the annual report by president W. L. Beamon '32. President Milner emphasized that the completion of 125 years of uninterrupted service was worthy of celebration, but that "we look to the future with greater faith and higher resolve—emphasizing even more the quality and meaning of the experience together."

He closed by listing specific areas of emphasis: "To maintain a strong and dedicated faculty; to select students with increasing discernment and sensitivity; to inspire students to achieve maturity—to live adequate lives, as well as to be trained to earn a living; and to respond to the growing opportunities for service in the community in which we are located—the center of what is now being called the 'Golden Piedmont Triangle'."

ISSUED BY GUILFORD COLLEGE

AT THE COMPLETION OF A CENTURY AND A QUARTER OF CONTINUOUS
EDUCATIONAL SERVICE

1837 - 1962

GUILFORD COLLEGE • GREENSBORO, NORTH CAROLINA

From Your Alumni President

It is with pleasure and appreciation that I accept your call to the presidency of the Alumni Association for the second one-year term.

But as the pageantry of installation and the Century and a Quarter celebration fades away, the responsibility of the office comes into view with increasing clarity and weight. Guilford College has travelled far. We take pride in that we have been a part of this; but have we done our best? Our glowing words of appreciation and pride are worth little alone.

One of the speakers at the celebration stated that colleges like Guilford are in for a struggle. Guilford's deserved destiny is clear to all of us. Whether she continues to render the service to our children that she rendered to us is our concern.

The Dana Challenge program is presently operating on a level that does not involve the general Alumni Association. Industry, Foundations, and special gifts donors are being asked for the total needed for the current building projects. But the response of these groups to our needs will place Guilford's alumni squarely in the spotlight. What can we do? We can take an interest in college programs; we can attend local Alumni meetings; we can attend campus events. We can take part in annual giving campaigns, which really requires so little of us. Am I foolish to believe that fifty per cent of Guilford's alumni could contribute to the annual giving program this year?

IT'S HERE!

THE CENTURY AND A QUARTER ALUMNI DIRECTORY

The 230-page Alumni Directory, result of three years extensive research, is now available through the Alumni office. The directory, which contains addresses and occupations, as well as alphabetical and class listings of all persons who earned credit at Guilford College, met with enthusiastic acceptance at the Century and a Quarter Celebration. Your copy can be sent to you immediately upon request, or copies can be mailed to your friends. Send $2.00 per directory, along with correct mailing address and 17 cents postage to: Alumni Directory, Alumni Office, Guilford College, N. C.

Miss Johnson Retires

Miss Hassie Johnson, head resident and dietitian at Mary Hobbs Hall, retired this past June. Miss Johnson served in this capacity for twelve years. Her genuine and sincere concern for her girls has helped all of them maintain the dorm as their home in accordance with the co-operative idea. While here, Miss Johnson always showed interest and enthusiasm for campus activities. She will be missed by all.

Mrs. Milner Receives High Honor

Ernestine C. Milner, Chairman of Guilford's psychology department, was recognized by her Alma Mater on June 8th and given one of the highest awards by Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. In ceremonies centered around Alumni Day, Mrs. Milner received the Bishop Medal for meritorious public service. The presentation was made at the annual Awards Dinner.

The Bishop Medal, named after the first president of Miami University, is given for outstanding community service, and in the case of Mrs. Milner recognizes not only her position in educational circles but also her post as President of Altrusa International, the outstanding professional women's organization.

E. M. Wilson Here for Alumni Day

At the traditional Reunion Luncheon in Founders Hall on Alumni Day, the holder of the oldest Guilford College Degree was recognized.

E. M. Wilson of Hillsboro, class of 1892, was present for the luncheon and business meeting of the 50 year group. Edwin Wilson entered Guilford in the fall of 1888, the year Guilford opened as a college. He is the only surviving graduate of the class of 1892. He entered school with Robert Hodgin, class of 1896, oldest living graduate, who left school for a time and returned to get his degree.

Stafford Is Visiting Professor

Dr. David B. Stafford has been Visiting Professor of Sociology at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill during the first summer session of 1962. Dr. Stafford took over two courses, Southern Regional Sociology and Rural Sociology, from Dr. George Simpson so that the latter might finish his revision of Dr. Odum's classic book, Southern Regions, before he joins the "New Frontier" in Washington in the fall as public relations director for the National Space Agency.

Dr. Stafford finds classes of sixty, each with about one-fourth of them graduate students, and hour-and-a-half meetings five days a week something of a strain. Commuting on the new road is not too difficult. He declares, "It is the only chance I have had for years to escape both students and children completely, for that long each day! I have been able to do some thinking. It has given me a real opportunity to get a closer look at some of the teaching and research going on at the University of North Carolina—quite impressive."

Alumni Officers Are Elected

Alumni balloting, conducted again by mail from May 10 to June 1, saw enthusiastic voting for the candidates for all posts. Especially interesting was the race for the presidency. President W. L. Beamon '32, running for a second term, experienced a strong challenge from Abner Alexander '52 popular post-war football stalwart and constant supporter of alumni programs. President Beamon emerged victorious, as did Vice-President Charles Milner '33.

W. Forrest Altman, newly appointed Associate Professor of English and Acting Head of the English Department at Guilford College for the coming year, is a member of the Society of Friends. A native of Dravosburg, Pa., he was educated in the Pittsburgh Public Schools and received his A.B. from Earlham College, his A.M. from the University of Pittsburgh, and his Ph.D. from Florida State University.

Dr. Altman's teaching experience was acquired at Florida State University, the University of Tennessee, and at Earlham College. Of special interest is the sixteen months period he spent in Kenya, East Africa, teaching and editing in the Earlham-U. S. State Department project associated with the Friends Africa Mission.

Forrest Altman is married to the former Diana Lynne Hildebrand and they have two children—Lydia Elena, three years old; and Reed Adam, six months.

Miss Genevieve McCraeken has been appointed Dean of Women at Guilford College for the coming year. For the past year she has been Assistant Director of Hokoma Hall at the University of New Mexico, the dormitory housing all women residents at that university. Her previous experience included serving as resident director on the counseling staff of the Women's College at Duke University, where she was also adviser to the Panhellenic Council and to the Co-ordinate Board, which was an organization that worked with student and college policies in co-operation with the administration. Prior to that she was Dean of Women at Ohio Northern University and Dean of Women at Illinois College in Jacksonville, Ill., for seven years.

Dr. Milner Is Foundation President

Dr. Clyde A. Milner was recently re-elected President of the North Carolina Foundation of Church-Related Colleges. This organization, consisting of 23 North Carolina institutions, aims to interest business and industrial groups in the private church-related colleges and to encourage them in regular annual financial support.

The 1961-62 annual report of the foundation showed 332 business and industrial organizations contributing $450,394 to this co-operative enterprise. This compared with 32 organizations contributing $10,065 only eight years ago. The following statement in the foundation's annual report was made by Archie K. Davis, Chairman of the Board, Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., who is also chairman of the foundation's board of trustees:

Financial support from the business community of North Carolina is essential to the successful operation of these private colleges. Enrollment has risen 70% in the last six years, and the cost of operations per student has doubled so that the aggregate operating budgets for the 23 colleges in this Foundation is now $20 million. The traditional sources of income—tuition and fees, endowment income, gifts from alumni and friends—can no longer cope with the enormity of the job.

The $450,394 distributed by the Foundation this year will be allocated to faculty salaries by each of the 23 participating colleges. This is equivalent to a year's income from an additional endowment of $11,000,000. It is equal to 8% of the combined faculty payrolls. These funds will provide additional faculty and enlarge instructional programs. This, plus constant attention to improved techniques and efficiency will help to assure a quality education for more than 17,000 students.

Fancourt Memorial Seminar

With an over-all attendance of about 100 people, the first annual Walter F. Fancourt Memorial Seminar, held in Greensboro, N. C., on Oct. 4 and 5, presented college students from the Carolinas with an opportunity to hear top textile men discuss their own specialties within the industry.

Students and faculty representatives from the following colleges and universities attended: Catawba College, Clemson College, Duke University, Elon College, Guilford College, High Point College, North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering, University of North Carolina, and Wake Forest.

Instituted by John L. Fancourt in memory of his father and older brother, the Seminar kept students, faculty members, and representatives of the textile industry busy in a full two-day program.

The seminar sessions were held in the W. F. Fancourt Company's new plant in Greensboro, with accommodations for students and faculty members in the nearby Oaks Motel, and the seminar dinner on Thursday night at the Sedgefield Country Club.

Toastmaster of the dinner was Herbert A. Stauderman, vice president of the Hows Publishing Co., New York, and the main speakers were Archie K. Davis, chairman of the Board of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., and Gordon Hanes, president of Hanes Hosiery Mills Co., both of Winston-Salem, N. C.

Founders Day Speakers

Guilford College celebrated its 126th Founders Day and Homecoming Weekend on October 19 and 20, 1962. Emphasis during the two-day observance was on science in a liberal arts college, and Guilford was fortunate in having two outstanding speakers for the occasion.

On Friday morning the entire student body was addressed by Dr. John Tyler Caldwell, Chancellor of North Carolina State College at Raleigh. His subject was "Science in a Liberal Arts College." In his remarks he stressed the importance of a balanced educational program. He also stated that modern technology makes it essential for responsible citizens to know enough about science and its rapid development to understand its place in the present-day world.

The 13th annual Ward Lecture was delivered by Dr. Richard M. Sutton, professor of physics at California Institute of Technology, on the subject, "Quaker Scientists." He called attention to the unusual proportion of successful scientists who have been members of the Society of Friends. Among the reasons he suggests for this were the interest of Friends in the observation of nature and their strong desire to relieve mental and physical suffering, added to the fact that they were excluded from certain professions as non-conformists and from others, such as the military, by their consciences. Results of a special current study Dr. Sutton is making seem to indicate that present-day Friends attribute their interest in science to early training in open-minded attitudes both in the family and through thoughtful teachers. One-third of the Friends who answered a special questionnaire sent to them indicated, however, that they became Friends after becoming scientists, and here the influences at work appear to be the experimental, seeking attitude of Friends' religious outlook, along with its freedom from dogma and authoritarianism. "Rational thinking, coupled with the dynamic of a living faith," he thinks, "should make the Quaker scientist a leader toward this better world we look for."

Pearson Promoted

Charles Alton Pearson '58, staff manager in Florence with the Life and Casualty Insurance Company of Tennessee, was transferred to the Johnson City district. Pearson was honored earlier in the year for possessing the leading staff for a three-state area. He also finished in third place with the company on a coast to coast basis.

Guilford Is Growing Be A Part Of Her Growth

Lindsay Is Honored

The NASA Exceptional Scientific Achievement Medal has been awarded to Dr. John C. Lindsay, '40, of Goddard Space Flight Center for work performed from 1959 to date. Lindsay, Associate Chief of the Center's Space Sciences Division, was honored for his achievements in the study of the Sun and Earth-Sun relationships as project manager and scientist for the Orbiting Solar Observatory, an earth satellite orbited on March 7, 1962.

Dr. Lindsay received his Ph.D. and Master of Science degrees from the University of North Carolina in 1954 and 1952, respectively.

Prior to joining Goddard as head of the Solar Physics Branch in December, 1958, Dr. Lindsay served in the Electron Optics Branch of the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, D. C. He ran one of the earliest solar flare experiments using rockets fired from San Nicolas Island, Calif., in 1957. In 1958, he was a team member of the South Pacific scientific expedition which fired a series of Nike rockets to measure a solar eclipse in the Danger Islands. From October, 1953, until June, 1956, he was employed as a research physicist by the DuPont Corporation.

Dr. Lindsay is married to the former Miss Joyce E. Fry of Crestwood, N. Y. They have three children, John M., 19; Cliff E., 14; and Terry L., 12. They reside at Springfield, Virginia.

Vanstory Elevated

C. M. Vanstory III '57 was elected vice president of North Carolina National Bank at a regular meeting of the bank's board of directors. Vanstory attended the University of North Carolina and joined the bank in 1954 after serving in the Navy. He is on the executive committee of the North Carolina Young Bankers Association. He is a former president of the Greensboro Jaycees.

Ward Lecturer

The thirteenth Ward Lecturer, Richard M. Sutton, speaks with authority both as a Quaker and as a scientist. He is a member and former recorded minister of Haverford Monthly Meeting of the Society of Friends and was for eight years Clerk of the Committee in Charge of Westtown School, and for nearly twenty-five years a member of the Committee in Charge of Haverford Friends Elementary School.

Richard Sutton received his B.S. degree from Haverford College and his Ph.D. from the California Institute of Technology, and has taught at both these institutions as well as the Case Institute of Technology. He is presently Professor of Physics and Director of Relations with Secondary Schools at the California Institute of Technology. His experience includes service as visiting professor at the universities of Denver, Minnesota, Delaware, Columbia, and at Gustavus Adolphus College. A member of the leading societies in his field, he has headed the American Association of Physics Teachers and has been on the Board of Directors of the American Institute of Physics. In 1953 he received the Oersted Medal "for notable contributions to the teaching of physics."

In recent years Richard Sutton has been especially active throughout the United States as a lecturer and instructor in summer and year-long institutes for teachers of physics and chemistry. He has also been a speaker and demonstrator at national meetings of the National Science Teachers Association. As chairman of the original physics committee on the Advanced Placement Program he was a leader in this important project.

A native of Denver, Colorado, Richard Sutton is married to the former Grace E. Leeds of Ashland, Ohio. They have two sons, one a geologist and the other a physicist, and three granddaughters. A man with keen enjoyment of life as well as of his work, Richard Sutton names among his many hobbies hiking, mountain climbing, skiing, astronomy, music, and sketching.

High Point Makes Plans

Strupe Lackey '53, recently elected chairman of the High Point area alumni chapter, reports that Tuesday, April 2, 1963, has been set for the spring meeting of the group. The chapter will extend invitations to Guilfordians and friends in Jamestown, Archdale, Trinity, Thomasville, Lexington and High Point areas.

"Publicity and program information will be received from time to time during the coming months," said Strupe. "We are anticipating our largest and best meeting."

A Message For Guilfordians

Guilford is growing, and many of you have been a vital part of her growth. The momentum gained in the past few years can only be continued with your help.

At an alumni meeting recently, an alumnus said, "This is the first time our college has not needed contributions from its alumni." Of course, the answer is that Guilford needs the support of its alumni and friends as never before. The announced objectives of the Dana Challenge did not include a capital campaign among alumni. The underlying purpose was to allow the Alumni Association to devote its energies to a more efficient, increased Annual Giving program. To a great extent, the Dana Challenge success will depend on the success of our program. Corporate, Industrial, and Foundation interests look closely at "family" support before committing aid to any institution.

We are proud of our record, but we cannot sit on laurels. Our announced increased goals of $17,500, and 1500 givers, should be easily within reach—Won't you help us?

Sincerely,
CHARLES MILNER '33
Annual Giving Chairman

Band Calls For Help

The Guilford College Band, newly formed under the direction of Sheldon Morgenstern, instructor in music, has met with enthusiastic response.

The band has performed at homecoming and other athletic events and presented a Friday evening concert in December. Also, some band members form a part of the 21-member Guilford College Orchestra, also new, which drew praise for its quality performance in accompanying the annual "Messiah" presentation.

At present, the band has twenty-six members, and expansion is anticipated. One of the problems, says Sheldon Morgenstern, is to secure enough instruments. He has suggested that many Guilfordians have instruments hidden away in attics, basements, and storage rooms that would be of help to the orchestra and band. Anyone who can place instruments at the disposal of these organizations should contact the Alumni Office or: Sheldon Morgenstern, c/o Music Department, Guilford College, N.C.

Edward S. King

The report of the death of Edward S. King '10 in the fall was received with sorrow by Guilfordians and his friends everywhere. "Ed" King was beloved by many who received his kindness and help.

He entered YMCA work shortly after graduation from college, and served Auburn and the University of South Carolina in the capacity of secretary of the YMCA. He came to North Carolina State College in the same capacity in 1919, and served for 36 years before his retirement. It was at State College that Ed King became "Mr. YMCA." He came into contact with hordes of students, many of them in need. It is said that many in high stations in industry and the professional world were able to complete their work only with the help of Ed King. The following editorial appeared in the Raleigh Times:

"Ed King would have been horrified at the thought of anyone saying he was a modern-day saint. Yet, that is just what he was, and in his death Raleigh lost a quiet but powerful voice for good."

"During his 36 years as YMCA secretary at State College he gave students guidance and encouragement they could have gotten from no other source. He wasn't a joiner, and he never tried to get his name in the papers, but he took his place in the forefront of any movement he felt was for the good of his fellow men, especially those of his fellow men who needed help and who couldn't help themselves."

"He continued his willingness to speak and to work from his conscience until the day of his death."

"He was a Quaker, and he was a quiet man. And he was agreeably stubborn in his support of what his Quaker conscience told him he must do, but his quietness and affability could never be confused with timidity or unwillingness to fight if it came to that point."

"Nobody, least of all Ed King, ever knew how many meals he bought for hungry people, or how many train and bus tickets he bought for those stranded here away from home. Nobody knew how many discouraged students he persuaded to stay in college, or how many students he helped climb from pitfalls into which they had fallen."

"Nobody knew those things except those who were helped. And all those people would insist, even over Ed King's denials, that he was a real saint."

Ed King was also known for a twinkle in his eye and a keen sense of humor. In answer to a request for his religious affiliation on an Alumni blank, his reply was, "Presbyterian in name, Quaker at heart, and Episcopalian in practice."

He is survived by two sisters, Annabella '13 and Emma King '01 Allen. He is also survived by his wife, the former Eunice Baldwin, and two children, Eunice and Cyrus.

In testimony of his contributions, North Carolina State College saw fit to rename the YMCA building. It now bears the name "the E. S. King Religious Center."

Edward S. King will truly be missed. In spite of his busy life and association with another great educational institution, he found time to be among the most staunch and active Guilfordians in support of his college.

On the Quaker Sports Front

Football and Basketball Prospects

By HARVEY TOHN '63

On the 1962 Quaker gridiron, Guilford showed tremendous improvement, and finished the season strongly. Starting an eventful season, the Quakers dropped three conference games to Elon, Western Carolina and Lenoir Rhyne, respectively. Sparked by Guilford's homecoming festivities on October 20, the Quakers were ready to meet Frederick College. In a thrilling game, witnessed by many alumni, the Quakers defeated Frederick 19-10. The Frederick game was the highlight of the season and joy resounded throughout the campus.

The biggest upset of the season came against Catawba on November 10, 1962, at Armfield Athletic Field. On a rain-soaked field, the tough Quaker defense held Catawba to one field goal in a 7-3 victory. The lone touchdown of the game was scored by Quaker halfback Billy Joye on a 51-yard breakaway run.

The Quakers had found a dazzling offense to go along with stellar defensive play. Possibly to become the greatest Guilford runner is sophomore halfback Billy Joye (also an excellent punter) of Garner, N. C. After junior Larry Addleton was forced from quarterbacking duties by a mangled finger, he adjusted to brilliant play in the line, uncovering a lad who can become Guilford's greatest "T" quarterback, freshman Jimmy Williams of Fuquay. Jimmy, a music major, has speed, deception, can pass and run. His bootleg pass plays left Quaker rooters breathless.

A returning backfield rounded out by junior halfback Buddy Dixon and senior fullback Eddie Gore is second to none in the Carolinas conference. The 1963 line will miss Wells (T) and Barnes (E), two mainstays. But with transfer senior Purgason (T) and iron man junior Gary York (G), along with Addleton, transfer end Tollie Barber, Dwight Buffaloe, and Don Ferguson, the Quaker line will begin stronger next year.

BASKETBALL

Jerry Steele, freshman coach and former captain of the Wake Forest basketball team, is optimistic about the 1962-63 basketball season.

Returning to the floor as Guilford's driving force will be Dan Kuzma, a 6'2" junior from Matawan, New Jersey. Dan averaged 13 points a game last year and he was Guilford's top rebounder. Steel is hopeful that young guards Parker and Paul Updegraff will develop

Homecoming Was Festive

Homecoming 1962, held October 20, saw a large crowd of Guilfordians on hand to view imaginative dormitory decorations, pretty floats, and beautiful co-eds competing for the title of fairest.

Earlier leisurely tours of the campus produced "Ooh's" and "Ah's" upon sight of the beautiful new boys' and girls' dormitories and the spacious dining addition to Founders Hall. In the evening, faculty, visitors, and students dined together in the newly renovated dining hall, then convened at the Gymnasium for the annual homecoming reception and dance. The occasion was an especially happy one. When those in attendance were not dancing to the lively rhythm of the Ascots, they were in groups discussing preceding events of the day.

Lovely Kay Stabler, sophomore of Bethesda, Maryland, was acclaimed Queen of Homecoming, with Darlene Brigance, sophomore from Charlotte, N. C., being named her maid of honor. Both are Guilford College cheerleaders. Founders Hall was announced winner of decorations for women, and the new men's dormitory was judged best among the men. The new women's dormitory walked away with the prize for the best float. Pat Larracey '64, who was in charge of half-time activities, put together a show consisting of:

Fall Tour Brings Alumni Up

Earl Maloney '38, James Dautonio '52, and Earl "Ace" Dunkle '49 visit at Southern New Jersey Meeting. Earl Dunkle traveled ninety miles to attend the meeting.

Several Alumni chapters have had annual meetings during the fall season. Administration and faculty members attending these include David Parsons, Charles Hendricks, Gene Key, David Morrah, Clyde Milner, E. Daryl Kent, Jerry Steele, John Stewart, and E. G. Purdom.

The most popular item on the program has been the tour, by means of visual aids, of the campus by Charles Hendricks. The program by slide projector includes pictures of faculty, students, and new buildings.

The meetings served a valuable purpose in bringing alumni up to date on college developments, answering questions of concerned friends and alumni, orientation on the needs of the college, and interchange of ideas between faculty and alumni. Pictures on these pages were taken at the meetings.

zation since 1960 and is also a member of the Philadelphia Rubber Group and the Rubber Division of the American Chemical Society.

He began his career with Du Pont as a laborer and laboratory assistant at the Chambers Works, Deepwater Point, N. J., after graduation from nearby Salem High School. He held various summer laboratory jobs at the same plant while attending Guilford, from which he was graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree. After assignments in the plant's stores department and laboratories, he was promoted to chemist in the Rubber Laboratory in 1947. He moved to Wilmington in 1948 as a sales correspondent and was assigned to the Eastern district as a technical sales representative in 1950.

Born in Somerville, N. J., Mr. Woodward was a councilman on the borough council of South Plainfield from 1952 to 1953 and on the board of trustees of the town's civic organization from 1952 to 1955. Most important, however, was the battle between Frederick and Guilford. The game had built to a high pitch—Guilford was in the midst of a long losing period. Could the big Frederick team, tutored by John Meroney '61 (former Guilford little All-American) make it just one more? It appeared so, until the Quakers caught fire in the second half. The final gun found the Quakers ahead 19-10 and threatening another score.

Coaches Trotter, Appenzeller and Stuart ponder strategy in an effort to overtake Frederick's Tigers. Their strategy paid off with a 19-10 victory.

At publication time, Guilford's Quakers were 1-9 in conference play; with a record of 4 wins and 10 losses overall.

Center Dan Kuzma, only 6'2", is leading the Carolinas Conference in rebounding, with an average of 15 plus per game. He is the conference's No. 3 scorer at just under 20 points per game.

poise and ability to direct the team. "Our defense must improve," says Steele. The Quakers lack height, and are not considered to have the speed to execute the fast break. "We are going to have to have good shooting, good defense, and make few mistakes in ball-handling," says Steele.

Along with Kuzma, Steele has one other battle tested letterman in Mike Allred, 6'5" junior forward who can rebound with much taller boys. Allred has played the guard position also, and averaged 9 points plus, last year, after playing approximately one-half of the time.

For the future, Steele is pleased with freshman Charles White, 6'5" center from Rock Hill, South Carolina. Expected to help the team are Roy Williams, senior guard, and Fred Raab, sophomore center from Garner. Jerry is missing regulars Wyckoff, Ward, and Burwell from last year, but he says, "We're expecting to be in Lexington for a couple of games added to our schedule, however."

As the season is just beginning to show progress, the Quakers opened up with an 80-71 victory over Pembroke College. This is a fine start for the Quakers and we wish them the best of luck. A highlight of the early season was a trip to Massachusetts to participate in the Holiday Tournament at New Bedford, in which the Quakers placed second.

SOCER

Probably the fastest rising sport on the Quaker sports scene is the Guilford soccer team piloted by Coach Al Engelmann. This is only the second year for the team, but the improvement and success have been astonishing. As the season ended in early November, the Quakers had a winning 4-3 record. The greatest victory of the season was the defeat of North Carolina State College by a score of 4-2. The Quakers also played the University of North Carolina, but lost 3-2 in the closing minutes of the game. It was a tough loss for the boys, but we were all proud of our new soccer team.

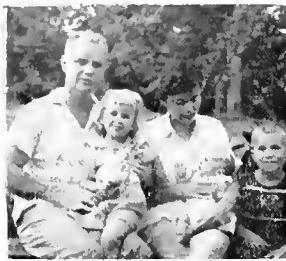

With goalee Andy Brown leading the list of soccer notables too large to mention, we are looking forward to a tremendous Guilford soccer team in the future.

SPRING SPORTS

In the spring, Guilford will look forward to competing in baseball, golf, and track. In the past, Guilford has always done well in spring sports and we are hoping for the same in the 1963 season. Stuart Maynard will pilot the baseball team while John Steward will take on the duties as the new track coach replacing Dean Herb Appenzeller.

Ethel Speas

The life of a distinguished Guilfordian came to an end with the recent passing of Miss Ethel Speas '17 in Raleigh, N. C.

Ethel Speas' life since graduation from college was marked repeatedly by landmarks of outstanding service in the field of social work. A tireless worker, she was always able to find the time to support her college through attendance at alumni meetings and college functions; and through support of all college development goals.

Among her post-graduate credits are listed a degree in social work at the University of Chicago, further study at Smith College, New York School of Social Work, and the Yale School of Alcohol Studies. Her career included service with public school teaching, American Red Cross, Emergency Relief Administration for the State of North Carolina, Family Service Agency secretary, and as consultant to the North Carolina Training School for Juvenile Delinquents.

She also served as Director of Case Work, Connie Maxwell Orphanage; supervisor of Adoption State Welfare Department, secretary of the North Carolina Mental Hygiene Society and prior to her retirement served as executive secretary to the Eugenics Board of North Carolina and the North Carolina Mental Health Society.

She found time to belong to various church, social, and professional organizations. She was a past president of the Altrusa Organization in Raleigh, and was North Carolina chairman of the American Association of Social Workers in 1950-52.

At the annual Alumni meeting in Raleigh in March, 1962, Ethel Speas expressed gratitude that, in spite of ill health, she had been able to complete a project long sought by the medical and social workers professions in North Carolina. When she presented a copy of her book, The History of Voluntary Mental Health Movement in North Carolina early in 1962, the work had already received widespread attention. An earlier work, Adoption, published in 1950, was acclaimed and accepted as a manual for adoption agencies in North Carolina.

Guilfordians everywhere will be inspired to know that in her loyalty to Guilford College Ethel Speas made Guilford the principal beneficiary of her estate, preliminary evaluation of which exceeds $100,000. According to her wishes, the bequest will become a part of the permanent endowment of the college and income therefrom will be used for scholarship grants to worthy young men and women.

Such tangible expressions of love for Guilford College mean that the lofty educational purpose and program of Guilford can continue to develop and be more fully realized.

Suzu Koriyama Kuramoto

As reported in a letter written by her sister, Tami Koriyama '45 Murotami, "Suzu Koriyama '45 Kuramoto passed away on August 3, 1962, following six-hour-long open-heart surgery. Suzu never regained consciousness, but died peacefully. She went into surgery with only half hope. She was prepared to die as was proved by the poem she had tucked away in her Bible:

SONG FOR MY SISTERS

A sister is a heritage
Different from the rest.
A sister is a blessing
That makes one doubly blest.
A sister is a segment of yourself, a given part,
That come what may of joy or storm
She never leaves your heart.
A sister is a special gift
God minted from the sun.
How do I know those things so well?
He gave me more than one.

Without anyone's knowledge, she had made funeral preparations with her husband and, as requested, her ashes were buried in Honolulu.

A native of Seattle, Mrs. Kuramoto received her B.A. at the University of Minnesota and her M.L. in Washington. Her professional work experience included two years as circulation librarian in Mexico City College library and three years as cataloger at the King County Public Library.

She was a quiet, unassuming person, very well liked by her associates. Those with whom she was relatively close appreciated her shining personality and recognized her enjoyment of life.

Jennie Cannon Lindley

The classmates and many friends of Jennie Howard Cannon '25 Lindley were grieved at the news of her death August 31, following a period of serious illness.

She taught in the public schools of North Carolina for many years, serving at East Bend, Mineral Springs, and Guilford High Schools. FOUNDERS HALL ON AN APRIL EVENING

1963 Alumni Day Schedule

June 1 Plans Announced by Marion Ralls

Alumni Day 1963, to be celebrated June 1, 1963, promises to be outstanding in many respects. "Added facilities that have come into use since last year have made it possible for the committee to add features for the occasion," says Marion "Lefty" Ralls '48, Alumni Day Chairman. Other members of the Alumni Day Committee are Charles Hendricks '40, Dr. Clyde A. Milner, Audrey Smith Duncan '51, Jack Tilley '49, John Goode '50, and Gene Key '51.

The schedule includes the following: 9:00 a.m., coffee for overnight guests and early arrivals—Alumni House. 10:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.—Registration—Founders Hall. 12:noon—Annual Reunion Luncheon. 2:00 p.m.—Class Reunions. 3:15 p.m.—Annual Meeting, Guilford College Quaker Club, in the Bob Doak Room, Gymnasium. 4:00 p.m.—Traditional Alumni Tea, Patio and Lounge of New Men's Dormitory. 10:30 and 3:30 tours of new campus facilities to originate at Founders Hall.

Also, Dr. Ralls has announced, there have been other innovations. The senior class of 1963 will be inducted at the Annual Reunion Luncheon, instead of at the evening banquet. This has been made possible by the doubling of Founders dining space. The presentation of the Distinguished Service Award, President Milner's Welcome, and the Alumni Address by Charles Hendricks '40, will be features of the evening program.

Due to popular request, the buffet dinner prepared for the Century and a Quarter celebration last year will be repeated. The buffet, to be prepared by the Slater Food Service, will be served in Founders Hall. Guests will remain in the Hall for the evening program.

Featured on the program will be a well known Guilfordian who perhaps holds the record for participation in Alumni affairs, Charles Hendricks '40. Charlie is Director of Admissions at Guilford, and will deliver the Alumni address.

The Alumni Day Planning Committee has announced that expanded services, made possible by the addition of beautiful new facilities, will be offered to guests Alumni week-end. The Alumni House, long since booked for Alumni Day, will be augmented by rooms made available in the first floor of the new men's and women's dormitories. "There is now no problem of space; we can house everyone who wishes to remain on campus," according to Marion Ralls.

Chairman Ralls also announced that child care will be offered for both pre-school and primary children. "The service offered will be in relation to the demand, so we must know of your need of this service in advance," stated Marion. "We must ask also that cribs, play pens, etc., be brought along for children who need them."

Choir Completes Spring Tour

The Guilford College A Cappella Choir made its annual spring tour this year from March 23-31, traveling south through the states of North and South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida. Since Carl Baumbach, head of Guilford's Music Department, is on leave of absence studying for his doctorate from Eastman School of Music, Jerry Smyre, Assistant Professor of Music, directed the choir this year. Forty-seven members, the largest number in recent years, participated this spring. In addition to the director, Maxine K. Ljung, Piano Instructor, and Claude Cook, Assistant Professor of Music, accompanied the students on the tour.

"Nee" English Is Honored

Both a national publication and a prominent North Carolina newspaper have recently featured a story on Nereus C. English '26. Nereus English was cited for his long life of service, especially noted in view of the hard work involved in building his business interests.

His favorite pastime was listed as "helping worthy young people get an education;" his favorite college, Guilford. For many years a trustee of the college, Nereus English last year received the coveted Alumni Distinguished Service Award.

A resident of Thomasville, N. C., Nereus, known to his friends as "Nee," English currently heads fifteen business firms.

Commencement Speakers

Guilford's administration is pleased to announce that two outstanding speakers have been invited to participate in the commencement activities, June 2-3, 1963.

The baccalaureate sermon at 11:00 o'clock will be delivered by Douglas V. Steere, Professor of Philosophy at Haverford College. Dr. Steere has been outstanding in his field, is eagerly sought as a lecturer.

Arthur Larson, Professor of Law and Director of the World Rule of Law Center at Duke University, will give the commencement address. Further details of commencement events and activities, will be published in the May Bulletin.

"Ed" Post Receives Award

Because of the faithful service to his community which he has rendered, Edward Post '51 was named High Point's outstanding man of the year for 1963. In further testimony of his value to his community, Ed is credited with being the vital moving force behind High Point's designation as "All-America City." News of the selection came after his selection as the outstanding young man of his community. The competition is sponsored annually by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Post, a graduate of the University of North Carolina Law School, has been responsible for organizing many civic projects, one of which was the sponsorship in High Point of Miss America. He is presently president of the Jaycees and directed the Jaycee Jollies, the well-known benefit show.

In addition to his Jaycee duties, Post is a member of the board of directors of the American Cancer Society, the board of the House of Prayer, and the board of the Family Service Bureau. He is also an associate deacon of the First Presbyterian Church.

A Message For Guilfordians

Please accept my thanks for the privilege of corresponding with you with regard to the Dana Challenge program.

I learned many things from your comments and suggestions, and I believe that the result has been a valuable step forward toward our goal of $750,000.00 —our share of the total $2,250,000.00 Dana Challenge program. A successful completion of this program will insure the building of sorely needed library space, and will add valuable monies to endowment for the purpose of helping with faculty salaries.

At this writing 17% of the remainder needed has been subscribed since my first letter. A small portion of our alumni gave this. We are convinced that the response indicates concern and interest on your part; that the signal is "Go;" that Guilfordians will seize the opportunity offered by the Dana Challenge. We will not say how much to give . . . only that you take the matter under serious consideration. Your response on the basis of those who have already responded (gifts and pledges ranged from $5.00 to $1,000.00, in addition to special gifts from other sources) will put us over our goal!

Mr. Dana and his trustees will visit the college in late May. Let's see that good news awaits him!

The Dana Challenge Program

So that all alumni may be informed as to the development program of the college, the Dana Challenge is here re-stated, with notes about the facilities which have been completed and those yet to be started.

The Charles A. Dana Challenge to Guilford College, extended in the spring of 1961, involved a total of $2,250,000, of which Mr. Dana's pledge was one-third, or $750,000. The challenge was issued to a group of Greensboro business and industrial leaders, known as the Dana Associates, and to the Guilford College Board of Trustees. Each of these groups accepted the responsibility for securing matching amounts. The Guilford College trustees agreed to raise $750,000 from sources outside the Greensboro community, while the Dana Associates agreed to raise $750,000 from interests within the Greater Greensboro area.

Expressing confidence in the two groups, Mr. Dana made a part of his challenge pledge funds immediately available, so that construction would not be delayed. The facilities included in the Dana Challenge were:

(1) A men's dormitory to house 256 students, with two counselors' apartments and appropriate study and recreation areas. This dormitory has been completed and is in use.

(2) A women's dormitory to house 162 students, with counselors' apartment, utility rooms, study and social areas. This dormitory has also been completed and is in use.

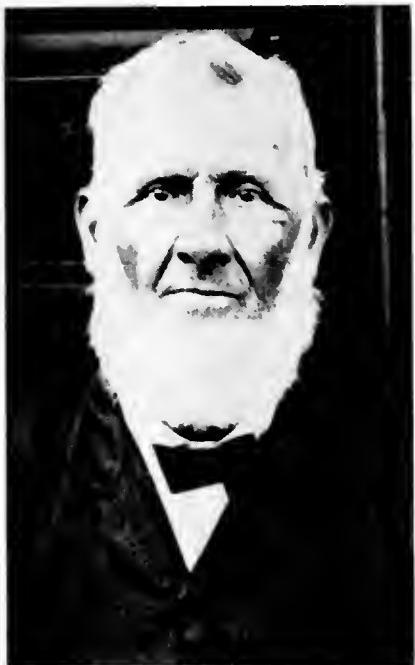

(3) Enlargement of the college dining room and kitchen, so that the entire student body may dine together as a family group. This work has been completed.

(4) Relocation and enlargement of the college power plant to provide utilities for the four new facilities. The new plant is now in use.

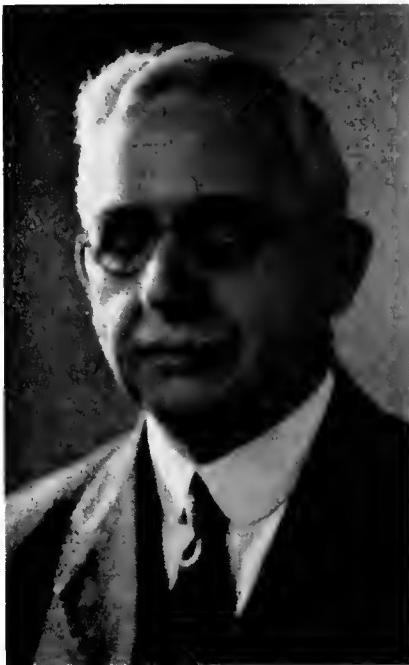

(5) Additions to the college library which will double the present stack space and provide greatly needed reserve-book and reading rooms as well as other study areas.

(6) $200,000.00 for endowments to increase faculty salaries.

AS THE JOURNAL GOES TO PRESS, GUILFORD'S TRUSTEES, FACULTY, ALUMNI AND FRIENDS OUTSIDE OF GREENSBORO HAVE PAID OR PLEDGED $480,000.00 TO THE DANA CHALLENGE GOAL OF $750,000.00—BALANCE NEEDED BY JUNE 1—$270,000.00.

DAVID WHITE II

DAVID WHITE III

DAVID J. WHITE

In Memoriam David Jordan White

With the death of David J. White '21, secretary of the Guilford College Board of Trustees, a long line of service to the institution by leaders bearing the same name was broken.

Some one hundred and thirty-two years ago the North Carolina Meeting appointed David White from the Eastern Quarterly Meeting on a committee "to prepare an essay or an address to the Quarterly and Monthly Meetings on the subject of schools and to prepare a plan for an improvement in the education of our youth and produce it for a future meeting."

The plan produced by this committee was for the New Garden Boarding School which many years later became Guilford College. This David White of 1831 had a son by the name of David White who was in 1871 named a member of the Board of Trustees of New Garden Boarding School and served in that capacity until 1894. Meanwhile, his son, also named David was graduated from Guilford in 1890 and was made a member of the Board of Trustees in 1903. From 1905 until 1932, he served as secretary of the Board. His brother, Josiah White of Belvidere, had a son David Jordan White who was graduated from Guilford College in 1921 and appointed a member of the Board of Trustees in 1934. He served as secretary of the Board until his death January 14, 1963.

A native of Perquimans County and an outstanding business leader, David J. White performed valued service in various clubs and organizations. In addition to his position on the Board of Trustees of Guilford College, he was a charter member of the Greensboro Lions Club, secretary of the Guilford Industries for the Blind, chairman of the Blind Welfare Commission, and president of the Greensboro Board of Realtors. He was a Mason, and was also associated with the Odd Fellows. Indicating his vital interest in the improvement of Greensboro, he was chairman of the Greensboro Planning and Zoning Board, and served as first chairman of the Greensboro Redevelopment Commission. When the White Realty Company was organized, he became secretary and treasurer of this company; and also was made secretary and treasurer of the Home Federal Building and Loan Company in 1932. In 1944, he was elected president of the Greensboro Real Estate Board. At the time of his death he was associated with the firms David J. White, Realtor; and White-Lambeth Rental Agency.

David White was a member of First Friends Meeting, serving on its Ministry and Counsel, Finance, and other committees. His interest in the Society of Friends and Christian work in general, his concern for higher education for young people and for Guilford College in particular; and his sure hand in important decisions will be sorely missed. David Jordan White was a man of tremendous potentialities. His entire life was a symbol of the high standards with which he lived and the dedicated service that he rendered. He is survived by his wife, Nell Chilton White, class of 1925.

TRACK, TENNIS AND GOLF

Guilford's teams are enjoying remarkable success this spring in track, tennis, and golf. As the Journal goes to press:

The track team has won five times, defeating Atlantic Christian, Campbell, Pembroke, and Elon twice. The team has lost only to High Point, by a close score. Coach John Stewart is high in his praise of the 1963 track men, outstanding among whom are Dave Klinger and Joe DeVault in the 880; Howard Braxton in the 440; Jim Williams and Bill Canteer in the 100; Jim Allen and Charles White in the 120 high hurdles; Jim Allen and Bud Dixon in the 220 low hurdles; Tim Ray and Roger Purgason in the shot put; Purgason and Buffalo in the discus; Harry Gardner in the pole vault; George Benjamin in the high jump; and Walter Gro-mada in the mile and two-mile.

The tennis team, coached by John Lambeth, had defeated High Point and Atlantic Christian by scores of 6-1 and 7-0. Members of the undefeated tennis team are Montie Milner, Steen Spove, Joe Benson, Walter Brown, Andy Brown, Dave Parsons III, Jim Hunt, and Chip Harrison.

The golf team, coached by Jerry Steele, is also undefeated, with victories over Catawba, Campbell, High Point, Atlantic Christian and Pfeiffer. Members of the golf team are Jim Stephens, Brinley McDaniel, Jim Schlosser, Lamar Evans, Steve Joyee and Ivey Wrenn.

BASEBALL

Coach Stuart Maynard is pleased with the early showing of his 1963 edition of the baseball Quakers, although pitching is again a problem. One promising freshman was ineligible after semester grades, but another freshman, Randall Parks, is exceeding fondest hopes. "He could be a good one," said Coach Maynard. "He can hit, too." Parks probably will also see duty in the outfield.

At this point, having two wins and three losses, Coach Maynard expects improvement. "We played errorless ball in our last game—and we can hit. If Mickey Herrin, junior, can regain his sophomore pitching form, and Kendall Buckner, sophomore, can continue to improve his control, we will be tough."

At the moment, the team shapes up this way: Barry Cook, sophomore, catcher; Mickey Faulk, junior, first

SPRING FOOTBALL

Assistant Coach John Stewart reported spring football practice as "most satisfying." Up to 35 aspirants worked out, weather permitting, and the final scrimmage was a spirited contest. Jimmy Williams, freshman quarterback sensation of last fall, looked promising. However, rising senior David Odom served notice by his performance that Williams will be pressed for the position. Also outstanding was Larry Addleton. Larry, father of two, and a pre-med student, lost the quarterback job to Williams last season after jamming a finger. He was used in the line, and played a key role in the two Quaker victories after mid-season. In varied line assignments, Addleton showed that he will be capable of holding his own with the tough Carolinas Conference linemen.

"Can't Miss" tags can also be placed on Buddy Dixon (B), Gary York (G), Eddie Gore (B), Billy Joye (B), and the two quarterbacks. Tolly Barber has great potential in the line, and Larry Walton is obviously improved at tackle. Larry Purgason could be the "take charge" tackle to replace David Wells, who is graduating.

The backfield is superb. Again line replacements will determine the level of success to be enjoyed by the 1963 Quakers.

BASKETBALL

Coach Jerry Steele's basketball Quakers gave the fans a good show of discipline-basketball; and rival coaches prepared for the Quakers very carefully. However, the won-lost record can reveal only five victories for the Quakers, and Coach Steele admits that reinforcements must come if the Quakers are to win more often—in spite of the fact that he loses none of his team by graduation. Bill Curran did not develop as "the big man," and Dan Kuzma, 6'2" forward, was moved into the pivot. He carried the team often with his stellar play, and was named to the All-Conference team. Coach Steele looks forward to some reinforcements and an improved season for 1963-64.

COACH OF THE YEAR

Jerry Steele, Guilford's basketball coach, was recently honored as the district NAIA "Coach of the Year." The district encompasses the Carolinas Conference and surrounding area, and involves small college conferences and schools.

Pop Warner Award

Charles Hendricks '40, Director of Admissions, has received the Pop Warner Award for service to youth. In a citation presented by Mildred Marlette '35, "Charlie," as he is known by all Guilfordians, was referred to as a "friend to the Guilford College student . . . maintains high ethical standards and works untiringly in the interest of a true church-related college."

"Here is a man who spends hours with students discussing campus problems and Guilford's standards . . . who is . . . sought, perhaps more than the majority of the faculty, by former students who visit the campus for Homecoming Day."

In its thirty-fifth season, the full choir has fifty-eight voices. Past tours have gone as far as Texas, as well as throughout the eastern United States from Florida to Massachusetts. This year's concerts were well received, with many compliments to the members for their excellent performances.

Programs were given at First Friends Meeting, Goldsboro; First Presbyterian Church, Daytona Beach, Fla.; First Methodist Church, St. Petersburg, Fla.; First Christian Church, Ocala, Fla.; Penn Community Center, Frogmore, S. C.; and First Presbyterian Church, Monroe, N. C.

Spring Tour Finds Alumni Inter-

The Spring Alumni Tour has been highly enjoyable and successful from the standpoint of attendance and interest shown in the college program. Participating in the program from the college have been Charles Hendricks, Gene Key, Clyde A. Milner, Harvey Ljung, Garness Purdom, E. Daryl Kent, David Morrah, Herbert Appenzeller, Edward Burrows, J. Floyd Moore, and Oscar Polhemus.

Harvey Ljung holds the distance record, having met with a group in Cincinnati, Ohio. Charles Hendricks has continued to be in great demand for his tours by visual aids of Guilford's campus. Pictures on these pages were taken at the meetings. Photographers were not present at the Woodland-Murfreesboro (Elwin Brown, Jr., '56, chairman) and Cincinnati (Byron Branson '51, chairman) meetings.

Winston-Salem and Goldsboro meetings were held after publication date.

Dr. E. Garness Purdom, visiting speaker at the Chapel Hill gathering of Alumni, enjoys visit with Eldon Parks '56, Bill Yates '53, and Ray Schirmer '58.

sted In Guilford's Development

An exciting basketball game between Guilford College faculty members and the championship team of 1934 was played at the Guilford College gymnasium on Saturday, February second. The '34 team, ably coached by Dr. E. Garness Purdom, and supported enthusiastically by cheerleader Mildred Marlette '35, was a crowd favorite.

The faculty team, composed of Coaches Appenzeller, Stewart, and Lambeth, along with other faculty members Key and Devlin, decided to protect the "old timers" with a "slow-down" game. The '34 team, recalling proud days, served notice that they didn't need any sympathy immediately, executing several fast breaks against the faculty five. The '34 team is shown above with "Coach" Purdom. L to R: Setzer Weston, Guilford College; H. A. "Hap" Purnell, Franklin, Va., team captain; Ted Griffin, Elkin; Stuart Maynard, Guilford College; and George Parker, George.

Case Resigns Hospital Post

James E. Case '40 has resigned as administrator of the Tuomey Hospital, Sumter, South Carolina. Case, whose resignation is effective April 28, has accepted a position as administrator of the planned 200-bed Catawba County Memorial Hospital which is to be constructed at a cost of nearly $4,000,000 at Hickory, North Carolina. During his seven years at Tuomey Hospital, it has grown from 168 beds to 201. He is a past president of the South Carolina Hospital Association.

Case came to Sumter after four years as administrator of Clarendon Memorial Hospital, Manning, S. C. This was his first post after taking a masters degree in hospital administration from the Medical College of Richmond, Virginia.

Mrs. Case, the former Jennie Stout, class of '41, and the children, Charles, Patsy, Jennie Lynn, and Janet, will remain in Sumter until school closes early in June.

William T. Lauten, Jr., '40

William T. Lauten, Jr., '40 is presently the flight acceleration facility chief at the Manned Spacecraft Center of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration at Houston, Texas. He has been working on a machine that will be used to train Apollo flight crews. The machine consists of an upright frame which extends a fifty-foot-long arm. At the end of this arm will be a twelve-foot gondola large enough to accommodate three men. Its major function will be to check out various spacecraft systems intended for use in Apollo missions.

Lauten was reared in Madison and attended school there before pursuing further education at Guilford. He obtained his masters degree in physics at the University of North Carolina. He has been in space work for seventeen years and has been with the National Advisory Commission on Aeronautics since it became a separate agency.

With Guilfordians Everywhere

Shown above are the children of Wallace "Wally" '50 and Virginia "Jitter" Hauser '48 Maultsby, Charlene, 10; Janie, 5; and Berry, 3. The Maultsby family resides in Decatur, Georgia, where Wally manages a trucking concern.

Dorothy Demos '52 Daye and her husband Richard L. Daye arrived back in the United States in October and are now living near Offutt Air Force Base. The Dayes lived in Japan for two and one-half years and learned much about Japanese customs and traditions.

Ann Bece '52 and Hardy Hardeastle have returned to Florida to live. They have four children: Scott, 9; Mike, 7; Laurie, 5; and Craig, 2. You can give to Guilford... and receive an income for life from the gift!

The Guilford College Life Income Plan enables you to make a substantial lifetime gift from capital without loss of income. Under a trust agreement you can transfer securities or other property to Guilford College while retaining the income on the market value of the property given. The property may be sold by the college, and the proceeds invested in other income-producing securities. The capital gain realized from the sale is not taxed, and the capital so invested is removed from your taxable estate. Both husband and wife (age 45 or more) may be included in a joint life and survivor arrangement. A portion of your original investment in this plan, the "remainder interest," is considered a charitable contribution and can be deducted for Federal income tax purposes.

A GIFT TO GUILFORD WITH INCOME RESERVED FOR LIFE CAN

- Provide a generous income for life from carefully supervised and widely diversified investments in a managed trust.
- Reduce income tax in the year you enter the Life Income Plan.
- Eliminate the capital gains tax on any appreciated property you give through the plan.
- Decrease estate tax by removing the property from your estate.
- Establish a permanent endowment fund in your name or to honor a loved one.

Over the Guilford Goal

"Outside" Greensboro Dana Challenge Met

The successful completion of Guilford College's efforts to raise $750,000 from alumni of the college, Quakers, faculty, students, college trustees and parents of students, and from business and industrial sources outside of the Greensboro community has been announced proudly by Co-Chairmen Ed Mendenhall of High Point and Rufus White of Greensboro.

As of July 8th a total of $762,000 had been secured in cash and pledges with a number of special gifts still expected.

The Dana Challenge, made by Charles A. Dana, New York industrialist and philanthropist, involves a total of $2,250,000 for construction of three buildings, and major additions to two others on the Guilford College campus. Of the total, Dana pledged $750,000 on condition that Guilford raise $1,500,000, one-half of it from the sources listed above and the other half from Greensboro business and industrial interests. Responsibility for the campaign completed recently was accepted by the college trustees and administration, and responsibility for the Greensboro campaign was accepted by a group of Greensboro business and industrial leaders known as the Dana Associates.

An intensive effort to complete the "Outside Greensboro" part of the Challenge began early in May. Seven simultaneous campaigns were conducted under the leadership of Mendenhall and White and both expressed appreciation to the campaign chairmen.

Dr. Clyde A. Milner expressed great pleasure at the success of this effort to meet the Dana Challenge, as well as confidence that the Greensboro business and industrial community would meet its portion of the Challenge. Approximately $425,000 has been pledged in the Greensboro solicitation, and an intensive effort will be made to conclude the entire Dana Challenge Program within the next few weeks. Dr. Milner stated that now, in actual fact rather than hope, every dollar raised in Greensboro is matched by two from outside sources.

Results of the seven campaigns follow: Trustees of the college individually pledged a total of $191,325; chairman of Guilford's trustee board is Robert H. Frazier of Greensboro. Special Gifts totaled $325,815; co-chairmen of this campaign were Edwin P. Brown of Murfreesboro, Ernie Shore of Winston-Salem, and Nereus C. English of Thomasville.

Alumni of the college pledged gifts amounting to $105,473; co-chairmen of the alumni campaign were

W. L. Beamon of Burlington and Seth C. Macon of Greensboro. N. C. Quakers individually, and through their churches, made pledges totaling $47,460; co-chairmen of the Quakers' campaign were F. Duval Craven and Sarah Mendenhall Brown, both of Greensboro. Solicitation of the parents of students at the college, with Mr. and Mrs. William G. Ragsdale, Jr., of Thomasville as co-chairmen, resulted in gifts totaling $37,745.

College faculty pledged $33,864, with Herbert T. Appenzeller of the campus and Charles G. Chilton of the Greensboro Division serving as co-chairmen of the campaign. Students of the two Guilford College units pledged $15,318, with David Miller of Salem, N. J., and Elizabeth Hardin of Greensboro serving as co-chairmen of student solicitation.

Honorary chairmen of the over-all campaign were C. Clifford Frazier of Greensboro and John C. Whittaker of Winston-Salem. Honorary treasurers were William J. Armfield, Jr., of Asheboro and B. Clyde Shore of Winston-Salem. Honorary Quaker chairmen were Byron Haworth of High Point and Seth B. Hinshaw of Guilford College.

Buildings involved in the current program are a men's dormitory for 256 students, a women's dormitory for 162 students, a new and enlarged power plant, an addition doubling the size of the college dining hall and an addition doubling the size of the college library. All construction has been completed with the exception of the library addition, work on which is expected to begin at an early date.

Mr. Dana has made a payment of $400,000 on his pledge, and the remaining $350,000 is to be paid upon completion of the Greensboro portion of the Challenge. He has also made, or indicated the intention of making additional gifts to Guilford totaling approximately $634,000.

Charles Lamb Gets M.D. Degree

Charles R. Lamb, Jr. '60, of Greensboro, was one of 55 members of the graduating class at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine who received the Doctor of Medicine degree June 3.

He was graduated in ceremonies at Wait Chapel on the Wake Forest College campus. Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges delivered the commencement address.

Dr. Steere preached the baccalaureate sermon and Dr. Larson delivered the commencement address. Both were heard in Dana Auditorium, and friends and parents of graduates filled the auditorium for both occasions.

A Message For Guilfordians

May I express my appreciation to the membership of the Alumni Association for the privilege of serving this year as its president. Let me assure each one of you that I will give my energies to carrying out an active alumni program. I feel sure that each of you would like to join me in extending to Linwood Beamon our sincere appreciation for the fine job he did as president. He brought new ideas to our group, and caused increased alumni participation in our college's total program.

We now begin the second year of the second quarter of the second century in the life of our college. You will note herein that the trustee-alumni portion of the Dana Challenge has been met. Great things are indeed in store for your college. However, private education faces its greatest challenge in the years ahead, and Guilford's continuing development can only be assured by the continued interest of all who love her. We must immediately turn our attention to an increased percentage of alumni participation. The burden will not be heavy, nor the task impossible, if we can broaden support at the base.

We want to assure the continuance of the concept of the private college in our society, and we can do this as we become more involved and interested in our own college's operation and program. May we count on your continued interest, which has been a sustaining force in the past? Or, if you have not been among your college's active supporters, won't you consider a more active role?

I am looking forward to seeing more Guilfordians than ever at on-campus events, and at alumni meetings. Please write or call me with any suggestions for our program for the coming year.

Dr. Milner Honored

At the Haverford College commencement exercises on June 7, 1963, President Clyde A. Milner of Guilford College was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws degree. His citation follows:

"Clyde Alonzo Milner, Quaker-born Southerner, graduate of Wilmington College and recipient of a Master of Arts from Harvard and Doctor of Philosophy from Hartford Theological Seminary, outstanding national leader and college educator of the Society of Friends, first at Earlham, and then able, tireless, imaginative president for twenty-nine years of Guilford College when it quadrupled its size and grew equally in strength; local civic leader, champion of improved educational standards for the church-related colleges of North Carolina, implementer of integration in his own college."

The exceptionally beautiful diploma given to Dr. Milner was designed and illuminated by Givlio Giannini, Artisan in Florence. The type face is Augustea, by Nebiolo of Turin, after the Alphabetum Romanum of Felice Feliciano, Verona 1460.

Guilford Is Growing Be A Part Of Her Growth

In Memoriam

JOSEPH DUNDAS COX

Joseph Dundas Cox of High Point, beloved senior member of the Guilford College Board of Trustees, died suddenly from a heart attack on May 3, 1963, at the age of 79 years. A member of Guilford's board for 41 years (1922-1963), he served the college during this long period with unusual ability and dedication, both as a member of many committees, and as Vice-Chairman of the board and Chairman of the Committee on Teachers and Officers. A distinguished citizen of his city, he was a successful business man and served effectively on the Housing Authority. As a Friend, not only was he a sustaining, active member of High Point Friends Meeting, but he exemplified in his gentle spirit the particular virtues associated always with the ideal Quaker. He had firm convictions steadily held, but he showed unfailing courtesy and gentleness toward those who differed from him. His family and his many friends relied upon his unfailing wisdom and strength, which were freely at their service. His cheerful outlook and friendly interest were always helpful to all who had any contact with him. Above all, he had deep inner resources of faith and devotion, which have left an inspiring impression upon those who knew him well.

Joseph D. Cox was born in High Point on December 29, 1883, a birthright member of the Society of Friends. He was the son of Dr. Joseph J. Cox of Northampton County and Mary Dundas Cox from Ingersoll, Ontario, both from long lines of Quaker ancestry. After early education in private schools and in the High Point city schools, Joseph D. Cox entered Guilford College in 1900 and was graduated with a B.S. degree in 1904. While a student at Guilford he met May Walton Riddick of Hertford, N. C., who became his devoted wife. She also was of a long line of dedicated Friends.

His interest in Guilford College came from the interest of those of his family who had preceded him. His grandfather, Jonathan Elliott Cox, and his grandmother, Elizabeth Hare, were in the first class of students entering New Garden Boarding School when that institution opened its doors in 1837. His father, Dr. Joseph J. Cox, became a trustee of the school in 1878, followed by his uncle, J. Elwood Cox. Throughout the forty-one years of service by Joseph D. Cox his great concern was that Guilford College should be and remain a center of the very best in Quaker and Christian education. Joseph D. Cox was a charter member of the High Point Monthly Meeting of Friends and served as a teacher, an elder, Superintendent of the Sunday School and as Clerk of the Meeting among other positions of effective service. He never declined responsibilities when they were given to him.

Surviving Joseph D. Cox are his wife and one son, Joseph J. Cox, both of whom live in High Point. Guilford College, the City of High Point, the High Point Monthly Meeting and the Society of Friends will long remember the contributions of this man who combined strength and gentleness in perfect proportion.

46th Summer Session

Guilford College's 46th Summer Session has the highest enrollment in its history. A total of 309 students are attending—206 men and 103 women. Some of these are accelerating their college work by means of this nine-week session, while others are taking special work to qualify for teaching certificates or other positions.

FOOTBALL

Herb Appenzeller, popular head football coach for several seasons, has been appointed Athletic Director and Professor of Education, and John Stewart has been named football coach. Herb is continuing his studies at Duke University, along with his ambitious schedule at the college. "I am looking forward to my new activities, and I hope to have more time to spend in promotion and other things that have lacked attention. Although I regret leaving coaching, I can say that we have a top man in John Stewart. Also, I think our general situation is the best in years. Jerry Steele was N.A.I.A. coach of the year; John Lambeth's intramural program has been highly successful; and Coach Stewart Maynard's baseball team did a great job this year. Our so-called "minor sports" program is flourishing. The soccer team is looking forward to a successful year, as are tennis, golf, and track teams."

Head Football Coach Stewart is eagerly awaiting his first season at the helm of the Quakers. "I wouldn't trade my first-line backfield for any in the conference," says John. "Senior Eddie Gore at fullback, junior Billy Joye at half, senior Buddy Dixon at half, and sophomore Jimmy Williams at quarterback make a formidable backfield. However, one injury could hurt us. We may have to move senior Larry Addleton back to the quarterback slot, although he can help us in the line. Senior David Odom is our only other signal-caller. Our halfback situation could be critical also. Harry Joye from Garner and Danny McQueen from Morehead City (freshmen) might be able to help, but it will be late season before we can expect them to get going."

Coach Stewart is proud of his line prospects. "We lost David Wells (T), Tommy Barnes (E), and Bob O'Daniel (E), but we will be stronger in depth. Sherrill Doby (G) is back after a year's layoff; C. O. Smith, along with freshman Emmett Jordan and stalwart junior Gary York remaining at the post, will make us stronger at guard. Prep school transfer, Gene Petty, and George Scott should strengthen us at tackle. And wait until you see George Wynne (215-pound converted center) at tackle! We have Purgason and Walton returning, also. Two ends are coming in: Bill Russell, 170, of Virginia Beach, Va., and Tommy Lovell, 195, of Roanoke. Both are fast. Bob Gauldin is back at center after a year's layoff due to an accident, and Regie Blaekburn, freshman from Kinston, will strengthen the position.

"We are expecting fifty boys September first. If we can keep backfield injuries down, watch out for us!"

Many Receive Honors During Alumni Day Festivities

Charles Milner '33 presents Walter Coble '20, retiring Maintenance Superintendent, with a special citation from the association.

Jack Tilley '49, Executive Committee member, presents Ezra Weis Memorial Cup to senior Judy Jones for her contribution in the area of music and choir.

Marion Ralls '48, Alumni Day Chairman presents gift on behalf of the Alumni Association to retiring president W. L. Beanon '32.

Alumni Day '63 was a particularly successful day. Chairman Marion Ralls '48 and his committee had plans worked out with precision.

The registration was moved back to Founders Hall, and visitors welcomed the return. A coffee hour for overnight guests and early arrivals at the Alumni House proved very popular. Jean Presnell Ralls '49 and Audrey Smith Duncan '51 served as hostesses. The class of 1963 was inducted at the Reunion Luncheon instead of in the evening, and the change proved a popular one for all concerned. Marion Ralls presided at the luncheon, and introduced head table guests, including the Alumni Executive Committee and Clyde and Ernestine Milner. Jack Tilley '49 presented the called Senior Richard Golby to the front to receive the symbolic key.

Charles Hendricks '40 who stated that "This is the first time I've had a seat on Alumni Day!" delivered the Alumni Address. He gave a roll call of great teachers at Guilford down to the present—"Where else has an institution been blessed with teachers such as: Peck, Hodgin, Newlin, Hobbs, Davis, Perisho, Binford, Newlin, Purdom, Campbell, Lasley, Furnas, Gilbert, Milner, and many others? Where else does such an institution have such promising young men to fill the shoes of the great teachers who depart?"

He recalled that fund-raising was necessary in the early days of New Garden as it is today. "And to those who would criticize our public relations designed to get the dollar today, remember that Harriet Peck, in the earliest days of New Garden told her students that the better impression they presented to visiting dignitaries, the more money they would contribute!"

He closed by stating that "A college can only be measured by her products. Guilford has measured up through the lives of Guilfordians throughout the world, performing on the top level of their particular area of endeavor."

Mildred Marlette '35 called Montie Milner, Senior Class President, forward in preparation for the induction of the Class of '63. In the presence of many parents and the largest Alumni gathering at the event, the class became members of the association.

Clyde Milner reported that the Dana Challenge program was within sight of fulfillment and lauded the work of Guilford's Alumni in making the announcement possible.

At the evening program, Dr. Clyde Milner welcomed those in attendance after they had enjoyed the second in the Alumni Day series of buffet dinners prepared by Harold Ray and Slater Food Services. W. L. Beamon served as master of ceremonies and presented Audrey Smith '51 Duncan for the invocation. V. R. White '25, classmate and friend of B. Clyde Shore '25, presented to him the Distinguished Alumni Award on behalf of the Alumni Association. Vivian White recalled that Clyde Shore had been industrious since his student days. "He sold books during the summer and sold insurance as a student . . . I can personally testify to that as I meditate on the premiums I am still paying!" He went on to say that since graduation he could not remember a time when the recipient did not have an active interest in Guilford College. Clyde Shore is a past president of the Alumni Association and currently a college trustee. Katherine Hine Shore Hall, a girls' dormitory, was made possible through his generosity. The B. Clyde Shore Journalism Scholarship has for many years aided worthy students in preparing for journalistic careers.

The "baby" class — the one-year-olds
Of nineteen and sixty-two
We now present with pleasure
Your last years' class to you.

And celebrating their fifth
Class reunion date
We present with pleasure to you
The class of fifty-eight.

Getting along in years
Another class we see
Celebrating its tenth
The class of fifty-three.

Still further along life's highway
At a still later date
Celebrating its twenty-fifth year
We present the class of thirty-eight.

And now we reach the "high spot"
We have waited all the years between
With the greatest pleasure present my class
The illustrious class of thirteen.

Ella Wood also announced that the Era Lasley Scholarship Fund, begun in 1960, has been oversubscribed as of Alumni Day. The scholarship was accepted by Dr. Clyde A. Milner in honor of Era Lasley '13, Registrar Emeritus who served her college 38 years.

The 1963-1964 School Year Begins

Graduates at Summer School Commencement

In forefront: Major L. P. McLendon, speaker, James B. Frye and Dr. Milner

Some hard realities of our world were spelled out on August 11 to 38 candidates for baccalaureate degrees from Guilford College by Greensboro attorney, Maj. L. P. McLendon, in summer school commencement exercises held in Dana Auditorium.

He spoke on "Good Citizenship in a Time of Change" and ranged over a number of problems reaching deep in our culture, including technological changes, philosophies of government and forces that affect our economy.

He said that while North Carolina has been singularly free of political demagoguery and has moved forward boldly to place itself in the mainstream of education and the nation's economy, it was strange that the General Assembly saw fit to prohibit Communist speakers on Tar Heel campuses.

One thing that Americans deplore most in Communist doctrine, he said, "is its stubborn refusal to permit free speech . . . no great evil has ever been defeated by efforts to keep young people ignorant."

He assured that educators are "humiliated and chagrined" by what this law means. Maj. McLendon has twice been awarded honorary doctorate degrees and only recently retired as chairman of the State Board of Higher Education.

Including 132 graduates in June, this was by far the largest graduation class in the history of the institution.

Two of the candidates were graduated with honors. They were Brenda Gail Yow Parker, A.B. in English, with a quality average of 2.50; and James Bradley Frye, A.B. in sociology, with an average of 2.78. Under this grading scale, 3.00 is perfect.

August graduates:

James Ray Albright, A.B., Physical Education; Sarah Asenath Andrew, A.B., Elementary Education; Peter Martin Barack, A.B., History; Thomas Eugene Barnes, A.B., Economics; Howard McCoy Braxton, Jr., A.B., Physical Education; Martha Ann Breitenhirt, A.B., French; Walter Jay Brown III, B.S., Chemistry; Jon Lawrence Burwell, A.B., History; Amos Daniel Cox, A.B., Economics; Charlies Leonidas Cranford III, A.B., Economics; Mack Anderson Edwards, A.B., Economics; Ronald Vincent Edwards, A.B., Economics;

Dr. Hardre To Be Honored

Dr. Jacques Hardre '37 will receive the famed Palmes Academique given by the French government for distinction in French letters.

He is Professor of French, Department of Romance Languages, UNC-Chapel Hill.

Dr. Hardre will receive the rank of chevalier, one of the three ranks conferred by the society. In the near future, a representative of the Cultural Attache of the French Embassy will come to UNC to confer the decoration on Dr. Hardre.

The decoration was founded by Napoleon I in 1808, and is given to only a few men throughout the world who have distinguished themselves in French letters. In 1955 the statutes were revised to include three ranks, that of knight or chevalier which Dr. Hardre will receive, the officer, and the commander.

Prof. Hardre is national president of the American Association of Teachers in French. He has participated widely in academic affairs and is well known for his distinction in French letters.

A native of Dinan, France, Dr. Hardre received his Baccalaureat Sciences-Langues in Paris, his B.A. degree from Guilford College and his M.A. and Ph.D. from UNC.

The purpose of the seminar is to provide students who are considering a future in textiles with the opportunity of hearing industry leaders discuss various aspects of the business and the future it holds for young people.

In addition to the students, representatives of many large textile firms and of the trade press were also on hand.

Guilford Is Growing Be A Part Of Her Growth

On the Quaker Sports Front

Publication schedules permit only a limited report on the 1963 football team, although the Hampden-Sydney, Elon, Western Carolina, Frederick and Lenoir Rhyne games will be history when the Journal is distributed. In the season's opener, Coach John Stewart was on the disappointing, losing end in his first game as head coach of the football team. The game with Hampden-Sydney was close. Late in the fourth quarter the visitors had completed two long touchdown passes and made one extra point, while Guilford had scored on a spectacular touchdown play by Billy Joye and Jimmy Williams. Late in the fourth quarter with the score 13-7 Guilford drove to the Hampden-Sydney thirteen-yard line. A pass play from Williams to Buddy Dixon missed by the barest of margins in the end zone. One more ground play failed and the opponents ran out the clock without giving up the ball again.

Coach Stewart is plagued with an old problem at Guilford—playing a rugged schedule at a disadvantage due to lack of depth at important positions. However, the picture is not all dark.

Sherrill Doby, 175-lb. senior, is back after a year's layoff. He is currently alternating at guard and center. John Samuels, a sophomore, has switched to center and is going to be of help. George Wynne, 195-lb. junior, is doing well at tackle. Of the '63 freshman crop, Coach Stewart says, "Lunsford may start on defense as a linebacker. Two guards, Dick Rankin and Skipper Smith, will play a lot of football. A pair of ends will also see plenty of action; they are Tom Lovell and Bill Russell. Tackle Gene Petty is injured, but he'll come back strong!" Stewart is proud of several other freshmen, but believes a little more time and development is needed to move them up.

"One thing for sure," says Coach Stewart, "we'll give a good show when we have the ball. Jimmy Williams, quarterback; Buddy Dixon, halfback; Billy Joye halfback; and Eddie Gore, fullback, give us a brilliant first-line backfield." Stewart has also been pleased with the work of a number of others and says without reservation that the players are showing they want to win and are working together. Coach Stewart is also high in praise of the able assistance of Coach John Lambeth and Basketball Coach Jerry Steele, who have helped whip the 1963 Quakers into shape.

BASKETBALL

Coach Jerry Steele, after a baptism of fire during the 1962-1963 basketball season, returned undaunted and eager for the 1963-1964 season. Steele, a product of Wake Forest basketball during the Len Chappell era, was named Coach of the Year in District 26, NAIA, despite his team's 5-20 record.

After a report termed gloomy by many in August, things are improving. Chuck Scott, 6-5½, will definitely be available for the second semester, and Charles Black, 6-5, is now eligible. Victor Gregory, 6-5½, is not yet a polished performer, but opponents will give him room when he charges down the court. Fred Rabb will not play, due to his desire to study full-time, but the big pivot man, 6-1 Dan Kuzma, is back. Bill Shirley, 6-2, Lloyd Turlington, 6-0, and guard Elwood Parker, 5-7, are also back. Steele hopes to convert Turlington into the guard position. Mike Allred, 6-2, can help considerably in the rebounding and scoring department.

Mrs. Milner Completes Term

Ernestine C. Milner has just completed a two-year term as president of Altrusa International. Under her leadership this pioneer service club for women has made important advances. Outstanding accomplishments were the adoption of a program for forming new clubs outside the United States and Canada, and the establishment of seven clubs in England and three in India, as well as the organization of a club in Manila, The Philippines.

For the period of her presidency, Mrs. Milner's slogan, "Make Real the Ideal," was directed particularly toward seven areas of accomplishment. These resulted in (1) a much better informed membership, (2) the production of many chronicles recording the history of individual clubs and districts, (3) many more projects in each community promoted and financially supported by local clubs, (4) marked increase in contributions to Altrusa's Founders Fund, (5) 30% increase in number of clubs holding career clinics for high school girls or job forums for mature women, (6) a minimum contribution of $2 per member for Grants-in-Aid, and (7) the development in many more clubs of direct relationships with a person or community abroad.

Ernestine Milner's service as Altrusa's president concluded with a very successful biennial convention held at Philadelphia in July. A week-long series of events culminated in an impressive banquet program, at which Pauline Frederick, NBS News UN correspondent, was the featured speaker. Dr. Clyde A. Milner proudly escorted his wife on this occasion, which was attended by many distinguished guests.

Ernestine Milner will continue, as immediate past president, to serve for two more years on the executive board of Altrusa International. Guilford is honored by her important participation in the work of this organization, which has, in turn, made the college known to a far-flung membership of 16,200 women.

Season's Greetings

The trustees, administration and faculty of Guilford College extend best wishes to all Guilfordians and friends of the college with the earnest and sincere hope that the true spirit of Christmas will live and grow in the hearts and minds of all men of good will everywhere.

In Memoriam . . . John Fitzgerald Kennedy

In unison with virtually all peoples throughout the world, students and faculty on Guilford College campus were deeply grieved upon hearing the news of the death of President John F. Kennedy on November 22. Different student groups held memorial services. Special devotionals were held in Founders Hall.

A memorial service was held in Dana Auditorium at 10:30 a.m. Monday, November 25, the day of the President's burial. David Miller, student body president, represented the student body; Dr. Algie I. Newlin represented the faculty at the service; and Dr. E. Daryl Kent represented the college administration.

Dr. Kent's remarks:

"We are met here this morning to do honor and pay our respects to the memory of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, late President of the United States. The shock and dismay which swept over us on Friday when we learned of his death cannot be adequately expressed in words. Few, if any of us, knew President Kennedy except as someone to read about or someone to listen to or to see on a television screen. Yet the sense of loss is a personal one, for he was our President, the leader of our country.

"Four times in the history of our country this kind of tragedy has occurred. It does not represent our way of life, for we believe in a government of law and not of men. But when men's minds, collectively or individually, are disturbed by passion and hatred, violence breaks out. The violence of Friday took the life of our President, yet our government goes on and our life goes on. As time passes our sense of tragedy and loss will be dulled, though I would hope that it will never be so dulled that we will forget that this man, John F. Kennedy, gave his life as surely as if he had died many years ago in the green waters of the South Pacific.

"I do not know whether or not Mr. Kennedy will go down in history as a great President. Only time, with its acid test, will answer such a question. His time in office was beset with many problems and crises. He assumed the responsibilities of his high office with dignity and a singular devotion to duty. Let us, on this our day of mourning for a great man, do honor to his name, and in so doing firmly resolve that we will uphold and support that system of government which has nurtured us all and for which John Kennedy gave his life."

Excerpts from David Miller's remarks:

"We, as students, not being influential, seemingly quite small in the occurrences, tragic and unbelievable, still have feelings of remorse that perhaps escape even those of high position. We were unbiased toward this man, John F. Kennedy, who was still and yet our President. In our joint sadness for the disaster which befell this great man, we can but remember in our deeds of the future that we must unceasingly strive for peace among all men; and for a world in which such supreme giving as his would no longer be necessary.

"I ask you, in reverence and in remembrance of his greatness, to observe his martyrdom as a lesson laid down, before the world, and in so doing to resolve ourselves to the attaining of the goals of peace for which he died."

Excerpts from Algie Newlin's remarks:

"During the past two days we have been present in a world-wide memorial service. Perhaps the death of no one in history has moved this nation and the world so suddenly and so completely as the death of President Kennedy. The shock has struck all classes of people in our country and in many nations around the world—people in all walks of life, from crowned heads and chiefs of state out to those in the humblest stations in society; those who were his closest associates in political life and those who differed sharply from his policies. Tears have dimmed the eyes of people in all these areas—even people beyond the Iron Curtain.

"Television had brought him into the living room of nearly every home in our land where in interviews his wit and wisdom, hopes and plans have been given in quiet conversational tones; and there, at other times, he has spoken out on the great issues which have rocked our society or threatened the peace of the world. Even those who differed from him came to recognize him as the leader and spokesman of the nation, in whose hands, more than in any others, rested the destiny of our nation and the security of all mankind.

"The first significant event to find its permanent place in my memory and start what knowledge I have of the history of the United States must have shocked me for it has been indelibly planted in my memory for more than sixty years. The place where the news reached me is clearly visible in my memory—the crossroads, my father and I in a farm wagon, and our rural mail carrier on the opposite side of the road. He had stopped to tell us that President McKinley had died—cut down by the gun of an assassin. Our weekly newspapers had not yet brought us the news. My father and Mr. Griffin talked as if they were shocked, and I must have been, too, for it is still vividly clear in my memory.

"How many times during the past two days have we heard the word 'shocked'? And how many of us have felt it? And how many times have we heard and perhaps felt, 'It can't be?' And that isn't strange, for this deed is so foreign to our spirit and concept of

Founders Day, 1963

On Founders Day these trustees of Guilford College paused long enough for this picture to be taken; seated: Byron Haworth '28, Secretary; Horace Haworth, Eunice Anderson Parker, Ruth Newlin Coble '37, B. Clyde Shore '25, Robert Frazier '19, Chairman; standing: Edwin Brown '26, F. Duval Craven, William Wolff '23, Rufus White, C. Gurney Robertson '13. Trustees N. C. English '26, Ed Mendenhall, Hugh Moore '20, Elton Warrick '26, and Luby Casey '20, were not present when the picture was taken.

Founders Day, celebrated on Friday, November 8, was considered by observers to be the most successful in years, both from the standpoint of attendance and program.

At the 10:30 a.m. convocation, Guilford's 40 Dana scholars for 1963-1964 were presented to students and Founders Day visitors. Also at the convocation Guilford College trustees were presented. At 1:00 p.m. the trustees met for luncheon, and at 4:00 p.m. a tea was held in the foyer of Dana Auditorium in honor of the trustees and Dana scholars.

At 6:30 p.m. a banquet was served to Quaker leaders from throughout North Carolina in commemoration of Founders Day. Highlight of the occasion was the "unveiling" of "An Introduction to the Cultural Resources of Guilford College," a new brochure outlining the basic educational program of Guilford College.

At 8:00 p.m. in Dana Auditorium Dr. Landrum Bolling, president of Earlham College, told a large audience that it is "up to Quakers to acquire a new vision in the field of higher education . . . Quakers pioneered in education over 300 years ago in England and the United States." The noted educator, speaking under the title, "Quaker Values in Higher Education," cited special qualities associated with Quaker higher education down through the years . . . especially in the field of training scientists, since Quakers have always refused to accept the idea of irreconcilable conflicts between religion and science . . . have always been concerned about social and political problems including the area of racial and religious prejudice.

"A Quaker college ought to help a student vocationally, but more important, should help him find himself spiritually and morally."

New Publication Is Shown

On Founders Day Guilford College showed for the first time its new educational and promotional brochure, the purpose of which is to show the distinctive qualities of Guilford's liberal arts program. Representing careful study by faculty members and the Charles A. Dana Scholars over the past several years, the new publication is titled "An Introduction To The Cultural Resource Program At Guilford College." Those who have attended Guilford will see that its contents are based on that body of knowledge embraced by the core curriculum, and those not familiar with Guilford's educational program will find in it an introduction, in brief, to an educational concept that has been highly regarded for many years and adopted by many other institutions.

The new brochure is 8½" x 11" in size and contains 20 pages plus its cover. Colors used are dark grey, red, blue, yellow and black. Following a preface by President Milner, there is a visual and written interpretation of the entire educational program at Guilford.

In their studies, the Dana Scholars and faculty members selected 124 individuals who have made outstanding contributions to the development of civilization. Two requirements were met by each individual included in the brochure. The first was that his contribution was in the nature of a "milestone" or breakthrough, and the second was that his work and ideas are brought to the attention of all Guilford students. On a gatefold centerspread, the names of these individuals are shown chronologically and with a color key to designate the field in which they worked. Six periods of history are covered in the study: Oriental-Eastern (to 550 B.C.), Greek (550-50 B.C.), Christian (50 B.C.-A.D. 476), Medieval (476-1453), The Age of Empirical Science (1453-1492), and The Atomic-Space Age.

The "Immortals of Culture" are identified in the fields of religion, philosophy, social science, chemistry and physics, mechanics, biology, sculpture, painting and architecture, music and literature. Because 70 of these individuals made contributions to civilization of an unusually outstanding nature, even compared with the others selected, they are represented by special identifying statements. Included with the statements are listings of their major works or concepts.

The brochure concludes with a four-color chart showing The Ebb and Flow of Cultural Emphasis during the period covered by this study. The back cover bears a translation of the latin on Guilford's seal, "I Am Applying Myself To Wisdom and Virtue."

It is the belief of Guilford's administration that this new publication will be of value to teachers and to students, and that it will be of interest to all who are concerned with distinctive higher education.

Rufus White Is On National Insurance Board

Rufus White, recently-appointed Guilford College trustee and Greensboro insurance executive, was named to a three-year term on the Board of Directors of the Life Insurance Agency Management Association at its annual meeting in Chicago on November 13. The LIAMA, with headquarters in Hartford, Conn., is made up of top executives from major life insurance companies throughout the country.

White, senior vice-president of Pilot Life Insurance Company and a member of its Board of Directors, has been with that company since 1934. He is a graduate of the University of North Carolina and is a member of First Friends Meeting in Greensboro. He is married and has three daughters and one son. He and his family reside at 2500 W. Market Street.

Dr. Clyde A. Milner, president of the college, expressed pleasure at the news of White's appointment. He said that since the insurance executive's acceptance of a position on the college board of trustees, "he has added dynamic vision to this distinguished group."

Ed Mendenhall

Is President Of National Real Estate Association

Guilfordians will be pleased to know of the election of Guilford College trustee, Ed Mendenhall, to the position of president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. Ed Mendenhall had served this organization on its executive committee since 1950, with the exception of a single year.

He has been in the real estate field since graduation from UNC in 1930, and is now senior partner in Mendenhall-Moore, Realtors, in High Point, N. C. He has been president of the High Point Real Estate Board on two occasions, president of the North Carolina Association of Real Estate Boards, vice-president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, president of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, and president of the Realtors Institute; he served the government as one of four representatives of the industry in setting up rent controls during World War II.

Mendenhall's busy professional life has not prevented him from giving bountifully of himself in church and civic endeavors. He has served as president of the High Point Chamber of Commerce, president of the Community Chest, and president of the American Business Club. He served as Clerk of Meeting, High Point Friends Meeting, is a trustee of the Meeting and was a member of the executive committee for the Building Council. Shortly after accepting responsibility as a member of the Guilford College Board of Trustees in 1962, his enthusiastic leadership as co-chairman of the Dana Challenge Program helped bring the effort to a successful end in 1963. Dr. Clyde A. Milner, college president, expressed appreciation for his work as trustee, and stated that "Ed Mendenhall's vision and leadership will stand him in good stead during his term of office in his new and important position."

Charles Hendricks, Director of Admissions, recently attended a meeting of the National Association of College Admission Counselors, held at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa. There were present 1,550 high school and college admission counselors from all over the United States.

Morphis Family Returns

James O. '53 and Isabel Thayer Morphis, Jr. '55 and their nine-months-old son, Clay (shown above), recently returned to North Carolina following a two-year stint at the United States Public Health Service Indian Hospital, Pine Ridge, South Dakota. They departed for South Dakota in June 1961 after Jim received his M.D. degree and completed his internship and two years residence in pediatrics at the Duke University Medical Center. While in South Dakota Jim and Issy enjoyed hunting buffalo, antelope, deer and pheasant. They also became interested in the Indian horse, Appaloosa, and procured two registered Appaloosas, which they brought back with them. Jim's reputation in South Dakota can be described by quoting an editorial which appeared in a recent issue of the Shannon County (South Dakota) News: "Why hasn't the Tribunal Council invited such a pediatrician as the good Dr. Morphis to stay on here among the Indian people?" This excerpt is a portion of an editorial admonishing the Indian people for their lethargy. Jim, incidentally, served as medical officer in charge of the Indian Hospital. Jim is presently serving as chief resident in the Department of Pediatrics at the Duke University Medical Center, and will complete his chief residency in June 1964.

Friends School Is Visited

On October 14, Dr. Milner and Charles Hendricks attended Friends School Day which was held at Moorestown Friends School, Moorestown, N. J. In attendance from the 650 secondary schools were teachers and administrators of Friends Schools from Washington, D. C., to Poughkeepsie, N. Y. The following Guilfordians were in attendance: Tom Purdy '43, headmaster of Oakwood School, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Wilbert Braxton '32, assistant headmaster of William Penn Charter Friends School, Philadelphia, Pa.; Harold Jernigan '52, teacher of chemistry, Friends School, Wilmington, Delaware; Janice Greene, teacher of biology and head resident of a girls' dormitory at Oakwood School, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Tidewater, Va., Alumni Meet

October 12 was a red-letter day for Tidewater (Virginia) area alumni, visiting Guilford College representatives, and Frederick College.

The Tidewater Alumni Chapter arranged for a day and evening's activities in conjunction with the Guilford-Frederick football contest, played at the first Homecoming celebration held by Frederick. Approximately 100 fans cheered Guilford's Quakers, who lost a well-played game 16-13. A tea was given in honor of Dr. Clyde A. Milner at the faculty club following the game.

At 6:30 Tidewater's alumni dined with the Guilford team in Frederick Dining Hall and enjoyed a program arranged by Horace McManus '54, chairman of the Tidewater Alumni group, following the meal. Horace had musical entertainment in store for the group, and members of the football team were delighted. Representing the college in addition to Dr. Milner were: Charles Hendricks, Director of Admissions; Gene Key, Alumni Secretary; John Stewart, head football coach; and John Lambeth, assistant coach.

The speaker took issue with what he referred to as "the prophets of doom—those who predict that one-half of church colleges will disappear in the next few years . . . we will have to believe more firmly, work harder, and give more generously, as well as to think more creatively. I am afraid our basic problem is that we are not Christian enough," he said.

On the Quaker Sports Front

What could have been one of the most successful seasons in Guilford College football turned into a disappointing one for the Quaker eleven. With one game remaining at time of publication, the team was yet to be listed in the win column. Supporters of the team had many thrilling moments and saw the most exciting offensive play in recent college history.

However, in direct contrast to last season, the Quakers' injury list started before the season began and grew to alarming proportions shortly after the season began. Coach Stewart had to fill vacancies with inexperienced personnel, and often had to move seasoned performers into strange positions in an attempt to stop the opposing team.

The performance of Jimmy Williams must rank as one of the outstanding stories in the Carolina Conference this year. The sophomore quarterback, who directed the "T," the single wing, and the shotgun offenses with equal dexterity, broke all school records for total offense and flirted with the 1500-yard-plus total which represents the conference record.

The publicity surrounding the feats of Williams often obscured the fine performances of Buddy Dixon, Gary York, Eddie Gore, and Billy Joye. Dixon covered the secondary on defense with fantastic range. Dixon and Joye were favorite targets for the passing of Williams. York played guard on offense and defense, and his blocking and tackling drew admiration from opposing coaches. Joye, a favorite always on press row, continued to be a dangerous runner and the conference's leading kicker; and became a formidable pass-receiver.

As for prospects for the 1964-65 season, Coach Stewart loses Buddy Dixon, Sherrill Doby, David Odom, George Wynn, Larry Addleton, Dillard Norman, Eddie Gore, and Roger Purgason. Yet Coach Stewart terms his freshman crop the best in years; and Williams, Joye, York and Van Etten are among those returning.

At the time of this publication, Coach Jerry Steele will have perhaps eight games completed on the 1963-64 schedule. The popular sophomore coach has had very little to say about his current crop of eagles. The young coach has worked the team very often on defense, as he felt this was their big failing last year when they experienced a 5-20 record.

Coach Steele, NAIA District 26 Coach of the Year in 1963, admits, however, that his team is improved. He lost no one from last year's team. However, he is painfully aware of the rugged competition in the Carolinas Conference.

He cannot hide his optimism about Charles Black, 6'5" Greensboro Grimsley star, and Chuck Scott, Greensboro Page, transfer from East Carolina who will become eligible the second semester. Also, Steele can't suppress a smile at the mention of Wayne Motsinger, freshman from East Forsyth.

He also is naturally high in praise of Dan Kuzma, 6'1" center and forward, All-Conference last year. Ellwood Parker, senior guard, will perhaps direct the attack after a full year's first line experience, and Lloyd Turlington, junior forward, is being converted to play opposite Parker at the other guard position. Front line depth, on the surface, looks the best in several years. Senior Mike Allred is a strong rebounder, a proven offensive performer, and is working hard on defense. Bill Shirley returns as a forward; Dan Kuzma alternates at forward and center, along with Charlie Black; Wayne Motsinger may be used some at forward; and Chuck Scott will be eligible in January for the forward position.

The institution of soccer as a major sport at Guilford College seems assured, as interest has risen steadily during the two years the sport has been played on campus.

At the time of this report two important games remained for Coach Stuart Maynard's team—Wake Forest and UNC freshmen. Guilford defeated Wake Forest earlier, 2-0. "A split in these games would give us a 5-4 record; two wins would make this season a very successful one," said Coach Maynard.

He pointed out two high points in the season—our victory over a strong State team (4-1), and our defeat of Appalachian (2-0). The fourth win was over Belmont-Abbey, 3-1.

As to the future, things look bright for the sport. Many new students each year are interested in the sport, and we have a good nucleus returning. We lose Jon Cox and David Seidler, and theirs will be big shoes to fill. However, we have returning Kirk Russell, a sophomore (Maynard rates him among the best soccer players in North Carolina), Ray Smith, and Andy Brown. Andy has gained a great deal of respect as a goalie.

The Quakers' three losses thus far have been to Davidson 2-5, Pfeiffer 1-3, and Warren-Wilson 0-8.

Enjoying tea served by Miss Carolyn Kirkman '64 at reception honoring Dana Scholars were: Landrum Bolling, president of Earlham College and main speaker; Rufus White, trustee; and Dr. Clyde A. Milner. Miss Kirkman, from High Point, is WSC president, and is a Dana Scholar.

Homecoming Day, celebrated Saturday, November 9, was a significant and enjoyable occasion for all who attended, and top honors went to Floyd Pate '28, head meteorologist at the Greensboro-High Point Airport, who delivered a beautiful, 78-degree sunny day.

The event followed a successful Founders Day program the day before, which was the best attended in several years.

The Homecoming Committee added two events to the usual Homecoming Day activities, and these proved popular with alumni and friends in attendance. The 11:00 a.m. faculty reception for alumni drew favorable comment from both faculty and visitors. The 5:30 p.m. Alumni Banquet had a pleasant beginning and is expected to become a regular event on Homecoming Day in the future.

Student chairman, Bert Bennett '66, put on one of the best Homecoming shows in recent years, according to observers usually on hand each year for the occasion. The show started with a parade from Quaker Village Shopping Center, down Friendly Road, and through the campus; it paused until halftime during the Guilford-Maryville football game, at which time the parade continued in front of 2500 spectators in the stands and around every corner of Armfield Athletic Center. The Quakers lost the hard-fought football game 14-7.

Roe Pearce '67 was named Homecoming Queen; Beverly Moore '66 was chosen Maid of Honor. The new men's and women's dormitories won prizes for decorations, and Shore Dormitory was awarded the prize for the best float. Shore Dormitory was awarded the Challenge Trophy for the best over-all Homecoming Day project.

Young folks were in attendance for Homecoming. Above are: Marcus Allred '62, Amanda Gough Allred '62, Pat Larracey '64, Judy Jones Larracey '63, and Becky Thomas (Mrs. Dwight '62).

Herbert Appenzeller, Director of Athletics and Professor of Education, pleased the Homecoming Banquet audience with his address entitled, "Only at Guilford."

Pictures on these pages portray in part the traditional event.

Miss Mary Catherine "Kitty" Upchurch, director of student activities, has been named chairman of Homecoming Day for 1964. Miss Upchurch was selected at a recent meeting of the Guilford College faculty. She will work with a committee of representatives from the Student Legislature, the Alumni Executive Committee, the Guilfordian, the cheer leaders, the Department of Maintenance, the Dean of Students, and the Women's Athletic Association in the promotion of the event.

She announced that it is hoped that a date can be selected soon and that information can be sent to alumni several months prior to the event.

Miss Upchurch came to Guilford College in 1957 and has been associated with the Department of Physical Education since that time. She is a graduate of Campbell College and holds a degree from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She also serves as head resident of Shore Dormitory.

All seem to be enjoying what Herb Appenzeller, Homecoming Banquet speaker, has to say.

"King" David Caldwell

Guilfordians over the past forty-six years will be saddened to hear of the passing of their friend, "King" David Caldwell, recently.

David Caldwell cooked for Guilfordians for the first time in 1916 and retired in 1958 due to ill health. The stories surrounding David Caldwell are legendary. Up to his last days his keen memory fondly recalled incidents with students and personnel at Guilford College. He was acutely aware and appreciative of the rapid improvements that have come to the college during his association with the institution.

The history of Guilford College bears the conspicuous imprint of the life of David Caldwell, king for many years at Founders Hall kitchen.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy

democratic society. Very few of your friends remember McKinley, and possibly few of you know anyone who remembers Garfield. But history gives us cold, shocking facts. When President Kennedy died, history could tell us that in the one hundred years prior to that moment one out of every five of the Presidents of the United States had been cut down by an assassin's bullet. No other great nation in that time had such a tragic record. In our grief today we stand in humility before the world and before God.

"Of all the numerous tributes from the multitude of those in high and low stations in life, that by the Prime Minister of Great Britain may be singled out: 'Everything in one cried out in protest . . . this young, gay, and brave statesman, killed in the full vigor of his manhood, when he bore on his shoulders all of the cares and hopes of the world . . . A man of peace and a man with a deep religious faith, dedicated to healing the divisions between men . . . and a man who hated bigotry, who believed all men were equal.'

The last words of President Kennedy's undelivered Dallas address might well be rising loud and clear from the depth of the soul and purpose and history of the American nation, to challenge the conscience and thoughts and actions of us all as we move in this power-drunk age. May we ponder this message:

"We ask, therefore, that we may be worthy of our power and responsibility—that we may exercise our strength with wisdom and restraint — that we may achieve in our time and for all time the ancient vision of peace on earth, good will toward men. That must always be our goal—and the righteousness of our cause must always underlie our strength. For as was written long ago: Except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain."

Mrs. E. H. Gilbreath, Jr., Greensboro poet and a graduate student, was scheduled to speak to the Guilford student body Friday, November 29. The events of the past week had caused, in her words, the poetry she had planned to read to "fall off their pages and onto the floor, to be swept up the next time I clean my study." Instead the speaker read a moving letter from Mrs. Gilbreath to Guilford students. Excerpts from the letter follow:

"This past week has, perhaps, been the longest and shortest week this generation of Americans has ever known, when so many of us have become a great deal older and have experienced a maturity that we have never known.

"Resolutions! I wonder how many were made this past week? And why it is that it takes a tragic death to make us resolve? Is it because we have evolved so little from a barbaric state that it is still necessary for

J. Edwin Jay

Word has come of the passing of J. Edwin Jay, who served on the Guilford College faculty from 1907-1912. He taught in Ohio and Indiana public schools and at Friends University and Guilford before becoming Wilmington College president in 1915. At Friends he was professor of mathematics and Bible, in addition to administrative duties as vice-president for eight years. At Guilford he was Dean of the College and professor of Bible.

According to Oscar F. Boyd's history of Wilmington College, "The administration of President Jay was a fruitful one." New buildings were added and old ones remodeled. During his 12-year tenure, Lebanon National Normal University was merged with Wilmington, and two campaigns raised the endowment from $80,000 to $231,000.

Jay resigned as president of Wilmington College in 1927, and no information is available here on his activities after that date. He wrote a "Narrative of My Years at Wilmington College," published in 1951. He had lived in Detroit since 1950.

The Alumni Association has recently learned of the death of Leslie Winston Pearson '09. Mr. Pearson, who received his M.A. from the University of North Carolina, was a farmer in Dudley, N. C.

Maury Hayne Stratford, who attended the Preparatory Department of Guilford, recently passed away. Previously to his retirement he was employed by Vick Chemical Company in Greensboro, N. C.

Robert (Flash) Gordon '49, former Guilford football star, passed away in Washington, D. C., after an abdominal operation on October 28.

The many friends of George Martin Manuel '56, will be sorry to learn of his death this past June 20.

us to experience the catharsis of real tragedy before we resolve to dedicate our own lives to the cause of life itself? We have experienced in this latter half of the twentieth century what Edith Hamilton called in The Greek Way 'the height of tragedy'—not the maudlin sentimentality of the kind of tragedy that we can get down and wallow in, but rather tragedy that should raise us to the very best of our potential. I am so sorry that once again someone had to die to make us know how sorry we would be.

"The question I dare ask for the first time, and even the answer, I dare to write to you here. I have to write because I realize the barbaric state we still are in after so many, many years of so-called civilization."

Model of Guilford's Proposed World Culture Center

Distinctive World Culture Center Planned For Guilford

Included among the special facilities planned for Guilford College's educational program is a World Culture Center which will be a part of the proposed administration-classroom building to be constructed when funds become available. A model of this room is pictured on the cover of this issue of the Alumni Journal. It shows the portion of the room to be devoted to permanent exhibits.

The World Culture Center has been designed primarily for educational purposes, but with certain distinctive features that will make it exciting to the eye as well as to the mind. While the Center will be used as a teaching aid in all areas of undergraduate study at Guilford College, it is hoped that it will also be used by the Greensboro community. The college plans to make it and its facilities available to civic groups and to others interested in broadening their knowledge of world cultural development.

The World Culture Center will be a room tastefully appointed in the classic manner. Half of the room will be devoted to permanent electrically operated exhibits. These exhibits will introduce college classes, or community groups, to the Cultural Resource Program at Guilford. The other half of the room will be free space, devoted to the showing of temporary exhibits in such fields as painting, sculpture, architecture, medicine, biology and the physical sciences. Many such exhibits are available at small cost from the larger museums and from business and industrial firms. Seating in the World Culture Center will be on a slanted circular platform which will accommodate forty persons, and which can be rotated 360 degrees so that attention can be focused on exhibits in any part of the room.

The following permanent exhibits will be installed in the end of the room shown in the cover picture:

A. THE IMMORTALS OF CULTURE. This will be an electrically-operated panel, 20' wide on the end wall which will show the names of the individuals who have made the most outstanding contributions to the development of civilization over the past 3,000 years. Each name will be on a translucent panel lighted from behind. It will be possible for the instructor to illuminate all of the names in any one of the six historical periods (The Oriental-Eastern, to 550 B.C.; The Greek, 550-50 B.C.; The Christian, 50 B.C.-A.D. 476; The Medieval, A.D. 476-A.D. 1453; The Age of Empirical Science, A.D.-1453-1942; The Atomic-Space Age, 1942 to the present), or to illuminate all the names in any single category, the categories being religion, philosophy, social science, chemistry and physics, mechanics, biology, sculpture, painting and architecture, music and literature. It will be possible with this exhibit to show students the relationship between developments in the major areas of human thought, and to call attention to the outstanding men and women who created the works of art, the major ideas and the great social movements in any given period.

B. THE EBB AND FLOW OF CULTURAL EMPHASIS. This exhibit will be a panel 10' wide on the side wall. It will be electrically operated and will show the periods in which major emphasis has been placed on cultural developments in the three major areas—religion and philosophy, scientific research, and art. It will be possible for the instructor to use this exhibit to show how the individuals represented on Exhibit A exerted their influence on cultural development in the various historical periods.

C. The draped alcove shown beside the lectern in the Center will contain a transcription player. From the lectern it will be possible to select outstanding music created by the musicians represented on the "Immortals of Culture" panel, Exhibit A.

D. An ante-room along the other side wall (not shown in the model) will contain a back-screen projector, also controlled from the lectern. Using this, the instructor will be able to show, on a screen 6' wide, slides and film strips of an artistic, scientific or biographical nature. It is intended that a library of such visual material will be maintained to support the other exhibits in the World Culture Center.

The exhibits listed above are designed to make possible graphic interpretation of the cultural resources program at Guilford. It is intended that they can be used in all core curriculum courses to show how the various fields of human endeavor and achievement are inter-related. It will not only be possible to demonstrate the threads connecting development in any particular field, such as philosophy, but also to show how individuals who made major contributions to civilization were influenced by others during any given period.

It is believed that the interest and sense of purpose of all students will be greatly increased when they are able to see that developments in each succeeding period were based in a marked degree upon what had been done before, that the cultural heritage we know today is the product of creative thinking over several thousand years, and that the present will have an equally strong effect on the future of civilization.

Reynolds Family Reunion

The seven children of Mrs. Herbert W. Reynolds gathered at the home of John Reynolds '25 in Greenville, N. C. over the weekend of January 11-12 to celebrate the 90th birthday of Mrs. Reynolds.

Ninetieth birthday celebrations are considered somewhat unusual, but the celebration of Mrs. Reynolds' birthday was of a very special significance for Guilfordians. Her husband, the late Herbert W. Reynolds, was a member of the Class of 1893. All of her children attended Guilford College, and six graduated.

The Reynolds family has distinguished itself and Guilford College through useful lives in the respective vocations of its members. Ruth Reynolds Hockett '23 has been an outstanding educator and leader among N. C. Friends. John '25 served East Carolina College for many years. Paul '28 is Dean of the Graduate School at Florida State University. Mary Reynolds Starbuck '31 is a retired educator and homemaker now living in California. Nathan '34 is a former teacher and banker in Fayetteville. Thomas '38 is head of the Department of Mathematics at William and Mary College in Williamsburg, Va. David '33 is an agriculture teacher in Wilkesboro, N. C.

The children and direct descendants of Mrs. Reynolds have compiled a fantastic record of teaching in public schools and colleges for a total of 296 years!

The Fourteenth Ward Lecture

Guilford's 130th Charter Day Commemoration was the occasion for The Fourteenth Ward Lecture given by M. Albert Linton on January 17, 1964. Subject of the Lecture was "Thomas Gilbert Pearson, Untiring Protector of Birds."

T. Gilbert Pearson, a graduate of Guilford College, devoted almost all of his adult life to the establishment of protective laws for birds and other wildlife. He was one of the founders of the National Association of Audubon Societies and served for many years as its president. Pearson made one of the most extensive and complete collections of birds and bird eggs in existence, and this collection is now in the possession of Guilford College. He was the author of a number of books and was editor of "Birds of America."

During his years at Guilford he became editor of the college magazine, president of his literary society, manager of the baseball team, and captain of the football team—which he frankly said made a poorer showing than any prior Guilford team. In the fall of 1896, he was appointed to the position of state geologist in Chapel Hill. During this period Gilbert made many trips in the field, making first-time records of birds not previously found in the area.

In 1924 Pearson was awarded the Doctor of Laws degree by the University of North Carolina. He died in 1943 at the age of seventy. Shortly before, he had been on a journey through most of South America, working as always in the interests of wildlife protection. With his death the world lost a valiant, effective conservationist. His work was widely recognized. He received the medal of the John Burroughs Association, the National Order of the Oaken Crown from Luxembourg, and the medal of the Societe Nationale d'Acclimation from France.

On Friday evening, January 17, 1964, the Pearson bird collection was presented as a loan to the Greensboro Historical Museum. On Saturday morning Albert Linton showed full-color motion pictures of birds from Florida to British Columbia, with comments of his own, to an enthusiastic audience of young people from Greensboro and Guilford County schools.

The Ward Lecture was established at Guilford College to honor Eudema Bales Ward and her husband, the late Jeremiah Montgomery Ward, of Tennessee, and to implement in a constructive and creative way their concern for education and leadership within the Society of Friends.

M. Albert Linton is best known for his distinguished career in the life insurance field. From 1931 to 1952 he was president of Provident Mutual Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia, and from 1953 until Slated for reunions this year are these special anniversary classes: first, 1963; tenth, 1954; twenty-fifth, 1939; fiftieth, 1914; and the Fifty-Year group. Regular reunion classes are: 1958, 1957, 1956, 1955, 1938, 1937, 1936, 1920, 1919, 1918, 1917.

On-campus housing will be available for overnight guests, and baby-sitting services will be furnished. The traditional Reunion Luncheon will again be the scene of the induction into the Alumni Association of the graduating class. The annual Alumni Banquet will feature the presentation of the Distinguished Alumni Award and other citations. The banquet will again be served as a buffet by popular request.

At the Reunion Luncheon, the coveted Key Senior Award, and other alumni citations to the Class of 1964 will be presented. Tickets for both occasions will be $2.00 per person, with special prices for children. Lodging will be $1.50 per night per person.

Co-chairmen Pipkin and Duncan announced that much publicity regarding the event will be received by every Guilfordian during the spring; and that any other class or group may schedule a special reunion by contacting the Alumni Day Committee, Alumni Office, Guilford College, N. C. 27410. Early reservations may be made also by contacting the committee.

David Sebold Receives Recognition As Artist

Word has come of the success of artist N. David Sebold '54 of 325 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn 5, N. Y. David writes of a successful showing of his work in Gallery 84, 84 E. 10th Street, New York City, in February. As a result of the show, another one-man exhibit will be shown in the art gallery of Stratford College, Virginia.

David's work is among collections at Randolph-Macon College, Stratford College, Safad Museum in Israel, and others. David is pictured above with some of his works.

"Homemaker" Honor Given Rosemary Whatley

Rosemary Nunn Whatley '43 was recently named "Georgia Homemaker for the Third Congressional District." Rosemary and her husband, E. C. Whatley, live in Reynolds, Georgia. She is the daughter of Paul and Alma Crutchfield Nunn, both of the class of 1914.

Listed with her accomplishments are those of three of her four children. Lynda, 15, was county spelling champion for two years; Jimmy, 12, won second place in the Macon junior golf tournament; and Nancy, 10, won a Taylor County 4-H Life Award. The youngest child, Susan, is two.

Rosemary is first vice-president of the Reynolds Woman's Club, is vice-chairman of the Reynolds Golf Club, and is a former Girl Scout leader. She was responsible for such civic improvements as securing school playground equipment and benches. She helped raise funds to build a bathhouse at the local swimming pool, helped raise funds for Girl Scouts and Boys' Estate, the Red Cross, Cancer Drive, and Heart Fund.

She teaches Sunday school, has been a class mother every year since her children started school, and has taught nursery school every year for the past twelve years. She sews, cooks, does her own interior decorating, and reads extensively.

1958 was chairman of the Board of Directors. He is now a director of that company. In 1960 he was elected to the Life Insurance Hall of Fame.

Albert Linton's great and continuing interest in natural science, and especially ornithology, makes him unusually well qualified to speak about Thomas Gilbert Pearson. Presently Linton is a director of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences, and of the Wistar Institute of Anatomy and Biology. He also is a member of several ornithological organizations. As a member of The Society of Friends, Albert Linton serves on the Board of Managers of Haverford College and as a director of the American Friends Service Committee.

BY A. J. CARR, '65

Lloyd Turlington (No. 50) goes for the basket as a Western Carolina defender challenges. All-Conference Dan Kuzma (No. 22) prepares for a rebound effort.

The good fortune which Guilford College's basketball teams have pursued for so long, but which has so often eluded them, did not escape entirely during the 1963-1964 season.

The Quakers assured themselves a winning season and won a tournament berth, accomplishing two of the major goals young and wise Coach Jerry Steele set for his cagers. When the Journal went to press, Guilford was 12-8 with three games remaining.

Dan Kuzma, in the final, but unforgettable season of an illustrious career, has never played better. He scored, rebounded, and was Guilford's "Mr. Everything." Called by Coach Steele "the best offensive player for his height (6-2) that I've ever seen," Kuzma hit the nets for more than 23 points a game, grabbed an average of 11 rebounds and shot better than 61 per cent from the floor through 20 games. From these statistics, it might seem that the Matawan, N. J. senior was the entire team, but others played key roles.

Freshman sensation Charlie Black, who played the first 15 games before losing eligibility, helped solve the Quaker height problem. He grabbed 10.8 rebounds a game and scored 11.1 points per contest. Guard Elwood Parker provided a strong backcourt scoring punch, and Lloyd Turlington turned from score-maker to playmaker during much of the season before switching back to his usual forward position in the waning stages of the season. Chuck Scott, a transfer student who gained eligibility at the second semester, wasted little time living up to expectations. Others who contributed greatly to Guilford's best cage season in years include Mike Allred, Bill Shirley, David Odom, Paul Updegraff, Wayne Motsinger, and Gary Halperin.

BASEBALL

"They can hit, they can play defense, and if the pitching staff comes around they can win!" That's what baseball Coach Stuart Maynard thinks about his 1964 club. First baseman Mickey Faulk, a .353 hitter and most valuable player last season, heads a quartet of .300-plus batters from the 1963 team. Elwood Parker (.344), Luke Medlin (.333), and Sandy Gann are the other strong hitters returning. Gann, expected to switch from third base to second base this season, led the club in home runs with five and RBI's with 22 as a freshman.

Kindall Buckner, last year's leading moundsman, is back. He is expected to get able support from Buddy Linville and David Miller, and from newcomers Harold Pate, Bob McCalister and Bob Kellom. Veteran catcher Barry Cook will handle the chores behind the plate again. Third baseman Harry Sasser, a freshman from Goldsboro, is another promising rookie expected to fill an infield vacancy left by second baseman Lee Johnson.

TRACK

Gone from last season's track team which finished fifth in the Carolinas Conference and seventh in the NAIA meet are Howard Braxton, George Benjamin, and Tommy Barnes, but the Quakers are hoping depth will make up for these losses. Tim Ray, who won the conference shot-put, speedster Buddy Dixon (100-yard dash and 220-yard dash), and Bill Canter (100-yard dash), and distance runner Walt Gramada are the outstanding returnees.

GOLF

Jim Stevens, Lamar Evans, and Jim Schlosser played major roles in a 9-5-1 Quaker golf season a year ago. Stevens played number one, and among his greatest feats was a second-place finish in the GGO's amateur division.

Evans, who moved from number three to number two in the late season, fired the lowest round with a one-under par 71. Schlosser was number four. Promising newcomers include freshman Bill Jones and George White.

TENNIS

Graduation took its toll from the tennis team, and the Quakers are minus their number one, two and three players from last year's squad. Missing from the court

Long Range Development Program Adopted By Trustees

All alumni will be interested in the fact that Guilford's board of trustees has adopted a broad development program looking toward its completion in 1972. This program will include development in the following areas:

ENDOWMENT

It is desired to increase the permanent endowment of the college from $2,537,147 to a minimum of $7,000,000. This increase will make possible much of the proposed increase in strength of faculty and number of volumes in the library. It will also enable the college to continue and improve its established policy of assisting faculty members in the pursuit of advanced degrees.

ENROLLMENT

Enrollment on the Guilford College campus will remain at the present level of 850 students so that the college policy of providing individual attention for each student can be maintained. It is intended that present dormitory accommodations will be fully used and that the resident student body will be maintained at 750 students; 100 day students will be accepted each year. Enrollment in the Greensboro Division will be allowed to increase as the demand increases to a maximum of 2,000, a number which can be accommodated adequately with present facilities.

FACULTY

The full-time teaching faculty at the college campus will be increased to 60, with an additional 12 faculty members who will divide their teaching responsibility with the Greensboro Division. The faculty salary range will be doubled during this decade of development.

LIBRARY

Present space in the college library will make it possible to increase the number of books to 80,000 by the addition of 2,500 carefully selected volumes each year. Reading rooms and other library facilities are considered adequate for a student body of 850.

NEW FACILITIES

1. Memorial Hall—this building, presently housing administrative offices on the first floor and a small auditorium-classroom on the second floor, will be completely renovated to provide offices for members of the college faculty. The renovation will include remodeling of the entrance to the building and remodeling of the second floor.

2. Administration-Classroom Building—this proposed structure will provide offices for the college administration and will include 10 general purpose classrooms. Also included will be such other teaching facilities as are deemed necessary for the implementation of Guilford's cultural resource program. Tentative plans call for the administration-classroom building to be located across the college entrance road from Dana Auditorium, on the same East-West axis and matching Dana Auditorium in architectural style.

3. Physical Education Facilities—a fieldhouse and gymnasium with swimming pool is a college necessity. This facility will be considered as funds for its construction become available. Tentative plans call for its location to be east of the present gymnasium. Additional playing fields for intramural sports will also be considered as funds become available.

MAJOR FUND-RAISING EMPHASIS

During the Guilford College Development Program broadly outlined here, the major emphasis will be on raising funds to increase the permanent endowment of the college. However, special sources interested particularly in the building projects listed above will be asked for funds to complete them. All present sources of support will be cultivated as in the past. However, these sources have been unusually generous during recent years. For example, since 1957, a group of 50 Piedmont business and industrial interests have made contributions or pledges totaling more than $1,100,000 to the college. Therefore, Guilford College will make a determined effort to find other major sources not presently contributing to Guilford. Special efforts will be directed toward national foundations with educational interests, and to large corporations outside of the Piedmont area with benevolent programs designed to assist schools and colleges. Because such sources are particularly interested in the outstanding qualities of educational programs, the general promotional brochures and presentations will stress the features of Guilford's curriculum which are not found in other institutions. Each source will be studied carefully and special presentations will be prepared to attract interest in Guilford as a unique institution and not as "just another school that needs support."

SUMMARY OF DEVELOPMENT GOALS

1963	2374	59,872	$1,496,159	$2,537,147	$ 7,489,253

Guilford Draws Students From Other Lands

In recent years, with the international boom in student exchange, it is not surprising that Guilford continues to be a leader in registration of students from other countries.

Dr. Algie I. Newlin, professor of history, is chairman of the Committee on Students from Other Countries. Several of these students have visited with alumni groups, civic groups, schools, homes, and other institutions. Dr. Newlin feels that the interchange of students from many lands with our own native students is valuable not only for the intellectual growth of all involved, but is a major avenue toward understanding and appreciation of the world's different peoples and cultures.

Currently enrolled at Guilford are: Belgium: Eric Tcherkezian; Chile: Patricio Antonia Massu, Jorge Alberto Yarur, Juan Carlos Yarur; Cuba: Mario Aviles, Raimundo Aviles, Eduardo Pablo Fernandez, Mario Felipe Fernandez, Jorge Garcia, Fernando S. Leiva; Japan: Shizue Mori, Hideo Shiozumi; Kenya: Washington Walusala Rakamo, Ayub Nakhisa Watakila; Korea: Bu Choon Chung; Mexico: John George Desmond; Puerto Rico: Elizabeth Angelica Sanders; United Arab Republic (Syria): Ahmed B. Pearly Arthur Hayes

The Greensboro community lost one of its most dedicated and outstanding citizens on the death of Pearly Arthur Hayes of the class of 1905. He was born on December 20, 1882 and soon after leaving college began a long career in the drug business by accepting a position with the L. Richardson Drug Co. of Greensboro. The Richardson Drug Company became Justice Drug Company and Pearly Hayes remained with the new firm, working for fifteen years with R. L. Justice. He acquired controlling interest and served as president of Justice Drug Company from 1921 until 1958 when he was elected chairman of the Board. Under his guidance the firm grew into one of the leading wholesale drug firms in the Southeast.

Active in all civic matters and in the work of the church, Pearly Hayes gave freely of his time and talents. He was a member of West Market Street Methodist Church and served on its Board of Stewards for many years. He also served as president of the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce, the Community Chest and Greensboro Rotary Club, and was a Mason and a Shriner. The mayor of Greensboro presented to him a Certificate of Meritorious Service in recognition and appreciation of faithful service as a member and chairman of the Juvenile Court Commission from 1933 to 1953.

In his business field Hayes was an incorporator and director of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Research Foundation. In 1940 he was elected to the office of president of the National Wholesale Druggists Association and was a member of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association's HALL OF FAME IN PHARMACY.

Pearly Hayes maintained his interest in Guilford College throughout his life, and the college is deeply grateful for the support he gave to its various programs and for the support it continues to receive from the firm he led for so many years.

Hardy Carroll III

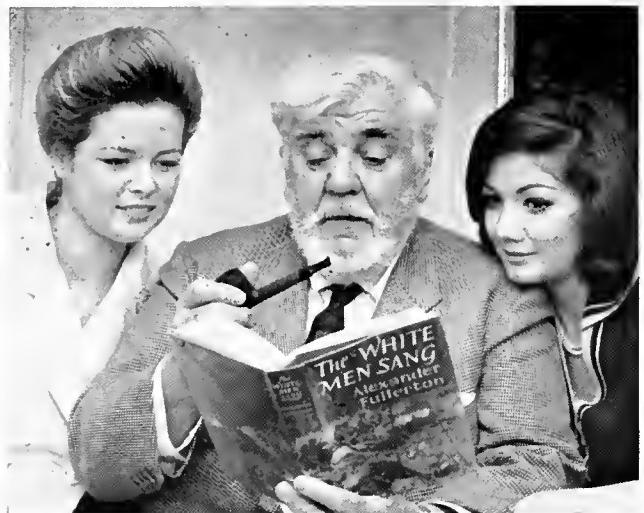

His classmates, many friends and fellow Guilfordians were saddened at the passing of Hardy Carroll III '14, on January 21. He had just completed his first term in the North Carolina State House of Representatives, and was anticipating a return in 1965.

Hardy Carroll, III enjoyed a long and distinguished civic and professional life. A champion for the cause of education, he did graduate work at the University of North Carolina and at the University of Dublin in Ireland, receiving his M.A. degree at the former. He served Rural Hall, Westfield, King, Kernersville, Mount Airy, Mountain View, Lowes Grove (Durham) and Guilford schools as principal before his retirement. Serving in the U. S. Army during World War I, he was promoted from private to 2nd lieutenant in the Sixth Division, U. S. Army.

He also served as secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Youngstown, Ohio shortly after graduation from Guilford. Upon retirement from teaching, Hardy Carroll served for a time as counselling psychologist at Veterans' Hospital, Oteen, N. C. He came out of retirement to run for his House seat in 1962, after farming for several years at his home in Guilford College.

Hardy Carroll will be missed by his alma mater as he was an untiring supporter of Guilford. He was president of the Alumni Association in 1929, and at the time of his death was enthusiastically working to get his class together for its golden anniversary on Alumni Day, May 30.

His close association with the college is further illustrated by the fact that two of his children graduated with the Key Senior Award—Hardy IV in 1951, and Jane Helen in 1961. Also, his brother, Dudley Carroll, is a Guilfordian, class of 1907.

Herrick Herrick, motion picture and television producer and director, who met Alyce through a friend in Winston-Salem. Alyce's charm and beauty have won for her the titles of Miss Winston-Salem, Miss Harmony, Miss 82nd Airborne, and Maid of Honor of Guilford's 1961 Homecoming Court. Pictured with Alyce (at left) are Herrick and Vallery Cunningham, a co-star in the series.

this season are Steen Spove, Monty Milner, and Joe Benson. Highly regarded Dick Derr did not return to school this year — and the Quakers are facing a great rebuilding task. On hand to help solve the problem are Chip Harrison, David Parsons, and rookies John Ward and Jim Otwell.

Quaker gridders, hoping to vastly improve their 0-10 record of 1963, spent the major portion of their off-season drills working on a new offense.

Quarterback Jimmy Williams, the Carolinas Conference total offense leader last season, still appears to be the Quakers' most dangerous back. Explosive Bill Joye is also back for his final season. The Garner speedster runs, catches, passes, and punts, giving Coach Stewart another strong ground-gainer.

New Placement Office Is Showing Results

The Guilford College Placement Office, in its first year, has provided very satisfactory results, according to J. Stuart Devlin, director. Devlin directs placement activities in addition to his duties as assistant professor of economics.

The office has been set up in the College Union building, and interest has constantly mounted, coming from both industry and business, and from prospective job-seeking graduates. Forms were drafted for permanent records in December, and presented to the senior class, and the initial interviews (previously handled by deans) were arranged. A special placement bulletin board has been placed in the Union, and new material goes up almost daily.

At this writing, jobs for part-time student work have been listed for 24 firms. Over 150 career interviews have been conducted by some 30 firms and 20 school representatives.

Devlin expects heavy traffic for the remainder of the year, and expects Guilford College to send a representative to a placement workshop in May. "As we see it, the service can perform a two-fold service: Aid the graduate as he seeks fitting employment, and to sell our fine product, so to speak, to business and industry," says the director.

Guilford Reaches Semi-finals of Basketball Tournament

People walked away from the scene of the semi-finals of the Carolinas Conference basketball tournament in Lexington shaking their heads in wonderment. The Guilford College Quakers, who have not made the post-season tournament in six long years, had just thrashed a strong Elon team by 14 points; and, the following night, played the mighty Panthers of High Point College right down to the wire, until High Point finally won by the dubious margin of 2 points.

The Guilford Quakers, with a style of play marked by precision-like ball movement and a minimum of mistakes, won the respect and admiration of every fan, coach, and player that watched the game. Chuck Scott, 6'-4" transfer from East Carolina, led the voting for the all-tournament team. All the other Guilford starters got votes for the all-tournament team, David Odom, Lloyd Turlington, Dan Kuzma, and Elwood Parker.

Guilford's Assistance Program Encourages Graduate Study

For many years Guilford's program of assistance to faculty members in pursuit of advanced degrees has strengthened the teaching staff at the college. Under this program, leaves of absences are granted for graduate study and financial assistance is given during the period of leave.

Simply, the program works like this: A young faculty member is hired with the help and approval of the department head involved. He is observed for at least three years, during which time he sizes up the college, also. Does he like to teach? Does he like Guilford's program? Is he interested in advancement? Is there a desire to pursue the Ph.D. degree? A consultation is held and a decision made.

Once a professor is given leave and assistance and receives his Ph.D., what are the chances of retaining him? If he accepts the lure of bigger salary, what are his obligations to Guilford? There is no financial obligation to the college, contrary to general practice. The professor is free in his decision, and Dr. Milner feels the climate of freedom is one of the big factors in making the program work. The best answers to these questions seem to be contained on the faculty roster. The list of department heads and administrative officers, the bulwark of the academic institution, contains many who have gone up in rank under the program instituted by Dr. Milner.

There are twenty-five holders of doctorates on the full-time teaching faculty at Guilford College, or approximately forty percent. Fifteen faculty members, or an additional twenty percent, are currently working on the Ph.D. degree program (all have minimum of masters degree). Several "old-timers" will soon retire. There is a good crop of replacements being readied,

College Growth Since 1934

The following information regarding Guilford's development will be interesting to all alumni in view of the long range development program outlined on page 7 of this issue of the Journal:

The president's annual report for 1933-34, the year before Dr. Milner became president, showed that 326 students were enrolled as compared to 2,374 last year; there were 15,682 books in the library compared to 59,872; annual operating expense was $121,794 compared to $1,496,159; permanent endowment was $574,-836 as compared to $2,537,147; and net worth was $946,705 as compared to $7,489,253.

You can give to Guilford . . . and receive an income for life from the gift!

The Guilford College Life Income plan enables you to make a substantial lifetime gift from capital without loss of income. Under a trust agreement you can transfer securities or other property to Guilford College while retaining the income on the market value of the property given. The property may be sold by the college, and the proceeds invested in other income-producing securities. The capital gain realized from the sale is not taxed, and the capital so invested is removed from your taxable estate. Both husband and wife (age 45 or more) may be included in a joint life and survivor arrangement. A portion of your original investment in this plan, the "remainder interest," is considered a charitable contribution and can be deducted for Federal income tax purposes.

A GIFT TO GUILFORD WITH INCOME RESERVED FOR LIFE CAN

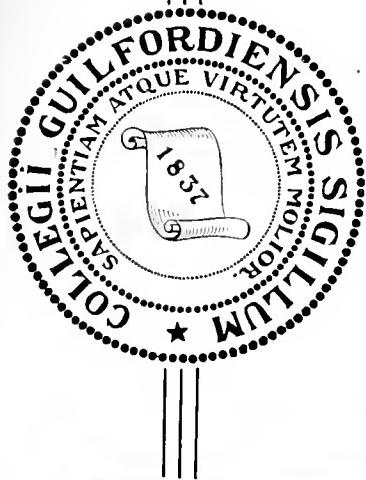

- Provide a generous income for life from carefully supervised and widely diversified investments in a managed trust.
- Reduce income tax in the year you enter the Life Income Plan.
- Eliminate the capital gains tax on any appreciated property you give through the plan.
- Decrease estate tax by removing the property from your estate.
- Establish a permanent endowment fund in your name or to honor a loved one.

THREE DISTINGUISHED FACULTY MEMBERS RETIRE

THE CLASS OF 1964

Commencement, 1964

Two outstanding members of the Society of Friends brought messages to the 1964 graduating class. The baccalaureate sermon was delivered by Dr. Edwin B. Bronner, professor of history and curator of the Quaker Collection at Haverford College. The commencement address was given by Dr. Samuel D. Marble, president of both Delta College and Saginaw Valley College, University Center, Mich.

Dr. Bronner told the seniors that "if we are willing to dedicate our lives to doing the will of God, and if we are willing to let Him use us for His purposes, we can be filled with power, liberated from the chains which have bound us in the past, and we can face the future in a new spirit."

Dr. Bronner quoted Thomas Jefferson in saying that "that government is best which governs least," but noted that changing conditions in our society have given government more power and responsibility. "This means that each individual citizen must exercise his rights and privileges if democracy is to work in this century," he said.

Dr. Bronner recommended to the students the teachings of Christianity as a means for securing greater spiritual meaning in the life of the individual.

Dr. Marble spoke on "the most frequent sickness of the soul and disorder of the spirit of modern man, anxiety." He listed the economic, military and spiritual revolutions of the 20th century as the most prevalent causes of the anxiety.

In citing current philosophies which treat man as a material possession in propagating the alienation in man wrought by automation and the constant threat of nuclear holocaust, Dr. Marble reminded the graduates that "the individual still has the basic need to be needed."

"The fundamental truth I wish to leave with you is the belief that 'what every man thinks is important,' for even you and I may influence the future of mankind," he said.

"We need in you a sense of confidence in the divine impulse and the ability to awake it in others," Dr. Marble said, "for then you will be friends not only of each other, but friends of all mankind."

A major emphasis of such education is creating awareness of the crucial and complex dilemmas and decisions confronting the citizen in the emerging society."

through the years, both his appreciation of his alma mater and his loyalty to its welfare. He valued its program so highly that both of his children graduated from Guilford, and innumerable young men and women from his community have been encouraged to attend Guilford, often with assistance from him. He has responded without fail in every time of need to the many, varied appeals for help. He has not only contributed to all the projects in Guilford's Development Program, but for a number of years he also served as chairman of the Promotion Committee. His warm-hearted generosity is as well known as his friendly and extremely thoughtful hospitality. Athletic teams, student groups and individuals representing Guilford College known to be traveling through Goldsboro are always entertained by him at his insistence, either in his home or at the famed Griffin Barbecue. When they leave Goldsboro they have been filled with both kindness and food.

Elton's honor was also noted in Goldsboro, N. C., as the Sunday, May 31 issue of the Goldsboro News-Argus published the story of his selection. Also, the newspaper selected him "Personality in News," spotlighting him in a half-page feature. In the feature, he was asked, "What are your hobbies?" His answer: "Talking, eating, attending athletic contests, and kidding Frank Seymour (good friend, husband of Cleo Rose '32; father of George Frank, Jr. '57 and Margaret '63)!" He was referred to as "civic leader, coach, educator, prankster, and Guilford College booster extraordinary."

Dr. Milner's citation follows:

"Leslie Elton Warrick—who outstandingly exemplifies the loyalty, devotion, activities and friendly fellowship of Guilford College at its best—as an undergraduate, as a alumnus, and as a member of our Board of Trustees.

"As an undergraduate, Elton Warrick was unusually active in many ways — including those of an extra-curricular humorous nature, no doubt! Actually he was academically a much better student, as his grades attest, than he has ever admitted — even if, as he claims, he had to repeat Freshman French five times (the subject of one of his oft-repeated jokes). He was also highly successful as a member of various athletic teams, where he was always an aggressive competitor and an inspiring teammate.

"As an alumnus, Elton Warrick has demonstrated,

Elton Warrick served faithfully on the alumni executive committee for many years. During his two years as president he missed only one or two of all the many alumni meetings. (This I can personally testify, for I accompanied him on many of these expeditions. Incidentally, I also recall his kind but flowery introductions of me, as well as his inimitable story-telling, for I listened to the same stories many times and still thought that they were funny!)

"As a member of the Guilford College Board of Trustees, Leslie Elton Warrick has given further emphasis to his concern for his alma mater. His unselfish dedication of time, his wise guidance and especially his valuable counsel on building and construction matters have been a distinct asset to the college.

"As long as we can point with pride and satisfaction to such a graduate, alumnus, and trustee as Leslie Elton Warrick, the future growth and development of Guilford College is indeed assured."

Henry F. Tew Receives Princeton Prize

Word has been received from Bergen County, N. J. of a signal honor bestowed on Henry F. Tew '27. Henry Tew received the 1964 Princeton Prize for Distinguished Secondary Teaching. He is a physics teacher at Tenafly High School, and he was among four teachers in secondary schools in New Jersey to win the award. Official presentation of the award, which carries a cash stipend of one thousand dollars, was made during commencement exercises at Princeton June 16.

In addition, the honor entitles Tew's school library to a cash grant of $250.00 for the purchase of library books.

Tew has completed 34 years as a member of the Tenafly High School science department. After his graduation from Guilford College, N. C., in 1927, he did graduate work at Haverford College and Teachers College of Columbia University.

Before coming to Tenafly, he taught in Belvedere High School and in Wayne, Pa. Besides teaching physics, Tew has assisted in guidance, has been assistant football coach, and sponsored the science club.

Eugene Van Vliet, principal of Tenafly High School, said a number of Tenafly graduates who have made a mark in science have attributed their interest to Tew's teaching.

Temple Fay Presents Paper

Professors E. G. Purdom, J. R. Boyd, Oliver Ingraham, Robert Bryden, and John Rundell report pride and pleasure in the fact that Temple "Buzz" Fay '63, a first-year graduate student at Wake Forest College, read a paper on Theory and Graphs at the North Carolina section of the National Academy of Science, held this spring at Davidson College. The Guilford group was in attendance at the event.

Temple Fay will receive his masters degree from Wake Forest in August, and will continue study this fall at the University of South Carolina, where he has been awarded a scholarship.

Faculty Members Retire

At the final regular meeting of the academic year, Guilford's faculty honored three of its colleagues who are retiring. The three, beloved by all who know them, are: Dr. J. Curt Victorius, professor of economics and business administration; Dr. Oscar M. Polhemus, assistant professor of political science, and Mrs. Edna L. Weis, assistant professor of English.

Tribute to Dr. Victorius was paid by David H. Parsons, Jr., business manager of the college. Dr. Victorius, head of the Department of Economics and Business Administration, has been at Guilford since 1940. He engaged in graduate study at Friedrich Wilhelm University of Berlin and the Graduate School of Business Administration, Berlin.

He also studied at the University of Berne and received the degree, doctor of political economics, at the University of Hamburg, Germany. After coming to the United States he engaged in post-doctoral study and research at Columbia University, the University of North Carolina, Case Institute of Technology and Duke University.

Tribute was paid to Mrs. Weis by Dr. E. Garnett Purdom, head of the physics department. Mrs. Weis received her A.B., B.S. in Education and M.A. degrees from Ohio State University. She has been at Guilford since 1946, teaching freshman English.

Tribute was paid to Dr. Polhemus by Dr. Algie I. Newlyn, professor of history and political science. Dr. Polhemus has been at Guilford since 1957. He received the A.B. and A.M. degrees from Indiana University and the St.B. and Th.D. in pastoral psychology from Boston University.

In announcing the retirements, Dr. Clyde A. Milner, president of the college, praised the three for their devotion to Guilford and to teaching, and commended the three for outstanding contributions to the college. The three were presented gifts as tokens of appreciation for their service, and all have been given emeritus status by action of Guilford's board of trustees.

Howard Hinshaw Presents Paper

Nineteen states were represented from over one-third of the medical schools in the United States. Abstracts from the forum will be presented in the publication, Texas Reports on Biology and Medicine. Twenty-eight medical colleges were represented.

Alumni Day Was A Highly Successful Event

Alumni Day 1964 was declared "best ever" by many who are regular visitors for the event. A delicious luncheon and an equally tasty evening buffet were highlights for many of the eight hundred Guilfordians and parents who were here during the day. Reunions between old friends came one-a-minute during registration on Founders Hall porch; and with slightly cool, sunny weather, a successful day was assured at an early hour.

At the luncheon, there were excellent reports by John Googe '50, alumni president, and by President Milner; impressive induction ceremonies for the class of 1964 were led by Mildred Marlette '35, and an eloquent response was made by '64 president, Dan Gregory. But the show was "stolen" by two "amateur" performers. Ed McBane '14 delighted the audience with his resumé of the golden anniversary class history in alternating serious and humorous veins. Edith Moore Sherrod '05, fifty-year group president, proudly set forth the accomplishments in service to their college of the fifty-year group. The crowd roared with laughter when she introduced C. E. Leak '02 with the observation, "He used to sing love songs to me fifty years ago!" She explained that the two had performed in "Pinafore" in Greensboro some fifty years ago. Many representatives attended the class reunions, as pictures in this issue will prove. The annual tea and reception were held in Founders Hall, and a large group was on hand with renewed interest for the annual meeting of the Guilford College Quaker Club.

Words of praise were spoken by virtually everyone in attendance at the annual Alumni buffet. Audrey Smith Duncan was cited for her grace and charm as presiding officer. Tremendous applause was given violinist Frank Walton '64 and accompanist Carroll Feagins after their two selections.

Address By Blair

Speaker Edward "Tubby" Blair '32 expressed a feeling of confusion and apprehension as he began the annual Alumni Address: "With all the wonderful things that have been happening, how can you be interested in what I have to say?" From that moment he had his audience captivated as he delightfully entertained the group with story after story of a humorous nature. He noted in conclusion that of all his experiences and associations, he was proudest of the right to say "I am a Guilfordian." He praised the college's program to "give the student a total education," and he called on those in attendance to give their association with our college a new dimension in an effort to keep Guilford strong.

DR. PURDOM AND DR. LJUNG

Radioisotope Course Offered

In December of 1962, the Chemistry Department of Guilford College was awarded an $11,000 grant from the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission. This grant was for the purchase of equipment for a new course concerning radioisotope techniques.

Dr. Harvey Ljung, head of the Chemistry Department, has worked at Oak Ridge, Tennessee, where the world's oldest major producer of isotopes is located at Oak Ridge National Laboratory. He applied for this grant with the able assistance of Dr. E. Garness Purdom, head of the Physics Department, and the application was approved.

The new course is a major addition to the Chemistry Department curriculum, in view of the fact that radioisotopes are being used more and more in industry, medicine, and other areas. The course was first offered in September, 1963, and as a direct result, two Guilford graduates won positions at Bowman Gray Graduate School of Pharmacology in 1964. The application of radioisotopes apparently has unlimited potential, and new ways to harness them for practical use are being discovered every day. They are used to detect flaws in machinery, to measure thickness of materials, to sterilize food, to detect faulty blood circulation, and as a source of self-luminous light.

Dr. Ljung and Dr. Purdom are very pleased to be able to offer the new course, which is available to only ten carefully selected students, and is taught by three professors, all of whom have attended the Oak Ridge Laboratory: Dr. Ljung, Dr. Purdom, and Dr. Robert R. Bryden, head of the biology department at Guilford.

Alumni Elections

William B. Smith '60, chairman of elections, reported the most spirited election in years, from the standpoint of number of ballots cast and closeness of the voting.

John Googe '50 overcame the early lead of challenger J. Howard Coble '53, to win the presidency. Melvin Lynn '33, also overcame an early lead by Mary Nell Parker '59 and was elected vice-president. Both will serve one-year terms.

For three-year terms of the Alumni Executive Committee, two incumbents and two newcomers were elected from a slate of eight candidates. They were Elizabeth Gilliam Parker '37, Sara Richardson Haworth, '17, William B. Smith '60 and George "Jase" Ralls '50. Smith and Haworth are incumbents.

Charles Hendricks '40 and Grace Taylor Rodenbough '17 were elected to three-year terms as Alumni Foundation trustees, and Paul Edgerton '13 was elected to a three-year term as Alumni Fund trustee.

Eunice Meader Sends Greetings To Guilfordians

A warm message was received from Eunice Darden Meader '95 prior to Alumni Day, in which she expressed good will to the college and all Guilfordians and much interest in the youth of North Carolina. She expresses thanks for her "good health, which is a blessing." Eunice Darden Meader is one of the oldest living graduates of Guilford, being among the few who hold degrees dated prior to 1900. She lives currently at New England Friends Home, Turkey Hill Lane, Hingham, Mass., and would appreciate messages from other Guilfordians.

World Culture Center Made Possible By C. Elmer Leak

In August, President Clyde A. Milner announced with great pleasure a gift to Guilford College by one of its most distinguished alumni, C. Elmer Leak, which will make it possible to construct and equip the recently designed World Culture Center at the college. Plans call for this unique center to occupy the entire first floor of a wing in a proposed classroom-administration building which will face Dana Auditorium and be similar to the Auditorium in exterior design. The new facility will be known as the "Cammie and Elmer Leak World Culture Center." Its cost is estimated at approximately $100,000. The purpose of the World Culture Center will be to interpret the cultural resource program of Guilford College through the use of specially designed electronic and mechanical audio-visual aids.

The Guilford College core curriculum, consisting of sixty hours of tool and cultural resources and required of all students regardless of major, is designed to make the liberal arts graduate intelligently conversant with the culture of his civilization so that he can enter more fully into, and contribute more significantly to, his social responsibilities. Despite the fact that teachers are continually encouraged to emphasize the threads that have been woven together over the centuries to form our present civilization, there is a tendency to treat the various fields as isolated entities or separate compartments. It is believed that the body of knowledge contained in the core curriculum can be taught more effectively with the facilities in the World Culture Center. Particularly it is believed that this facility will enable teachers to show more clearly how cultural development in the various categories, such as philosophy, religion, science, and the creative arts, are inter-related. When this is done, the interest and sense of purpose of all students will be greatly increased as they are shown graphically that developments in each category and in each succeeding chronological period in history were based in a marked degree on what had been done before, that the cultural heritage we know today is the product of creative thinking over several thousand years, and that the present will have an equally strong effect on the future. For example, an instructor in astronomy will not only be able to show how his science developed from Ptolemy to Copernicus to Galileo to Herschel to Shapley, but will also be able to point out how the social, philosophical, religious and scientific influences of his period affected the thinking of each of these great figures in astronomy. Thus the student will be made more aware of the true purpose of a liberal arts education, and his college experience will be more meaningful.

The World Culture Center will contain electrically operated audio-visual aids designed especially for interpretation of the cultural resource program at Guilford. With these specially designed aids it will be possible to show:

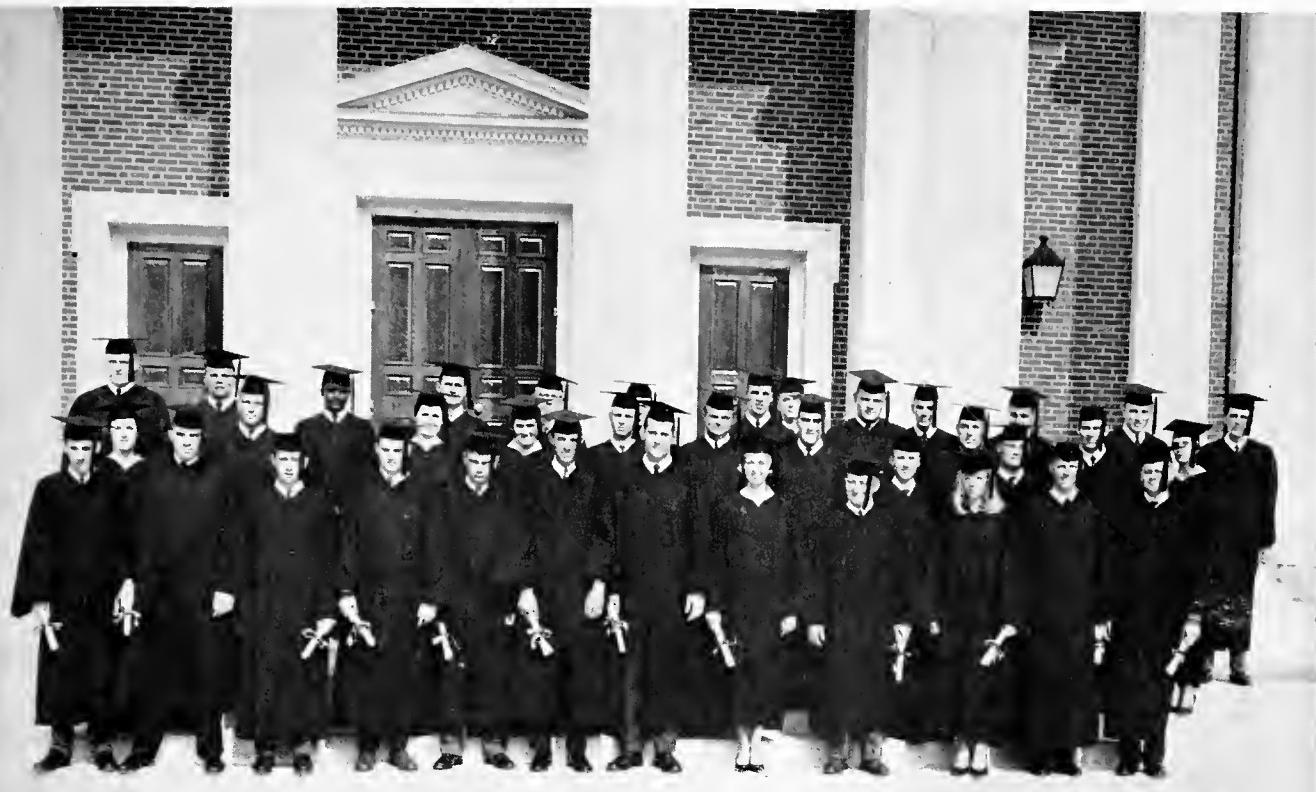

- a. Chronologically and by category the individuals who have made major contributions to the development of civilization.
- b. The ebb and flow of cultural emphasis throughout the various historical periods since 3,000 B.C., and the reasons for ebb and flow.
- c. Examples of creative and artistic efforts—painting, sculpture, architecture, music, drama and literature.
- d. Examples of major scientific developments.
- e. Historical, biographical and scientific films.
- f. The ideas and movements which have influenced the course of cultural developments.

A picture of a model of the World Culture Center and a description of its physical characteristics were featured in the March issue of the Alumni Journal.

C. Elmer Leak was graduated from Guilford College in the Class of 1902. At Guilford he was especially active as an orator, editor and athlete. During his junior year, as a member of the Henry Clay Oratorical Society, he won first place with an oration titled "Technical Education," and in his senior year was one of the few students selected to speak at the commencement exercises. The subject of his commencement oration was "New Home of American Industries." Mr. Leak was co-editor of the Guilford monthly magazine, The Collegian, and a member of the varsity football team. In addition, he belonged to the Literary Society and the Opera Society. While at Guilford College, Mr. Leak met the girl who was to become his wife, Cammie Lindley, who was a student in the college preparatory department.

After leaving Guilford, Mr. Leak studied electrical engineering with the General Electric Company, after which he returned to Greensboro and established an electrical business. Although he was successful in this work, he decided in 1911 to accept a position with the Surety Life & Annuity Company of Greensboro which became a part of Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company in 1912. His first position with Jefferson Standard was that of clerk at the age of 29. In 1920 he became Assistant Secretary and was elected Secretary of the company in 1931. In 1932

The 1964 Summer School Graduates

Guilford College graduated 47 seniors at summer school commencement exercises Sunday afternoon, August 9, at 3:00 o'clock in Dana Auditorium. The commencement address was delivered by Dr. Otis W. Singletary, Chancellor, University of North Carolina at Greensboro. Dr. Singletary told the seniors "There is always and everywhere the responsibility to contribute to the mature and significant life of mankind." Singletary also said the American college student is undergoing a period of change in the present generation. "This generation of college students is coming out of the withdrawal of the beatnik period into a period of 'involvementism' in the social concerns of the day," Singletary said. He cited the recent sit-in demonstrations and the non-violent resistance movement as examples of how the students are taking direct action in influencing society. Singletary recited a list of statistics from a recent survey that paints a bleak picture of the average college student in the "affluent society" as having a materialistic set of values. He called on the graduating seniors to help counteract this image. The class was presented by Dean E. Daryl Kent, and the degrees were conferred by President Clyde A. Milner. Carroll S. Feagins was organist for the exercises and the invocation and closing prayer were given by John Pipkin.

A Message From Your Alumni President

Dear Fellow Guilfordians:

I am pleased that you have given me the opportunity to serve as your President for another one-year term. Your choice of executive committee members has given us a strong, dynamic, broad-based committee which is proving itself ready and willing to meet the challenge facing the Guilford College Alumni Association.

But the point I wish to make is this: In spite of great progress in all areas, the battle is not, and never will be, won. Our great President, Clyde A. Milner, has performed far beyond the call of duty. Our trustees and alumni leaders have often given sacrificially of time and talent to achieve college goals. This is no longer enough. Sweeping unified support from all our alumni and friends is the minimum needed if Guilford is to be ready at all times in the future for her rendezvous with destiny.

We can't stand pat, congratulating ourselves on the splendid fruits borne by the Dana Challenge Program. Already other pressing needs present themselves to us. Our wish is for a solid, long-term effort among alumni to help our college meet its opportunities and responsibilities on schedule. To this end I have appointed your representatives Edward Post '51 (Chairman), Elizabeth Gilliam Parker '37, Jack Tilley '49, and Audrey Smith Duncan '51 to a Planning Committee, and have asked them to come forward with a long-range plan for your consideration this year. I shall report to you on this matter from time to time during the coming year.

JOHN GOOGE '50, President

Dahl Etchison Honored

STEELE

Homecoming Is October 24

Mrs. Mary Catharine Steele, chairman for Homecoming '64, announces that a full day's activities are planned for the event, to be celebrated Saturday, October 24. Although arrangements are incomplete at publication date, Mrs. Steele and student chairman Richard Ward '67 have announced the following:

The day's activities will include a faculty reception for alumni in the morning hours and open house for alumni in various classes. Students will also hold open house in their dormitories. The Women's Athletic Association is planning its traditional reception and dance for students, faculty, alumni and visitors; and there will be a wide range of decorations on the campus.

A parade, featuring dignitaries, cheerleaders and Homecoming Queen candidates will move through the business and residential sections of Guilford College, and will terminate at Armfield Athletic Center, where Guilford's Quakers will meet the Maryville Highlanders in a football game at 2:00 p.m.

At halftime, after welcoming speeches by Dr. Clyde A. Milner and Alumni president John Googe '50 of Winston-Salem, the students will present halftime entertainment. Judges will select the best float, the best dormitory decoration, and the best Homecoming project; and awards will be made before the crowds.

The traditional crowning of the Homecoming Queen will highlight the halftime entertainment. Miss Roe Pearce, reigning title holder will crown the new queen.

A special feature of Homecoming activities will be an Open House in the college library, so that visitors can see the new addition which has just been completed. Open House will begin at 10:30 and last until 12:00 Noon.

Fifteenth Ward Lecturer Is James F. Walker

Guilford College will observe Founders Day by presenting the Fifteenth Annual Ward Lecture at 8:00 p.m., November 6, 1964, in Dana Auditorium. The distinguished lecturer will be James F. Walker, Chairman of the Friends World Committee. Dr. Walker has informed college authorities that he will address himself to matters concerning the Fourth World Conference of Friends scheduled to be held on the Guilford campus from July 25 through August 3, 1967. Dr. Walker has had a long and distinguished career as a dedicated servant of the Society of Friends, and he presided over sessions of the Friends World Committee meeting in Waterford, Ireland in July of this year.

The Guilford Tradition

Although Guilford College is generally known as a cosmopolitan institution (its students and faculty come from virtually all of the 50 states, various religious faiths, nationalities, and cultural backgrounds), the "family" nature which characterized its early days as a Quaker institution is still a dominant feature.

This fact can be underscored by the number of students who are descendants of former students. Fifty-one students list their fathers as former Guilford students, while 48 list their mothers as former Guilfordians.

Third generation Guilfordians number 39. One 1964 graduate, Jonathan Cox of High Point, was a fifth generation Guilfordian. His father, mother, both grandparents on the paternal side, his great-grandfather on the paternal side; and both great-great-grandparents on the paternal side attended Guilford.

Cox Hall, men's dormitory, is named for the family. Cox's grandfather, great-grandfather, and great-great-grandfather served as members of Guilford's board of trustees.

Dorcas White Receives Grant

Dorcas White Hauser '59 received a scholarship from Reynolds Tobacco Company in Winston-Salem which enabled her and her husband Kenneth to attend UNC at Chapel Hill this summer. Dorcas and Kenneth both teach at the East Forsyth Senior High School near Winston-Salem, N. C., where Dorcas is chairman of the English Department and Kenneth is a member of the Math Department. They live on Rt. 3, Linville Road, Kernersville, N. C.

President Milner's Annual Report, presented to the North Carolina Yearly Meeting of Friends, was of special interest this year in that it was divided into three distinct sections. The first section concerned itself with the amazing growth of Guilford College during the thirty years that President Milner has served as its chief administrative officer; the second concerned itself with the 1963-64 academic year, the 127th year of Guilford's service; and the third outlined a program of development for the future. This development program was detailed in a recent issue of the Journal, and reports of activities during the past year have also been carried in preceding Journal issues. Portions of the first section of the Annual Report are included in this issue of the Journal. Attention is called particularly to the chart showing development in five major areas since the 1934-1935 year.

Chemistry Department Grant

Dr. Harvey Ljung, Professor of Chemistry, was pleased to announce recently a $3,180.00 grant from the National Science Foundation, to be used for the purchase of modern scientific instruments for use in the Chemistry Department at the college.

Dr. Ljung stated that the following equipment is among items covered by the grant: an Analytical and General Chemistry-PH Meter for measuring acidity and alkalinity; an Organic and Physical Chemistry-Polarimeter (new to Guilford College) for study of certain reaction rates, and identification of organic compounds; and an Analytical and Physical Chemistry-Potentiometer, for measuring small voltage charges, oxidation, and reduction reaction.

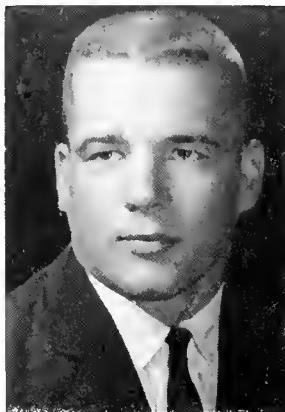

Dr. Ljung states that the program of the Chemistry Department as well as the Baccalaureate-level curriculum at Guilford were factors in the department being considered favorably for the grant, made under the National Science Foundation's Undergraduate Instructional Scientific Equipment Program for 1964-65.

On the Quaker Sports Front

A. J. CARR '65

YORK

Guilford College football coach John Stewart has completed a hunting season which he hopes will improve future Quaker clubs greatly.

While Stewart expects about 15 junior college transfers to fill numerous vacancies up front, his great junior quarterback, Jimmy Williams, and halfback, Bill Joye, are keys to the backfield's success. Guard Gary York, a three-year letterman and co-captain, returns to anchor the forward wall, along with last year's reserve guards, Dick Rankin and Skipper Smith; tackle, Gene Petty; linebacker, John VanEtten; tackle, George Scott; and flankers, Bill Russell and Tommy Lovell. Center, Bob Frederick and guard, Dwight Buffalo, who gained starting roles a year ago, also return. Frederick suffered a serious knee injury in the season's infancy and was sidelined much of the year.

Williams, the singing quarterback, who did everything for Guilford last season but sell programs at halftime, is billed as the "man to watch" again. Jim broke the Quaker total offense record with 590 yards, topped the conference with 1,396 yards, and captured the passing crown by hitting on 90 of 190 air lane attempts. Joye is expected to bring joy to Quakerville this time with his bullish rushing and heavy toe. The speed demon galloped for 314 yards last season, hauled in 26 passes for 287 yards and finished second in the conference in punting with a solid 38.8 average for 41 kicks.

But in spite of these brilliant performances the situation in a nutshell is that the 1964-65 season rests almost entirely upon incoming transfers and freshmen. What, then, of these recruits?

Bill Holyfield is a 200-pound strong "wide side" guard from Lees-McRae. Coach Stewart is pleased with him. Coach Stewart is equally impressed with 185-pound Ron Ramsey, from Ferrum Junior College. He is reputed to have excellent speed. Ernie Van Deusen, a Chowan College transfer, can "kick the ball into the end zone and should help us at center," says Coach Stewart. Ed Scapp, a 235-pound end from Ferrum College, may move to tackle, a critical position. Also from Ferrum comes Charles Craddock, 185-pound back, and George Wyrrick, 215-pound tackle. Sherman Shifflet, 190-pound guard comes from Lees-McRae Junior College, along with Bill Palmore, 205-pound guard and Bob Blevins, 185-pound fullback. Blevins is expected to fill the shoes of Eddie Gore, star halfback lost by graduation. Biggest man on the squad is 6'-1" John Sims, who weighs in at 240 pounds. John played fullback at Frederick Military Institute, but may be moved to tackle.

Among the freshmen are: 205-pound David Vale who is agile and has excellent credentials; Dean Johnson, freshman center from Rockingham, who also is a fine linebacker, could be the find of the year; from Martinsville comes halfback Bill Smith who has good speed, agility and the possibility of becoming "a great one"; from Murfreesboro will come Wayne Tucker, who should develop within two years into an outstanding quarterback; Allen Brown from Thomasville chose Guilford over several other schools and should greatly bolster the corps of ends, a position which was weak last year. Other freshmen who are expected to develop rapidly are: Mike Younts of Thomasville, 190-pound end; Bill Burchette of Havelock, quarterback; Larry Turner, 210-pound tackle from Marion, Virginia; and Reggie Blackburn, actually a sophomore who did not play last year because of an ankle fracture. A 115-pound lineman, he was the outstanding blocker in spring drills.

One thing is certain, the Quaker football team that takes the field against Hampden-Sidney September 19 will bear virtually no resemblance to Quaker elevens of the past few years. The football coaching staff at Guilford College has been bolstered with the addition of Wilbur "Bill" Johnson of Roanoke, who will serve as line coach. Bill received A.B. and M.A. degrees at William and Mary College, and was freshman coach at the institution prior to accepting the position at Guilford.

They left the following as a memorial to "Bill" Lindsay, for the Journal: "Think of stepping on the shore, and finding it heaven; of taking hold of a hand, and finding it God's hand; of breathing new air and finding it celestial air; of feeling invigorated, and finding it immortality; of waking up, and finding it home."

Now there are fifty-three residential units available for rent to faculty, staff, and married students.

In Memoriam

Eli Franklin Craven

Eli Franklin Craven, 1897, one of Guilford's most loyal, successful and distinguished alumni, died on August 10 in Greensboro. E. F. Craven was 89 years old and during his lifetime had been unusually prominent in business and in the religious and civic life of his community. The E. F. Craven Company founded by Mr. Craven is North Carolina dealer for a number of manufacturers of heavy road machinery, and is one of the largest firms of its type in the nation.

Mr. Craven is survived by his wife, the former Minnie Phipps; two sons, F. Duval Craven, a Guilford College trustee, and E. Asbury Craven; a daughter, Mrs. H. S. Godwin; eight grandchildren and seven great grandchildren. Another daughter, Mrs. John R. Watt, died several years ago in Austin, Texas.

Born in Randolph County in 1875, Mr. Craven was the son of the late Eli Asbury Craven and Margaret Ann England Craven. He was the last survivor of ten children.

Robert M. Jones, Minister of the First Friends Meeting, Billy Britt of Spring Garden Friends Meeting and Dr. Clyde A. Milner, President of Guilford College, conducted the funeral.

Eli Franklin Craven's interests were many and varied. In his business he was dedicated to the principle that good roads are a wise investment, and he was active in the North Carolina Roads Association. Throughout his long years of service to the community in which he lived, Mr. Craven was devoted to Guilford College and to the First Friends Meeting of Greensboro in which he held most of the church offices, including terms as Chairman of the Board of Trustees and Treasurer. He taught Sunday School for many years. His interest in Guilford College led to the endowment of a Chair of Religion in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Craven. He was active in the Gideon Society, a 32nd Degree Mason in both the York Rite and Scottish Rite bodies and a member of a number of trade organizations. For 60 years he was a member of the YMCA and was a lifetime board member. A volume of considerable weight could be written about the achievements and contributions of this steadfast man, but the essence of his life is well expressed in the memorial remarks made at his funeral at First Friends Church by Clyde A. Milner:

"We are here to honor the memory and to pay tribute to Eli Franklin Craven, who during a long and useful life established himself as a highly successful business man, an influential, dependable citizen, an inspiring leader in religious activities—especially through the YMCA, the Gideon Society, the Sunday School, and the Friends Meeting. He gave generously of his time, abilities and means to the evangelistic efforts of the Christian Church, to education, and to missions and church extension.

He was a good neighbor, a wise and gracious friend with a unique gift for understanding, inspiring, and encouraging individuals—especially with his good humor and his ever ready apt story, his recalled personal experiences.

He will long be remembered and appreciated by the thousands who have come under his contagious influence through business, religious and benevolent activities.

The community which he served so effectively is indeed a large one, and it is a better community because he lived and labored in it.

Eli Craven was a creative and helpful parent and home builder. He gave stability, purpose, quality and affection to that unit of society—the home—which gives our civilization its character and its strength.

All of these spiritual qualities are eternal, and as has been so well said: 'Immortal spiritual power seems to hide itself in the silent ministrations of dedicated and loyal men.'

Founders Day Observed

Guilford College celebrated its one hundred and twenty-eighth year of continuous educational service with Founders Day activities on Friday, November 6. At the 10:30 a.m. convocation in Dana Auditorium, Guilford trustees were presented to the student body with individual introductions by selected staff and faculty members. The forty-three 1964-1965 Charles A. Dana Scholars were also recognized; and each received the Dana Scholarship certificate. At 3:30 p.m. the college library was the scene of a tea honoring guests of the college, faculty members and students.

The Fifteenth Annual Ward Lecture was presented in Dana Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. by James F. Walker, Chairman, Friends World Committee For Consultation. Dr. J. Floyd Moore of the Guilford faculty, presided on this occasion. Dr. Moore is Vice Chairman, Friends World Committee For Consultation. James F. Walker was introduced by Eva M. Newlin who serves as Vice Chairman, American Section, Friends World Committee For Consultation.

In his lecture, James Walker spoke of the Worldwide Society of Friends and the concerns and movements which had caused the Society to spread into so many areas. He also discussed the special concerns which will be studied and considered at the Fourth World Conference of Friends to be held at Guilford College from July 25 to August 3, 1967. Five proposed themes for study commissions at the Fourth World Conference were suggested. These are: 1. Deepening the spiritual life, both personal and corporate, in our Society; 2. The problem of creating a peaceful political world order; 3. The Community of Man, meaning the development of a social order that will provide freedom and equal opportunity for all; 4. The Meeting as a Community; and 5. Ecumenical questions and attitudes toward non-Christian faiths.

The Ward Lecture program was made especially impressive by the organ music of Claude K. Cook and by the A Cappella Choir, Carl C. Baumbach, directing.

A birthright member of Ohio Yearly Meeting (Conservative), James F. Walker has devoted his professional life to service in the Society of Friends.

He attended public school in Barnesville, Ohio, and later Westtown School, Westtown, Pennsylvania. His Bachelor of Science degree was earned at Ohio State University and the Masters degree at Harvard University.

In recognition of his outstanding contribution to the Society of Friends, James F. Walker received the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters from

J. Floyd Moore and Eva M. Newlin discuss Quaker affairs with James F. Walker, right.

Wilmington College, Wilmington, Ohio, and honorary degree of Doctor of Law from Haverford College, Haverford, Pennsylvania.

From 1914 to 1950 he was associated with Westtown School, from 1925 to 1950 as principal. In 1950 he became Executive Secretary of the Friends World Committee, American Section and Fellowship Council, holding that position until 1962 when he became Chairman of the Friends World Committee for Consultation. He will continue to hold this position until January of 1965.

By training and experience, James F. Walker is exceptionally well qualified to discuss and project the basic concerns to be studied and considered at the Fourth World Conference of Friends.

THE WARD LECTURES

- Howard H. Brinton, November 9, 1951.

Homecoming, 1964

Reigning Queen Roe Pearce '67 crowns lovely Carolyn Marion '67 Homecoming Queen for 1964-65, with Dr. Clyde A. Milner assisting. Carolyn is the daughter of James '56 and Helen Chilton '58 Marion of High Point.

Homecoming '64 was celebrated October 24, and planned activities were enjoyed by hordes of happy Guilfordians, children, parents, and friends basking in beautiful sunny weather.

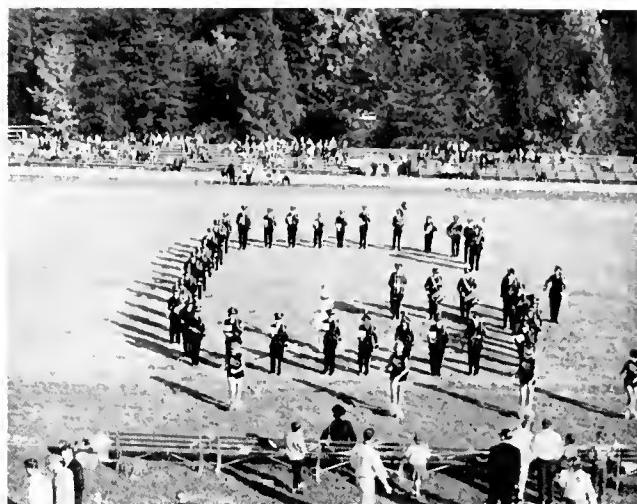

Visitors were impressed with the new library addition. One Guilfordian remarked, "Dana Auditorium has nothing on this!" (Dana Auditorium has been widely accepted as a standard of excellence in construction and design.) Lovely ladies served refreshments at the open house beginning at 10:00 a.m., and the library staff, headed by Treva Mathis, proudly escorted visitors over the new and remodeled areas. Mildred Marlette, Associate Professor of English, and library committee chairman, delivered an illustrated lecture at 11:00 a.m.

Campus decorations were viewed and judged, and New Women's Dormitory was declared winner. The beautiful float entered in the parade by Shore Hall won first prize for women's dormitories; and "Scotty," a huge dog on the Day Students' float, was judged the best entered by men's dormitories and day students.

Highlight of the Maryville-Guilford football game halftime was the crowning of lovely sophomore, Carolyn Marion of High Point, as Homecoming Queen. Lisa Nelson, senior from Norwalk, Connecticut, was selected Maid of Honor. Roe Pearce, sophomore and reigning queen, presided over the ceremonies. The traditional welcome from President Clyde A. Milner, and a response from John Googe '50, Alumni President, followed a marching performance by the Guilford High School band, under direction of Richard "Dick" Spencer '48. Maryville won the exciting game, 19-17.

A Message From Your Alumni President

Dear Fellow Guilfordians:

We are in the midst of an historic year. With the beautiful new library addition now in use, the final phase of construction under the Dana Challenge Program is complete.

We can breathe a sigh of satisfaction as we reach this new plateau. But we have time for only one sigh! What now? Have we reached the pinnacle implied in our motto, "I am applying myself to wisdom and virtue?" What of our relation to the world around us? Has our college reached its potential in quality educational service? Are we "ahead of the times," so to speak? On the contrary, the demands for the total person in our society, our world, is increasing, and our job lies ahead—not behind!

To be specific, what can we be doing? There are still our unrealized objectives with Annual Giving, which releases endowment funds for education uses and faculty salaries. There is the need for a large increase in permanent endowment, earnings of which may be used for scholarships, library materials and faculty salaries. It seems plain to us that now is a time to rally to the cause. An immediate objective is the new classroom-administration building, housing the World Culture Center. This was a stated objective of President Milner, who very much wants to assure this project this year, for reasons well known to all of us. The challenge has been laid down, and we are confident we are ready to meet it.

ers Hall was enjoyed by approximately 200 guests. Dr. Milner gave "my welcoming speech again," and introduced several special guests. Coaches of the team and team captains were recognized at the event, and Mrs. Mary Catherine Steele, faculty chairman, and Richard Ward '66, student chairman, were complimented for a job well done. The annual W.A.A. Homecoming Dance terminated the day's activities.

Greetings From Heea Halder Vazirani

Heea Halder Vazirani '59 writes from Patiala, Punjab, India:

"It has been quite a while since I have corresponded with the Alumni Office, but I am greatly delighted to receive the Alumni Journal periodically.

"I am enclosing a picture of my family. Seated to my left is Reetika (Little Flower) age 2, Deepika (Little Light) age 4, my husband, Sunder, and on his lap Asish Sunder (Wonderful Blessing) age 3 months—he was born on July 25, 1964.

"Sunder continues his post of Professor of Oral Surgery and Periodontia at the Government Medical College here in Patiala. I continue as a full time hausfrau with a little time for writing.

"I wish that at some near future date I could entertain some Guilfordians in my home. We have just had a young couple from Virginia stay with us for about ten days and how we cherish the time together, especially talking about Guilford, as they have visited the campus a couple of times. I do wish that someone would take this invitation seriously. All they have to do is get over here and the rest is on us. I feel that this is the only way I do anything for Guilford, as I am sure that you know what difficulty we have in getting foreign exchange to send to America to help my Alma Mater in any small way.

"May I take this opportunity to wish all my dear friends at Guilford a very Happy Christmas and a Bright and Prosperous New Year."

Guilford's Alumni Are Its Greatest Asset

Guilford Faculty Activities Are Varied

Dr. Moore

Dr. J. Floyd Moore, Professor of Religion at Guilford College and Vice President of the Friends World Committee on Consultation, made several addresses recently in connection with the Fourth World Conference of Friends to be held at Guilford College.

He spoke on "Significant Steps Forward" to Race Street Friends Meeting in Philadelphia on Friday, November 20, spoke at Hertford, N. C. on November 27, and was at Goldsboro on November 29 to consult with missionary conferences from Eastern and Contentnea Quarter Friends Meetings.

Mrs. Milner

Mrs. Ernestine C. Milner, Professor of Psychology, participated in the 26th National Council on Family Relations held October 9-11 at the Deauville Hotel, Miami, Florida. The theme of the conference was "The 1960's—Decade of the Teenager."

Mrs. Milner, who represented Altrusa International at the conference, has taught courses in Marriage and the Family at Guilford for 34 years.

At the conference, leading scholars and experts in the field of adolescent behavior presented papers on counseling, education, and research in the area of child rearing, sex education, and marriage. A teenage panel was a highlight of the event.

Mrs. Milner was in Troy, Ohio on Sunday, October 18, to attend the dedication of a new elementary school named in honor of her father, Dr. Charles W. Cookson, who was Superintendent of Schools in Troy for thirteen years.

Mrs. Milner and her brother, Colonel Forrest E. Cookson, formerly Commandant at Clemson College, were platform guests and both spoke at the occasion. Colonel Cookson's subject was, "The Teaching of the Wise is the Fountain of Life" and Mrs. Milner spoke on "Guidelines in a Cornerstone." The addressees were directed to incidents of interest in Charles W. Cookson's life and his major contributions to education.

Dr. Dinkel

Dr. Robert M. Dinkel, Professor of Sociology, Guilford College, and Vice President of the Population Reference Bureau, Washington, D. C., presented a paper entitled "Population Growth and Economic Development" to the Fifth International Planning Congress held in Mexico City from September 28 to October 3. Dr. Dinkel left Greensboro a few days before the beginning of the conference in order to present his paper in person and in order to confer with Mexican economists and demographers on several projects of mutual interest to them and to the Population Reference Bureau.

The Congress was held under the auspices and with the collaboration of the Government of Mexico. President Adolfo Lopez Mateos has expressed the interest of his administration in the objectives of the Congress. The Mexican Association of Engineers and Architects was instrumental in bringing the Fifth Congress to Mexico.

The Congress was the fifth meeting of the Inter-American Planning Society. It convened for the first time in 1956 in Colombia in conjunction with the First Technical Reunion for Housing and Planning of the OAS. The second Congress was held in 1958 in Peru, the third in 1960 in Puerto Rico, and the fourth in 1962 in Chile.

The meeting this year in Mexico City was devoted exclusively to analysis of the central theme, Planning for Social Development. All the nations of the Western Hemisphere, as well as the planners and other professionals interested in the planning process, were invited to participate in the Congress. Among the organizations in the United States which sent representatives were the Pan American Union, the Agency for International Development, the Institute of Public Administration, The American Institute of Planners, the American Institute of Architects, the Population Reference Bureau, and the National Urban League.

Mr. Parkhurst

Frederick W. Parkhurst, Jr., Associate Professor of Economics, represented Guilford College at the Southern Economic Association meeting this year in Atlanta, Georgia, November 12-14. Professor Parkhurst joined the Guilford faculty this year after six years as Chairman of the Economics Department at Emory and Henry College in Virginia. In 1960, he was one of ten economists in the United States awarded a Ford Foundation Research Fellowship in consumer economics to the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania. Professor Parkhurst previously taught at Northeastern University in Boston, is an attorney-at-law of the Massachusetts Bar, and was an instructor in the Army as well as defense counsel in trials by courtmartial. He was stationed with the Army Medical Corps in Korea.

Letter From Marion Morgan Usborne

Marion Morgan Usborne '62 wrote to the Alumni Office recently, sending the following news:

"After leaving Guilford, I attended secretarial school in Washington, D. C. and worked for a short time at the educational television station there when it was just getting started. In August of 1962 I married Ronald Usborne at Cornell University. We are now living in Lexington, Kentucky, where he is working on his Ph.D. in Animal Science. He will be through his work in June of 1966 and then we do not know where we'll be living."

New Press Box

On Saturday, November 14, the Guilford College Junior Chamber of Commerce made formal presentation to Guilford College of the handsome new press box pictured above. Presentation was made by Dr. Norman Fox '51, current Jaycee president. In his presentation, Norman Fox called attention to the co-operation of Guilford College in the beginning and in the extension of the work of the local group. "Our organization is proud to be a part of exciting developments here at the college."

Dr. Milner's acceptance speech follows:

"On behalf of the trustees and administration of Guilford, I express the college's acceptance of the generous gift of this press box. It adds markedly to the equipment at the Armfield Athletic Center — affording added hospitality for all representatives of communications media.

"This evidence of community interest is just one of many worthy projects promoted and completed by the Guilford College Junior Chamber of Commerce. Outstanding activities have been gifts of clothing and food for needy families, support of the many athletic programs of the high school and college and work in behalf of all young people of this community.

"Earnings of approximately $20,000, most of which resulted from two very successful Miss North Carolina pageants, has been expended on worthy projects in the past five years.

"This group of 40 civic minded young men of the Guilford community is commended. It is especially significant to all Guilfordians that four of the Jaycee presidents have been graduates of the college. The first three—Fred Bray, Ben Weston, Douglas Dettor—and the present one, Norman Fox.

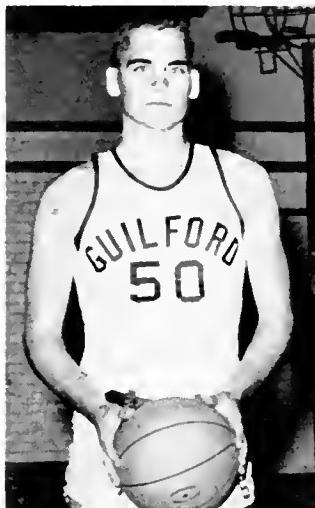

"An educational institution is highly gratified when its graduates assume responsibility for civic and social leadership. To the Guilford College Junior Chamber of Commerce, the sincere gratitude of the college is expressed."

Basketball

In the past, Guilford College basketball coaches have done some amazing things with little men. This year, perhaps for the first time, they have a good chance of doing some amazing things with big men.

Nine freshmen and four talented veterans form the nucleus for Coach Jerry Steele's warriors who made a 14-12 over-all record last season and rose to surprising heights in the Carolinas Conference Tournament. The Quakers defeated highly regarded Elon on opening day and dropped a two-point decision to eventual champion, High Point.

Center Bob Kaufman (6-8), forwards Leon Young (6-4), Ed Fellers (6-5), Doug Layne (6-4) and John Brooks (6-3) all rookies, give Steele reason to have great faith in his present squad.

Lack of height has always been a major problem here, but Steele, who was named NAIA Coach of the Year the last two years and Carolinas Conference Coach of the Year last season, finds himself in an unusual, but pleasant situation.

"We are green, though, and inexperienced," Steele emphasized. "But this group does have a lot of hustle and a good attitude. We did a great deal of experimenting before the season opened, trying to find the right combination."

"If the newcomers come through with consistently good performances, we could be in good shape when we get into the heart of our league schedule after Christmas."

Though Steele hopes to reap the most from his tall players, he still regards veteran guards Dave Odom, Loyd Turlington and Wayne Motsinger and forward Chuck Scott as vital in his plans.

Along with Odom, a playmaking genius, and Turlington, freshmen Gary Loftus and Rodney Gaylord provide a potent scoring twosome.

Kaufman, a powerfully-built giant who was sought by numerous major colleges, could be the answer to the Quakers "big-man problem" of the past.

Football

This autumn the football picture at Guilford has been much brighter than in recent years. Outstanding performances by players, including a number of freshmen and transfer students, enabled the Quakers to win three games as of November 13, assuring our best season since 1959. And had it not been for injuries that sidelined four starters—end Ronnie Ramsey, halfbacks Jack Brinkley and Bob Sylvester and quarterback Jimmy Williams—for most of the season the Quakers might well have risen to greater heights.

Football (Continued)

Williams, who led the conference in total offense and passing as a sophomore, appeared well on his way toward accomplishing similar feats this year, but injuries put the "Guilford Iron Man" out for the season.

When Williams, who was leading the team in rushing, passing, total offense, scoring and punting, was placed on the sideline, in came freshman sensation, Bill Burchette, to perform magnificently.

Others who have played key roles in the offensive backfield are fullback Bob Blevins, halfbacks Bill Joye, Henry McKay and Gary Thompson; ends Tommy Lovell and Ron Ramsey, tackles Bill Hollifield and John Sims, guards Gery York and Dwight Buffalo and center Bob Frederick anchored the line. York, Frederick, Buffalo and Joye will depart via the graduation route before next year.

Rookies Dean Johnson and Allen Brown added strength to the defensive unit, along with Lawrence Buffalo and Danny McQueen.

Through the first seven games, Guilford had claimed victories over Carolinas Conference foe, Western Carolina, 20-12, Bridgewater, 14-0 and Randolph-Macon, 40-8. The Quakers had lost to Hampden-Sydney, 16-8, Elon 15-6, Maryville 19-17 and Newberry 20-3.

Guilford won its final game of the season, defeating Emory and Henry 7-0, giving the Quakers a 4-5 record, best since 1949.

Two members of the 1954 Quaker football team (they were honored guests for the occasion) talk over old times with an official just before the homecoming clash with Maryville. They are Robert Cornish '56 and Donald Percise '55.

Several Guilfordians enjoyed visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Steen Holst Spivey '63 recently in Newberry, S. C. Head football coach, John Stewart, assistant, John Lambeth '55, assistant, Wilbur Johnson, and Alumni Secretary, Gene Key, accompanied the football team to Newberry College for a game between the Quakers and Indians, and all were entertained royally at the Spivey home.

Steen is teaching English at the South Carolina institution and is enjoying his work very much. The Spoves asked the Guilford delegation to send regards to all their Guilford friends.

Thomas Wesley Wooten Endowment Fund Established

With deep appreciation and satisfaction Guilford College announces establishment of the Thomas Wesley Wooten Endowment Fund by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lee Dobbins of Daytona Beach, Florida. Mr. and Mrs. Dobbins have indicated that it is their intent that this Fund will be at least $100,000. The net annual income from the Thomas Wesley Wooten Endowment Fund will be used in scholarships to aid and encourage able and worthy young men and women preparing for Christian leadership.

One-half of the income is to be awarded each year in approximately five Laura Kelley Dobbins Scholarships, the recipients to be selected by the Department of Music and the awards to be granted to those students especially interested in preparing for service as part or full-time ministers of music. The other half of the income is to be awarded as Thomas Wesley Wooten Scholarships for students preparing for full-time Christian service, preferably members of the Society of Friends.

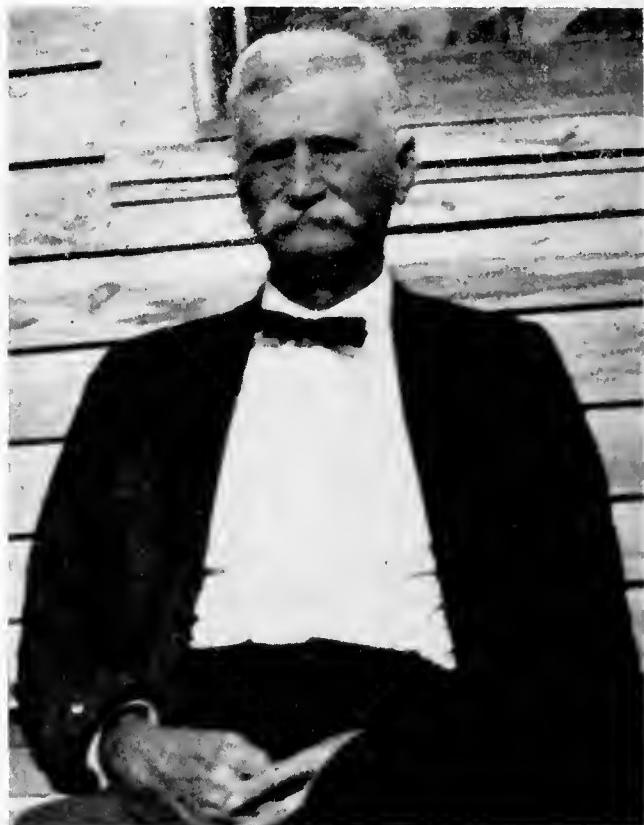

The following memorial to Thomas Wesley Wooten was given at the White Plains Monthly Meeting of Friends on August 14, 1955:

"T. Wesley Wooten was born December 7, 1854, at Forbush, Yadkin County, North Carolina. He was educated in the high schools in Jonesville and East Bend. Before he entered the ministry, he farmed in the summer and taught school in the winter. He was married to Elizabeth Joyner and to this union one daughter, Annie Laura, was born.

"Wesley Wooten was converted at Forbush Friends Meeting in Yadkin County in 1880. He felt a call to preach and started his ministry in Yadkin County. He donated the land where the Forbush Church was built. He also gave timber to help build it.

"In February, 1892, he moved to White Plains. Here, he devoted much of his time to evangelistic work. He was considered one of the best evangelists in North Carolina Yearly Meeting. Our own Meeting had just started when he came here and his work was very effective. He was one of the main leaders of our church who helped to establish Pine Hill Friends Meeting. He helped to build that church, also, and served many years as minister of this church. He was a devoted Quaker and Christian in our community until his death.

"The Wooten's daughter, Laura, was about 14 years old when they moved here. She must have been a very attractive girl, since a young man by the name of Wiley Dobbins would ride on horseback from

Thomas Wesley Wooten

Yadkin to see her. Laura and Wiley Dobbins were married in 1896 and started married life in this community.

"Wiley and Laura Dobbins lived in Mount Airy about 20 years and then moved to Florida, but returned to White Plains to live with their parents for a few years preceding their death. After her parents died, the Dobbins, because of Laura's health, returned to Gainesville, Florida, where they now live.

"To N. W. and Laura Dobbins 15 children were born. Walter was the oldest and Mildred Miller the youngest. Mildred and her daughter Pat are members of our meeting and known to all of us.

"On November 4, 1936, T. Wesley Wooten's Heavenly Father called him home. His funeral was conducted in the White Plains Friends Meetinghouse at two o'clock, November 5th, with Ben Millikan and Lewis McFarland paying beautiful tributes to his memory. Our meeting is happy from time to time to have members of his family worship with us."

Martha Scott Receives Honor

Dr. Harvey Ljung, professor of Chemistry at Guilford College, has announced that senior Martha Scott, a chemistry major, has accepted a teaching assistantship from Clark University in Worcester, Mass.

According to Ljung, Miss Scott, an outstanding science student, chose the assistantship from among several other possibilities. It awards $2,000 in compensation, free tuition and a $900.00 research grant for the summer of 1966.

Miss Scott, whose special field is inorganic chemistry, has been a Dana Scholar, an Honor Roll student, and is currently holding the Western Electric Fund Scholarship. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee W. Scott of Washington, D. C.

Sixty Choose Teaching

Of an estimated 175 graduates of Guilford College in 1965, sixty expect to enter the teaching profession, according to Harold N. Bailey, Associate Professor of Education and Director of Student Teaching. All will qualify with North Carolina "A" certificates. Bailey pointed out that of the sixty, several will do additional study before going directly into teaching.

Of the group, twenty-nine are preparing for careers in elementary education, and twelve are preparing to teach physical education. Others are: social studies — eight; Spanish — four; English — three; science — two; mathematics—one; and music—one.

Thorsell Is Hardy Biologist

On a bitter cold day recently, Dr. Robert Bryden, Professor of Biology at Guilford College, carried an observer with him to see one of his pupils. In the middle of the ice-covered, old mill pond at historic Bailes Lake on Highway 68, west of Greensboro, was senior biology major Kevin Thorsell. It was late afternoon; and he had chopped his way to the middle of the lake, where he was withdrawing water from the lake, carefully labeling receptacles.

The Guilford student is conducting a limnological (study of fresh water bodies) project under direction of Dr. Bryden, going particularly into the study of plankton (small natural beings which nature provides for marine life and for support of natural balance). A natural biologist, Thorsell was recipient of a research grant from the North Carolina Academy of Science.

What is the objective? "We will study the lake for a year (he began last summer), testing for changes brought about by season, weather, water temperature, and turbidity. In addition, we are conducting bottom studies; and possible change in the nature of the water due to runoff from rainfall," Kevin explained. "We have thus far found four tiny organisms in the plankton population: Daphnia Pulex; a cyclops; Dipteron (in deeper water), ordinarily identified as Chaoborus Albipes; and an ostracod, Cypricercus Reticulatus. A seasonal study of these has been undertaken."

At least two days a week have been devoted to plankton collections, and to a study of the alkalinity and acidity level in the lake. "Rain or shine, cold or warm, this young man goes to the lake," says Dr. Bryden. "Kevin is a naturalist, and it is refreshing to see someone going into this branch of biology. They are rare nowadays."

Guilford College has been selected for participation in the Texaco Aid to Education Program for the seventh consecutive year. Shown above is R. B. Gentry, district sales representative, Texaco Corporation, giving President Milner a check representing an unrestricted grant of $1,500.00 to the college. In making the presentation, Mr. Gentry called attention to the original statement announcing the beginning of the aid program in 1956: "We believe that an investment in the education of America's youth and the continued strength of its college and universities is an investment in the future welfare of our economy and our country."

President Milner stated that "the approximate sum of $12,000.00 received by Guilford under this splendid program has, along with other grants, enabled the college to go forward in many areas. Several years ago, this grant was used in establishing our student tutorial assistance program. Also, this annual grant has helped us in our program of instituting a gradual but steady increase in faculty salaries."

Plans For Alumni Day

Alumni Day 1965, to be held on Saturday, May 29, promises to be an outstanding occasion. Audrey Smith Duncan '51, chairman, has announced that, due to the particular significance of the event this year, Alumni Day will be co-sponsored by the Special Events Committee. This committee was appointed by President John Googe '50 when it was learned of the retirement from Guilford College this year of Dr. Clyde A. and Ernestine Milner.

Alumni Day this year will be held in honor of the Milners and in recognition of their combined seventy years of dedicated service to the college. Mrs. Duncan also has announced that much of the usual schedule of events will be cancelled because of special events.

One guest speaker who has confirmed his acceptance for the 12:00 noon reunion luncheon is Charles A. Dana of New York, industrialist, philanthropist, benefactor and loyal friend of Guilford College and Guilfordians. Another guest of national importance has tentatively accepted an invitation to be in attendance. Further publication will reveal details. Registration will begin at 10:00 a.m. at Founders Hall, with the Reunion Luncheon following at noon in Founders. Class reunions are scheduled for 2:00 p.m. Special reunion classes are the Class of '40, 25th anniversary; '55, 10th anniversary; '25, fortieth anniversary; '15, fiftieth anniversary; and '64, first anniversary. Other classes reuniting are: '16, '32, '33, '34, '35, '51, '52, '53, '54. Mrs. Duncan emphasized that all Guilfordians are invited to attend Alumni Day '65, in view of the special nature of the program.

Other events will be installation of officers, awards, and the Distinguished Alumni Award presentation. Reservations are already being accepted in the Alumni Office. The Special Events Committee includes: Trustees—L. E. Warrick, Sr. '26, Ruth Newlin Coble '37; Faculty—J. Floyd Moore '39, Charles Hendricks '40; Alumni—Hazel Monsees Macon '41, Robert Jamieson '33; Ex officio—John Googe '50; chairman, Gene S. Key.

Guilford Board Welcomes Two New Trustees

Two outstanding members of The Society of Friends have recently joined the Guilford College Board of Trustees. The new trustees are Sidney Halstead Tomlinson, Jr. of High Point and Dr. J. Paul Reynolds, Dean of Faculty, Wilmington College, Wilmington, North Carolina.

Sidney Tomlinson, High Point industrialist, attended High Point public schools and received the Bachelor of Science degree from Davidson College in 1934. He is Vice President of Tomlinson of High Point. Tomlinson is a member of the High Point Monthly Meeting of Friends and is a Vice President of the North Carolina Quaker Men. He is also a member of the Emerywood Country Club of High Point and the Merchants & Manufacturers Club of Chicago. Many of Tomlinson's relatives attended Guilford College, among them his father, Sidney Halstead Tomlinson, his brother, William Allen Tomlinson, two of his uncles and three of his aunts. He and Mrs. Tomlinson, the former Helen Bjork, have two children, Mrs. P. Frank Hanes, Jr. of Winston-

Salem and Sidney Halstead Tomlinson, III of High Point.

Dr. J. Paul Reynolds is a graduate of Guilford College having received the B.S. degree in 1928. He attended the University of North Carolina and received the Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins University in 1934. He has served in teaching capacities at Guilford College, University of North Carolina, Birmingham Southern College and Florida State University. He was Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Florida State University until his appointment last year as Dean of the Faculty at Wilmington College. He is a member of the Center Friends Meeting and of Rotary. Reynolds also is a descendant of several Guilfordians. His great-uncle and aunt, Lewis R. and Delilah Reynolds, were in Guilford's first class in 1837. His father, Herbert W. Reynolds, was a member of the Class of 1893 and an uncle, Elwood Reynolds, was a member of the Class of 1889. Dr. Reynolds is married to the former Rebecca Ward and they have two children, J. Paul Reynolds, Jr. and William Lee Reynolds.

Shown above is Hannah Reynolds Osborne, who attended Guilford College in 1839, with two future Guilfordians, her granddaughters, Virginia Osborne Chase '24, and Frances Osborne Gust '29. The picture was taken in 1909.

Mary Lee Coleman, freshman from Randleman, has the distinction of being the only current Guilford student listing a great-grandparent as a former student. She was Mrs. Hannah Reynolds Osborne, who entered Guilford (then New Garden Boarding School) in 1839, two years after classes began at Guilford. She became an "assistant teacher" the next year, and was "principal teacher of the Girls School" from 1844-1848. She had left New Garden to marry young Joel Watkins in 1843, but returned after his early death.

A resident of what is now Centre Community, Hannah Reynolds later married Obed Osborne. Son, B. Lundy, and daughter, Susannah, graduated from Guilford College ('87 and '90); and two granddaughters graduated in the 20's. Charles Chase, Mary's cousin, graduated in 1960, and now Mary is in attendance.

Mary takes pride in the discovery that her great-grandmother was a great factor in the success of Guilford College in its beginning. Her devoted service is a matter of record in the Guilford College library, and her insight and keen observation are revealed in yellowed pages representing 50 letters written in the 1840's by Hannah Reynolds Osborne. These have been donated to the Guilford College library, along with a flower designed velvet "Minute Bag" and a silk apron made by her own hand—including the growing of the worms, weaving, and sewing the silk.

The Minute Bag was used to store minutes as she carried them back and forth to sessions of the North Carolina Yearly Meeting of Friends in the 1840's, when she was recording secretary of the "Women's Division."

Walter Dobbins began his education at White Plains, then went to Mount Airy Schools. He attended Guilford College in 1916-1917. The first world war interrupted his education and after the war he moved to Florida. He married Ruby McDonald of Gainesville, Florida, on July 19, 1925. He has one daughter, Ruby, by this marriage. She lives in Inverness, Florida. His wife died in 1933.

He married Laura May Kelley of Gainesville, Florida, on August 19, 1939. Laura Kelley was a high school teacher at Pierson, Florida. To this union were born three children—Walter Lee, Jr., who is a senior at Guilford College; Patrick Kelley, a first-year medical student at the University of Florida; and Annie Laura, a freshman at Daytona Beach Junior College.

Both Walter and Laura Dobbins are members of the First Presbyterian Church in Daytona Beach. Walter has served as a deacon in his church and Laura was president of the Women of the Church for the year 1960-61. They are devoted to their church and both are very active in its total program. They practice tithing and believe that this will bring great joy to one's life.

Believing that the Bible should be used as a guide for life, and that the solution for every life situation can be found in the Bible, and that the Lord is more willing to bless than we are to claim his blessing, Walter Dobbins and his wife, Laura Kelley Dobbins, have established great faith in the scripture found in Malachi, Chapter 3, verses 10 and 11, which say:

"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in my house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

"And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of Hosts."

Walter is the owner of Dobbins Groves, one of the largest and finest citrus orchards in the famed Indian River area; and of Courtesy-Yellow Cabs in Daytona Beach. He is not a "joiner" (he spends most of his free time in church activities), but he serves the First Atlantic National Bank of Daytona Beach as director; and is a director of Southern Farm Bureau.

50 - Year Alumni Group Sponsors Brock Chisholm Address

In a memorable address to Guilford College students, faculty, and visitors on February 26, Dr. Brock Chisholm, former head of United Nations World Health Organization and distinguished Canadian citizen, told his audience that "Conscience is not necessarily reliable."

Dr. Chisholm, speaking on "Expanding Concepts of Health," gave the United Nations definition: "State of complete physical, mental, and social well-being." "Not," he said, "the mere absence of disease or infirmity." To expound on his statement about conscience, the speaker cited cases of two mentally ill persons. One was a head hunter, sick with shame because he had never killed and retrieved a head; the other was a young man brought up in an atmosphere of "crime, crookedness, theft, and violence," who became conscience-stricken when he became sympathetic and friendly with the police.

"For the first time," said Dr. Chisholm, "man has become a member of the human race whether he likes it or not! For the first time, the human race is threatened by the human race. Historically, warfare has been man's method of survival. This method is no longer available, as it is ultimately destructive. Man is capable through warfare of destroying every person on earth three times over. Some people believe that if we can arrange to destroy everyone twenty times over, we will be safe! I can see little advantage in killing every one over three times!"

"We have been using much, much money and our best brains to learn how to kill. Our defense is that 'we must stay ahead of the Russians'—the moment each side reached that point where it could destroy all mankind, it became meaningless to be ahead!

"Sadly, there is no tradition of concern itself with survival of the whole human race. We are behaving still as tribes when we should be behaving at the world level.

"The United Nations is a beginning, but nations attempt to use this body for their own gain. This must not be. The United Nations can only be as effective as nations want it to be. Nations can only act in the interest of the human race to the extent their people want them to. This, then, becomes a personal thing for you and me!"

Dr. Chisholm categorized three great challenges to the human race:

- (1) Security—atomic war, chemical and biological warfare.

Choir Plans Two Spring Trips

The renowned Guilford College A Cappella Choir has scheduled two significant trips for this spring. The regular annual tour will be southward to Florida and will begin March 20 lasting ten days. Accompanying the Choir will be Conductor, Carl C. Baumbach, and Assistant Conductor, Jerry Smyre. The itinerary will include concerts in Goldsboro, Jessup, Ga., Ocala, Fla., Haines City, Fla., St. Cloud, Fla., Mt. Dora, Fla., St. Petersburg, Fla., Frogmore, S. C. and Monroe, N. C.

In late spring the Choir will journey to New Jersey and New York. On April 29 it will present a concert in Haddonfield, N. J. Then on April 30 and May 1 Guilford's Choir will appear by invitation for four concerts at the Tiparillo Band Pavilion at the New York World's Fair.

This will be the thirty-seventh season and tour for the Choir which was organized in 1928 by Professor Max Noah, then head of the department of music. Carl Baumbach has continued work with the Choir since 1952. Numbering forty-eight, the Choir is composed of thirty women and eighteen men. The Choir's program is divided into four parts and includes, in addition to the traditional religious motets, a spiritual and an Appalachia carol. The chorus is

- (2) Population Explosion—there will be more ill-fed, ill-housed, and ill-clothed people in the world this year than ever before—and next year it will be worse, and so on—
 - (3) Natural Resources—We are idly watching wanton destruction of our God-given resources, right in face of the fact that demands on them in the future will be increasing at a fantastic pace.

The speaker warned that "many forms of life have survived longer than mankind, only to perish. The healthy development of children is basic—their ability to live harmoniously in changing total environment is necessary to this development." He added, "Man is facing conditions for survival that have changed as drastically as those of the dinosaur before his disappearance. If we go on as we have, we are sure to perish as a species."

Dr. Chisholm is a friend of the Binford family and visited Guilford under the sponsorship of the 50-year group, Guilford College Alumni Association. The 50-year group is sponsoring a program to raise funds for a professorship in the area of the broader concepts of health. The professorship is in memory of the late Dr. Raymond Binford, Guilford College's third president.

BASKETBALL

Guilford College's basketball team has just completed one of the most successful seasons in the history of the college under the direction of Coach Jerry Steele and his assistant, Roy Williams.

For the regular season Guilford won 17 games and lost 7 and had a conference record of 8 victories against 6 defeats. In the Carolina Conference Tournament Guilford drew High Point, third ranked small college team in the nation, for its first game, and was defeated by the close score of 35 to 30.

Outstanding performances during the season were: victory over Pfeiffer at Pfeiffer by a score of 55-51; overtime 72-70 loss to High Point; a second close, though losing game, with High Point in Greensboro Coliseum before the largest crowd ever to see a Carolina Conference basketball game; a 64-57 victory over Western Carolina College, the second home loss Western Carolina had in 42 games; an impressive 61-60 victory over Lenoir Rhyne.

Outstanding performances of the season were given by Bob Kauffman, Leon Young, Tom Loftus, Dave Odom, Chuck Scott, Lloyd Turlington, Wayne Motsinger, John Brooks, Ed Fellers, Rod Gaylord and Byron Lawson. Only Turlington and Odom will be lost to next year's team and Coach Steele has every reason to believe that 1965-1966's season will be as good as the last one or better.

Coach John Stewart was named Carolinas Conference Coach of the Year by his fellow coaches in late December. The award came after a season of four wins and five losses, following a winless 1963 campaign.

Coach Stewart has just concluded successful spring drills, in which twenty-six players took part. Faced with the loss of eight seniors, including all-conference Gary York and Billy Joye, Coach Stewart still contends that prospects are good. Factors causing the optimism are: the return of senior QB Jimmy Williams, two time all-conference; the emergence of sophomore Bill Burchette as a second able QB with a great passing arm; and the qualification for eligibility of five transfer students: Ronnie Winslow, 225-pound center-linebacker, a junior from Asheboro; Bob Roberts, 220-pound tackle, a junior from Shelby;

Bubba Brockwell, 185-pound QB, a junior from Winston-Salem; Dan Surface, 180-pound tailback, a junior from Blacksburg, Va.; and Ronnie Wallace, outstanding FB, a junior from New Bern, N. C. "All of these will help us," says Coach Stewart. Coach Stewart also believes that in two sophomores, Guilford could very well have the best runners in the Carolina Conference during the coming years. They are Henry McKay, who became an exciting runner and pass receiver last year; and Gary Thompson, who caused a great stir at the end of the 1964 campaign with his running. Both weigh approximately 190 pounds.

BASEBALL

Coach Stuart Maynard says that if he is forced to make a prediction about his '65 team, it will have to be a pessimistic one. "We lost two pitchers, our all-conference catcher, three-fifths of our infield, and two-thirds of our outfield." Returning pitchers are senior Kendall Buckner and sophomore Harold Pate. Other pitching prospects are freshmen Jimmy Bryan and Mike Cole from Goldsboro; Joe Wallen from Brevard; David Kellon from Haddonfield, New Jersey; and Bill Burchette from Havelock. Burchette, in addition to being an outstanding pitching prospect, is reputed to be an able catcher—a problem spot for the Quakers this year.

Another good prospect is freshman T. Wes Ferrell, a centerfielder and son of the famous big league pitcher.

Three veterans who will carry a heavy load for the Guilford College baseball team are: Sandy Gann, junior from Kernersville; Kendall Buckner, senior from Siler City; and Harry Sasser, sophomore from Goldsboro.

Howard Hinshaw To Serve In African Hospital

Howard T. Hinshaw '60, now a junior at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine, has been awarded a $1,540 Smith Kline & French Laboratories Foreign Fellowship which will permit him to assist at a mission hospital in Africa for a ten-week period beginning in June. He will work under the supervision of Dr. Norman E. Matthews, his sponsor, at the Friends Hospital at Tiriki near Kisumu, Kenya.

Howard is one of 28 American medical students chosen this year by the Association of American Medical Colleges to receive the fellowships made possible by a grant from the Philadelphia prescription drug firm. Through the fellowships, the medical students are given an opportunity to broaden their clinical experience by living and working in underdeveloped areas of the world.

Friends Hospital, situated in the northern part of the Nyanza Lake Province in western Kenya, serves between 20,000 and 50,000 people of Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika. Four doctors, 18 African, European and American nurses, two laboratory technicians and a pharmacist provide care for an average of 200 inpatients and 1,000 outpatients a month.

In the 120-bed hospital, Hinshaw will carry out a broad variety of clinical assignments in medicine, surgery and other specialties. He will treat such diseases as malaria, parasitic infections, whooping cough, typhoid fever and tuberculosis.

Also, in addition to the regular clinical duties he will perform, Hinshaw hopes to study the dietary patterns of the population in relation to the extremely low incidence of cardiovascular disease.

Howard Hinshaw is the son of Seth and Mary Edith Woody '35 Hinshaw of 910 Ridgecrest Drive, Greensboro, N. C. His father is widely known as Executive Secretary of the N. C. Yearly Meeting of Friends.

While at Guilford, Howard was an unusually prominent student. He was member of the Choir,

Quaker Shirts Are Popular

Mae, Margaret, and Marsha Adams are shown wearing the Quaker shirts they received at Guilford when their mother Yasuko Maelawa Adams '54 attended her tenth anniversary reunion. Their father, Robert Adams '50, was also pleased to return to his alma mater. Bob is making final preparations on his application for a research fellowship in Japan, and in the meantime, will be busy finishing up his M.A. thesis and taking the preliminary examinations for the doctorate in April. Just before coming back to North Carolina, Yasuko finished her eight weeks of student teaching in ninth grade world history and geography. This was her first extensive experience with American high school students, and she found that it revealed many new aspects of American culture. After taking a final course during the summer, she now has her teaching certificate.

the Quaker staff and the German Club, and an Honor Roll student throughout his years at Guilford. During his junior year he served as Chief Marshal, and was inducted into the Guilford Scholarship Society. He served as the society's Vice President during his senior year. Because of his academic excellence, he was awarded the Lucy Stella Schieffelin Scholarship and the Nereus and Oriana Mendenhall Mathematics Scholarship.

Presently, Howard lives at 14 South Circle Drive, Dogwood Acres Ext., Chapel Hill. He views his Fellowship as an opportunity to "either satisfy or further stimulate an ambition to provide medical care in areas where it is most acutely needed." This ambition, he feels, has been strengthened by a missionary heritage.

From a letter from Frances Cook Holder '62 to the alumni office:

"Last Easter I was married to Wayne Holder. I am teaching my second year at Mount Airy Senior High, in the English department. I will complete my M.A. degree in English at A.S.T.C. this summer.

"I really appreciate the Journal when it comes. When I was working in the alumni office, I didn't realize how interesting it would be to find out what everybody is doing and what is happening at Guilford. Attending another college made me really appreciate the friendly atmosphere and top-notch education at Guilford. I found that I was as well as, or better, prepared than my fellow graduate students."

T. Fletcher Bulla

One of the most loyal of Guilford's alumni died November 24, 1964 at High Point, N. C. T. Fletcher Bulla '12, who remained a concerned and active alumnus from graduation to his death, was a distinguished educator, religious leader, and citizen.

He taught for two years after college, before going to Randolph County as Superintendent of Schools. During his term, 108 schools were consolidated into 27; and high school enrollment increased from 165 to more than 1800. In the early days, Fletcher Bulla toured the schools on horseback.

In 1950, after retiring as superintendent, he was named chairman of the Randolph County Board of Education. He served for 15 years as chairman of the Polio Foundation in the county; and was for forty years a director of Randolph Savings and Loan Association.

A daughter, Betsy Bulla King '37; and her daughter, Ann, now a student at Guilford, are among his survivors.

Florence Macy Beckett '08 died December 29 in Pasadena, California, which had been her home for 40 years. She was always interested in North Carolina and Guilford College and came to Guilford College from Western Springs, Ill. Just last May she rejoined friends on Alumni Day, staying through commencement. She was so impressed by the prayer of Dr. Philip Furnas to the graduating class that she requested a copy. Florence was a Quaker and was active in her work of the American Friends' Service Committee. She was also a contributor to the Binford Memorial Professorship project of the 50-year group of Guilford College Alumni.

In Memoriam

Dr. William A. Wolff and Mabel Ward Wolff

Moving tributes spoken at a special memorial service for Dr. William A. Wolff '23, who died November 12, 1964, accentuated the loss of a great leader to the Society of Friends and higher education. Only six months previous, Dr. Wolff attended a memorial service at New Garden Friends Meeting for his wife, Mabel Ward Wolff '22, who died April 29, 1964. The loss of their leadership and friendship to Guilford College and the greater community was heavily felt in 1964.

Dr. and Mrs. Wolff's survivors include three daughters, Margaret "Peggy" Wolff Lemmons '51, of Asheboro; Elizabeth "Betsy" Wolff Moser '56, of Silver Spring, Maryland; Judith Marian Wolff '61, of Winston-Salem; and four grandchildren.

Mabel W. Wolff was born in Rich Square in 1900. After completing her education at Guilford College, she became a T. Wistar Brown scholar at Haverford College, where she received a masters degree in sociology. She spent several years in social work in Philadelphia. The Friends Meeting was of deep concern, and Mrs. Wolff was very active in Sunday School teaching and in the Winston-Salem Women's Missionary Society, of which she was a past president. Mabel Wolff was a rare individual, a gentle lady who always was patient, generous, and gracious. She has been described as one of the truly good persons of the world.

Surry County was the first home of William A. Wolff, who was born in 1901. His family moved to Guilford County where he attended public schools and worked on a chemistry degree at Guilford College. He furthered his education by receiving the M.A. degree from Haverford College and a distinguished Ph.D. degree from the University of Pennsylvania. In 1934, some 15 years before commercial intravenous solutions were available, Dr. Wolff served as the chemist with a six-man group of medical scientists at Pennsylvania Hospitals in Philadelphia who were among the pioneers in intravenous research.

During his professional career Dr. Wolff taught more than 2500 students and served on the faculties of three colleges, two medical schools, two schools of nursing, and a school of veterinary medicine. In 1942 he became a charter member of the staff of Bowman Gray School of Medicine and was in charge of chemical pathology and toxicology.

In addition to teaching, he conducted significant research, especially in the field of toxicology. During World War II, he investigated procedures of treatment for severe burns and burn shock patients. In the 1950's, he worked with the Winston-Salem Police Department on chemical tests to determine intoxication and also did much in North Carolina to promote the passage of the '63 bill making Breathalyzer tests valid court evidence. He also worked extensively on narcotic drugs and nicotine levels in the blood.

He was a councilor of the Central North Carolina local section of the American Chemical Society from 1951 to 1953 and alternate councilor from 1954 to 1956. From 1956 to 1960 he was Secretary-Treasurer of the American Board of Clinical Chemistry. He was also an active member of the Winston-Salem Civitans.

After retirement, he again turned to study with refresher courses at the University of North Carolina and headed the chemistry department at Greensboro College. His students attested to his zeal for excellence, his quality teaching, and his helpful concern for the individual student.

In 1956, Dr. Wolff was elected to the Guilford College Board of Trustees and served this office with devotion and distinction until his death. He made a distinct contribution as chairman of the teachers and officers committee of the trustees. Until ill health forced him to stop, he was working diligently on the very careful choice of a new president for Guilford College. He was known for his concern for improved conditions for faculty, and was considered a close friend by all faculty members.

A Guilford College faculty member stated that, with all the interests, concerns, and contributions of William Wolff, her tribute was to "William Wolff the father—his concern for the upbringing and education of his three wonderful daughters; his recognition and understanding of their different personalities and needs."

One little facet of Dr. Wolff's character was his ability and genuine desire for physical labor. He was a familiar sight in his old straw hat at the farm of his birth in Surry County, where he would work with such vigor that he could outlast many a man of the younger generation. The residents near his farm remembered Dr. Wolff as just a good neighbor—one who worked hard and was willing to help when needed. This compassion to help his fellowman was felt by all those who met William Wolff.

"The Team"

Commencement Exercises . . . The 128th Year

Judge Braxton Craven, commencement speaker; Rebecca Stout, Key Senior; and Dr. Clyde A. Milner.

Graduating seniors at Guilford College were told that "Love thine enemy, or mutual coexistence, has become the categorical imperative for peace on earth in our time."

Commencement speaker for graduation exercises in Dana Auditorium was J. Braxton Craven, Jr., chief judge of the United States Western District Court of North Carolina.

"You have perhaps learned here that worship is an act of seeking rather than performance, that concern for suffering should find expression in humanitarian service and social justice, and that peace on earth is the categorical imperative of our time," Craven said.

The students were further told that man's greatest shortcomings are his pride and his inability to handle power.

"Inability to handle power—locally, nationally, and internationally—is man's most notable conflict at every level of society," he said.

Craven said that since we are still in the jungle internationally, war will never be abolished any more than murder, and both are here to stay.

"But war must be made illegal and unlawful, un-sanctioned and unapproved of, just as we have done with murder," he said. Craven quoted Christian theologians, notably C. S. Lewis, in saying that "the essential vice, the utmost vice, is pride."

"Other sins are mere flea bites in comparison, and this great sin has its worst manifestation in national pride, which is not the same thing as patriotism, but is often mistaken for it," he said.

The jurist shared some of his experiences in the courtroom with the 140 graduating seniors and recommended to them "compromise" as "perhaps the most sublime word in the English language."

"I am not much impressed with matters of principle that prevent people living together in reasonable harmony," he said.

"Somehow your generation and mine must find ways to extend compromise and peaceful adjudication to disputes between nations. My generation and the one before it has already built the courtroom—the International Court of Justice. It will be for your generation to get the litigants to come into it," the students were told.

Dr. Frederick R. Crownfield, of the college's religion department who delivered the devotional, paid tribute to Dr. Clyde A. Milner, president of the college, and his wife, chairman of the psychology department, who are both retiring July 1 after 35 years service at the Quaker institution.

A CONFORMING OR A CREATIVE LIFE?

Scripture: Romans 12; Text: Verses 1 and 2

You seniors, whose parents, teachers and many friends are here this morning to honor you by their presence, have already become aware of one of life's great pressure contests. Confronting you for decision will be a constant flow of problems, and you will have to decide to CONFORM to the generally accepted standards of your peer group or be strong enough and willing to endeavor to help CREATE a way of life more nearly as it should be.

"Do not be conformed to this world but be transformed by the renewal of your mind that you may prove what is the will of God, what is good and acceptable and perfect."

In the simplest and clearest terms, "Do not conform to the ways of the world" when you know they are less than the best. But "let God keep renewing your mind and spirit from within" and join Him in the creative process of building His kingdom.

We are all aware of the fact that this interpretation of life's purpose is not generally accepted, or even thought about, in this secular age of rapidly growing mechanization. But you should be reminded that for many centuries men have believed in and have experienced this creative power of the Living God in their lives and have been strengthened in overcoming self and selfish desires, and been able to live creatively for others. In this sustaining power they have been able to face all of life's problems, its joys and sorrows, its success and failures. This way of life insists that practice in living is as essential as preaching. In fact, practice and preaching should be twins—identical twins—for we need both and each is weakened and even endangered without the other.

As we prepare our minds with the best possible information, and then endeavor to test our judgments with the deepest understanding we can have of the Divine Purpose, we are again faced with the problem of adequately balancing a specific situation with the spiritual principle involved. Today, possibly as never before, we are witnessing these two essential factors working independently when they should be in closest cooperation. At this point we are all in danger as we decide either to conform or to create.

Individuals, educational institutions and the churches too often talk eloquently in abstract terms about the Brotherhood of Man, the Love of God, the Building of His Kingdom on Earth, and the Sustaining Power of Grace with too little reference to specific situations, such as the troublesome neighbor, dishonest practices in many places of our growingly complex lives, and every way of conduct that separates a man from his fellow men.

It is our responsibility to be increasingly perceptive in the specific and always complex situations surrounding us, always searching for solutions in line with our deepest insight as to God's Eternal Purpose. Thus to preach and to practice are a both-and, not an either-or!

When we put all, or the major part of our emphasis in information, statistics and objective observations, we are in danger of becoming activists, and often stir up controversy and strife, as we encounter conflicting data and emotionalized personal opinions.

On the other hand, when we put the major emphasis upon abstract principles and doctrines we are in danger of losing contact with the practical life situations surrounding us and become theorists.

It is particularly urgent that we relate situation and principle as we face today's perplexing and demanding problems: ethical integrity; sex morality; civil rights; the population, knowledge, and technological explosions; and the creative use of nuclear power—to name perhaps the most outstanding.

The ultimate aim of education is to keep growing in deeper understanding of life's purpose and meaning, and to express spiritual values in daily life—always emphasizing the sacramental qualities of the whole life. All education has religious significance. Intellectual and emotional maturity can only be achieved when the spiritual resources of the inner self become aware of, and responsible to, the Spirit of God.

Seniors, when you are faced with your decision either to conform or to create, it may be helpful to recall Paul's advice, as translated by J. B. Phillips:

"Don't let the world around you squeeze you into its own mould, but let God remould your minds from within, so that you may prove in practice that the Plan of God for you is good, meets all His demands, and moves towards the goal of true maturity."

On three previous occasions, in 1931, 1933 and 1943, the graduating class requested that Clyde A. Milner deliver the baccalaureate sermon. In 1934 he delivered the commencement address. The essence of the 1965 sermon, published here, was prepared for the Journal by Dr. Milner.

WHEREAS, through the years, they have fulfilled their duties with complete dedication and devotion, looking always to the future with steadfast determination to do their best;

WHEREAS, the Milners have brought amazing growth and development to Guilford College, maintaining all the while a spirit of academic freedom and integrity commensurate with a firm belief in the basic Christian purpose of church-related colleges;

WHEREAS, Clyde and Ernestine Milner have contributed generously of their many talents and energies to the sound and productive growth of education, culture and the spiritual life of the City of Greensboro and its surrounding communities; and

WHEREAS, Dr. and Mrs. Milner, upon retirement, will begin a world tour for the World Friends Services Committee which will require their absence from the country for approximately two years;

Now, THEREFORE, I, William L. Trotter, Jr., Mayor of the City of Greensboro, North Carolina, do hereby proclaim Saturday, May 29, 1965, as "Clyde and Ernestine Milner Day" in Greensboro, North Carolina, and call upon all citizens to accord Dr. and Mrs. Milner the recognition they so richly deserve.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the City of Greensboro, North Carolina, to be affixed hereto this the 17th day of May, 1965.

(Signed): W. L. TROTTER, JR., Mayor

Alumni Day '65, held Saturday, May 29, must go down as one of the truly important and significant events in Guilford's history. Planned with precision and detail by Chairman Audrey Smith Duncan '51 and the Special Events Committee, the program was received with appreciation by the largest Alumni Day crowd in recent history.

It was Clyde and Ernestine C. Milner Day in Greensboro and on the Guilford College campus, and all events centered around the dedicated couple who have a combined tally of 70 years of service to their college.

The crowds that swelled in mid-morning around registration tables, expertly manned by Eleanor Benbow and Esther Cummings with their competent staff composed of Executive Committees members, and around the refreshment table manned by Adalia Futtrell Williams '25 and Hazel Armstrong Valentine '17, were handled with ease.

Sara Haworth '17 delighted those in attendance with her humorous remarks prior to the presentation of a bound Book of Letters to the Milners from Alumni and friends.

At the Reunion Luncheon, Charles Hendricks '40, Master of Ceremonies, moved expertly through a program that will be remembered as outstanding. Hazel Armstrong Valentine '17 delivered the invocation, and noted that "there were those of the past who remain in spirit—Miss Louise, Dr. Binford, Dr. Franklin Davis."

Harper J. Elam, Jr., Mayor Pro Tem of the City of Greensboro, read a proclamation declaring Saturday, May 29, as "Clyde A. and Ernestine C. Milner Day" in Greensboro. Dr. A. R. Keppel, president of Piedmont University Center, read a tribute signed by seventeen college presidents, expressing appreciation for Dr. Milner's support of the Center and higher education in North Carolina.

His many friends and admirers were saddened at the absence of Charles A. Dana, who was unable to attend as planned. He was to have awarded Alumni Distinguished Service Awards to Clyde and Ernestine Milner. However, all agreed that J. Floyd Moore '39 and Mildred Marlette '35, who presented the awards to President and Mrs. Milner, respectively, capably filled his shoes. Beautiful gold pins designed and hand-crafted by the Milners' long-time friend, Arnold A. Schiffman, Greensboro jeweler, were presented.

Psychology majors of past years presented a portrait of Mrs. Milner, painted by Ralph Herring of Charlotte. Audrey Duncan presided at the unveiling, and presented Mrs. Milner with a bouquet of roses.

Milners Receive Distinguished Service Awards

The 11th Distinguished Alumni Award, presented to Ernestine C. Milner by Mildred Marlette '35. Mrs. Milner received a handcrafted gold pin, designed and made by Jeweler Arnold A. Schiffman, of Greensboro.

In presenting the Eleventh Alumni Distinguished Service Award to Ernestine Cookson Milner, Mildred Marlette, Associate Professor of English, said this about Mrs. Milner:

"It is my pleasure to bespeak honor to one whose love of truth, goodness, and beauty has impressed many lives. This woman has spent many years teaching various subjects in the Core Curriculum and in the field of psychology. Her assignments have run the gamut from Senior Philosophy, General Psychology, Philosophy 204, Child Psychology, Personnel Psychology, Marriage and the Family, and Children's Literature. In all her classes she maintained a high academic standard and firmly supported the liberal arts curriculum.

"This woman has given hours, days, and months in public service. In leadership positions in her favorite civic club, Altrusa International, she held high the name of Guilford College. In all instances and in all places, she loyally represented and defended the image of Guilford. Indubitably, all of us today cherish, as we shall always, her abiding concern for the success of Guilford's students. For years, she remembers us by face and by name, and welcomes each into her home or greets each wherever she meets him.

"With a deep sense of gratitude for her distinguished service to Guilford College, I present, in behalf of the Alumni Association, this award to Ernestine Cookson Milner."

J. Floyd Moore presents the Alumni Association's 12th Distinguished Alumni Award to Clyde A. Milner at the Reunion Luncheon. Moore stood in for Charles A. Dana, who was unable to come as planned, due to failing health.

J. Floyd Moore, Professor of Biblical Literature and Religion, in presenting the Twelfth Alumni Distinguished Service Award to President Clyde A. Milner, praised him with these words:

"Thirty-five years ago this summer, many of you will recall, the Milners came to us as a team: Dean of the College (and of men) and teacher of philosophy; Dean of Women, and teacher of psychology.

"During all these years, our president has represented us with dignity and poise in rural Friends meetings, urban churches, in business and industry, at home and abroad. He has not tried to break records or win laurels. Yet it is a remarkable fact that he now holds first place with his 31 years as Guilford's president in the entire list of 101 presidents of the twelve American Quaker colleges.

"But even here, longevity in itself is no virtue. What is it that characterizes most deeply the service of President Milner, and elicits our finest response? It seems to me that we get close to the reality of his nature when we see in him an example of what Rufus Jones has described, in a phrase from Proverbs: 'The spirit of man is a candle to the Lord.'

"Friends have always been wary of superlatives, so let us today use the positive degree:

In him is no littleness, nor meanness,
In him is no anger, jealousy, or hatred,
In him are hope, faith, and courage abundant,
In him the Love (Agape) which St. Paul described has grown manifest to us all.

"It is for these reasons, and more, President, that the Alumni Association today expresses in return its abiding affection and gratitude as we give you this token of our esteem and designate you the recipient of our Twelfth Distinguished Service Award."

Words Of Praise Accorded Clyde And Ernestine Milner

By Harold W. Tribble

Dr. Harold W. Tribble, president of Wake Forest College, paid high tribute to President Milner at the annual Alumni banquet Saturday evening, May 29. A brief of his remarks follows:

"The invitation to speak on this occasion brought me genuine joy, for I hold Clyde Milner in high affectionate esteem. In what I have to say now I am thinking of Dr. Milner as an inspiring example, demonstrating the characteristics that are essential in a college president who in his administration builds a stronger institution of learning. I would emphasize three such characteristics.

"(1) He builds on the works of others. Clyde Milner had the good sense to evaluate properly the work of those who went before him in the presidency, and to conserve the value of that work in his own program. He did not establish Guilford College, but he made it definitely stronger. He did not design the pattern of Guilford College, but by incisive analysis and precise statement of goals he provided wise leadership in giving a clear sense of direction in the growth of the college.

"(2) He builds with others. The wise president of a church-related college recognizes that in the trustees, the faculty and students, the church constituency of the school, and other friends, he has a potential team of co-laborers in the task of building for the future. He must recognize differing talents, unusual potentials, varying interests, and the complex motivation in enlisting and utilizing the support that the school needs.

"The classic example in this case is the way Mr. Dana and Dr. Milner teamed up for developing Guilford College. The fruit of that team effort in buildings, in the Dana Scholars program, and in other important respects is well known among Guilford people and in all of this region. There were some things that Mr. Dana could do which President Milner could not do. And there were some things President Milner could do which Mr. Dana could not do. But most important of all is the fact that there were some significant things that these two talented and dedicated men could do together, and because they worked together so well the college grew significantly in strength.

"(3) He builds in people. It is not enough for the college president to build on the work of others and with others. He must also project his work in the minds and lives of others. The college teacher, the educator, the college president must have the faculty of recognizing potential in people that can be developed into reality only by the techniques and philosophy of Christian higher education. Dr. Milner demonstrated this attribute in making it possible for members of the faculty to have leaves of absence for study, and inspiring members of the faculty to take advantage of the opportunity. In thus guiding the faculty to greater endeavor he also set the pattern for stimulating and inspiring students to put forth their maximum effort toward achieving their potential.

"I would like to leave with my good friend, the retiring president of Guilford College, a word of encouragement concerning the future. While you are laying aside the burdens of your office and entering upon a well-deserved period of change of pace and, I trust, rest and relaxation, you will continue to experience the unfolding and flowering of your finest efforts in watching the labors of these thirty years of distinguished service bear fruit in the ongoing program of Guilford College."

By John Googe

At the Annual Alumni banquet, John Googe, president of the Guilford College Alumni Association, expressed appreciation to Clyde and Ernestine Milner as follows in presenting to them the tickets for their around-the-world tour which will begin September 1 of this year:

"Ordinarily when the president of a college retires you would expect the alumni president and other college officials to have a meeting to discuss the appropriate recognition for such an occasion. Well, to be honest with you, from the very moment Dr. and Mrs. Milner made their wishes and desires known as to their retirement there was a spontaneous reaction from alumni and friends of this college to express their appreciation and love to a couple who have probably influenced and directed more young people than any other couple in North Carolina. This spontaneous reaction was expressed through letters, phone calls, telegrams, and personal contact. As a result of this tremendous outpouring of concern, love, and affection, the Alumni Association, with the approval of the trustees, set out to determine an appropriate method of expressing appreciation to this couple who for thirty-five years have represented quality in liberal education and are without peers.

"To express this affection to two people who stand ten feet tall in the eyes of thousands of alumni and friends is no easy task.

"As many of you know, Dr. and Mrs. Milner have planned a two-year trip around the world upon their retirement from this institution. As a result of the Friends World Conference scheduled to meet at Guilford College in 1967, they offered their services to North Carolina Friends, to the Friends World Committee, to the Five Year Meeting of Friends, and to Guilford College, to act as their emissaries to extend a personal invitation to the various groups as they make their way around the world.

"As a result of this unselfishness on the part of the Milners, the Alumni Association and its friends wanted to have a part in this trip.

"Dr. and Mrs. Milner, with all the love, affection, appreciation and gratitude that all your friends can muster, I would like to present to you your tickets for your trip around the world. We all wish you God speed on this trip, and we particularly look forward to having you back with us in 1967."

From The Piedmont University Center

From the Minutes of the Annual Meeting of the Board of Directors of the Piedmont University Center of North Carolina, Reynolda House Winston-Salem, N. C., May 11, 1965

As the directors became fully aware of the sad fact that this would be the last meeting at which their highly esteemed colleague, Dr. Clyde A. Milner, would officially represent Guilford College, many sincere and high tributes were voiced, and by unanimous action, it was voted that the following resolution be spread on the minutes of this meeting:

"Whereas, our highly esteemed personal friend and co-worker, Dr. Clyde A. Milner, has made such an admirable contribution to Christian higher education in America and particularly to the sound and expansive development of Guilford College which as its president he served so devotedly through the years; and

"Whereas, he has been one of the founders of the Piedmont University Center of North Carolina, Incorporated, and has so actively and so enthusiastically supported and helped to build this coordinating agency through his valuable time, effort and counsel which he has so generously and so consistently given; and

"Whereas, by virtue of his retirement as president of Guilford College, he will no longer be that institution's official representative on the directorate of the Piedmont University Center; and

"Whereas, Dr. Milner will be tremendously missed in all Center circles and activities;

"Be It Hereby Resolved, that this Board of Directors, in session today, express to him its abiding gratitude and a standing invitation to him to continue to share in meetings of the Center's directors and its committees to the extent of his convenience and inclinations.

"Be It Further Resolved, that this Board wish for him and for Mrs. Milner a most delightful and rewarding experience as they presently embark on their world tour, and that their interesting sojourn may soon and safely bring them back to all their many friends and homefolk who shall be following them in spirit throughout their entire journey."

Alumni Day Scenes

Dana Portrait Presentation

During the traditional Alumni Day tea in Dana Auditorium an oil painting of Charles A. Dana was placed in the foyer of the building named in his honor. Robert Frazier '19, chairman of the Board of Trustees, spoke at a brief ceremony in commemoration of the event.

The picture was presented by the trustees of the college, and was painted by famed painter Erik Haupt of New York.

Chairman Frazier's remarks follow:

"There is a face we love to see at Guilford College. It is the face of Charles A. Dana. We greatly miss it in person today. It is a handsome face, the expression on which reveals so much. To us it reveals a greatness and a generosity and the qualities of consideration and concentration. Its bearer is revered among us as one of the most substantial benefactors and loyal friends of our cherished Alma Mater. In person it cannot always be with us, but in picture we have it permanently now—a portrait painted by the celebrated artist, Erik G. Haupt. It hangs in the foyer of that magnificent building that claims the honor of the name of him whose likeness it portrays.

"We now unveil it.

"We, and Guilfordians yet to be, will look upon this face with admiration and appreciation, grateful to Charles A. Dana for his goodness and the opportunities he has made possible."

It was Clyde and Ernestine Milner Day—but it was also James Peele Parker '93 day! Daughter Elizabeth '32 reported that she granted her father's wish: to celebrate his ninetieth birthday with his Guilford Friends! James Parker won the hearts of old friends, and added a host of new ones.

From The Class of 1915 on Its Fiftieth Anniversary

The class of 1915, in the words of one of its leaders, "was not a big class, nor do we have impressive financial successes." However, the modest statement is belied by the record of service of the group. One of the most treasured letters received by retiring President Clyde A. Milner following the Alumni Day '65 celebration was a letter from class leaders. By special request, the final volume of the Book of Letters presented to the Milners by Alumni and Friends was held up to include this and other recent messages:

"Dear Dr. and Mrs. Milner:

"The Guilford College class of '15 was always a small one. There are only four of us here to celebrate our fiftieth reunion. Our love for Guilford is very real, although our financial assistance may have been insignificant. We are very happy to see you honored so impressively by the Alumni Association. We appreciate all the good things you have done for Guilford. We hope you will write your book, not only of the Month of May, but also to cover a longer span of your service to us.

"May your world tour and your years of less active duties fulfill your deepest anticipations.

"Sincerely yours,
Mabel Edgerton Barden
Maude Culler Murray
Cleta Patterson Murray
Louetta Knight Gilbert."

The program took place in Founders Hall, decorated beautifully by John Lee and his Slater Food Service staff. Mr. Lee served up elaborate menus for both the luncheon and evening buffets. He was especially recognized during the program and received sustained applause.

An enthusiastic group turned out for the annual meeting of the Guilford Quaker Club, and heard of improving Guilford athletics. George Ralls was elected new president, replacing Jack Tilley '49, who had served well for three years.

At the evening program, Byron Haworth '28 served as Master of Ceremonies. Dr. Harold Tribble and Mrs. Tribble delivered what many termed the finest Alumri Day address in the history of the event. Dr. Tribble stated, "I consider it one of the greatest honors and privileges that has come my way—my being with you on this occasion, to honor this husband-and-wife team that has done so much for education." Sara Haworth '17 presented the first volume of a bound book of letters to Clyde and Ernestine Milner, and literally had the audience in an uproar with her humorous presentation. Said Mrs. Harold Tribble, "I am delighted to get this insight into real Quaker humor."

John Googe '50, outgoing Alumni president, came forward for the day's climactic event: the presentation of the world travel tickets provided by Alumni and friends of the Milners. Mrs. Milner hesitated before standing, and John Googe said, "you, too, Ma'am—this is the time I'm telling you what to do." The crowd applauded enthusiastically.

George Ralls '50 delivered the invocation at the evening program. Harris Walker '66 provided a broad range of background music at the piano during the day.

Prior to adjournment, Byron Haworth '28 recalled that he had walked across Guilford campus "with the young president, and his dream for the college was shared with me. He would point here and there, noting that "this would be a beautiful place for a lake"—"that is the correct site for the auditorium"—King Hall could be expanded this way." He noted that the dream has come true in amazing detail and clarity, with the exception of the currently proposed Classroom-Administration Building. He called on trustees, faculty, and alumni to unify for "even greater years ahead."

The events were recorded on film by Station WFMY-TV in Greensboro, and portions were included the next day in "Wisdom and Virtue," a documentary on "the Milners and Guilford College." The show has been widely acclaimed, and was written and narrated

Milners Honored By Faculty

On Sunday, May 30, the Guilford College faculty honored Clyde A. and Ernestine C. Milner at a special social faculty dinner in Founders Hall. Dr. E. D. Kent '36, Dean of the college, presided.

Dr. Harvey Ljung, Professor of Chemistry, presented Mrs. Milner a slide projector; and David Parsons '33, Business Manager, presented Dr. Milner a tape recorder. The gifts were from the faculty and the college.

Dr. Algie I. Newlin was the main speaker for the occasion, and his speech took the form of one of his famous poems. He noted that he had known all of Guilford's presidents, and had noted that each had made a distinct contribution—that each had been eminently qualified to lead the college at his particular time.

President Milner Given Citation By National Conference of Christians and Jews

President Milner was given an unusually distinctive honor on May 18 in the form of a citation by the National Conference of Christians and Jews. The presentation was made by L. Richardson Preyer, former United States District Judge and candidate for Governor of North Carolina, and now a Senior Vice-President of North Carolina National Bank. The citation reads as follows:

(Dated) May 18, 1965

The National Conference of Christians and Jews presents this Certificate of Recognition to Dr. Clyde A. Milner, president of Guilford College, for outstanding leadership in promoting the cause of good will and understanding among all the people of our nation, thereby fostering amity, justice and cooperation among Americans of every faith, helping to eliminate inter-group prejudices which disfigure and distort religious, business, social and political relations, thereby materially aiding the work of the National Conference of Christians and Jews and bringing us nearer the goal of the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God.

College Observes Milner Week

May 2-May 8, 1965

Dr. E. Garness Purdom, Professor of Physics, paid the following tribute to President and Mrs. Milner at the student convocation on Friday, May 7, during "Milner Week" at the college:

"When there was no money, President and Mrs. Milner remained of good cheer, and their positive attitude spread to others. One of his great contributions in this difficult period was his program of finding young faculty members with promise, and encouraging them, granting leaves, and offering financial assistance for educational study, even in the face of dire financial problems.

"Dr. Milner introduced what I call the 'Madison Avenue' promotion technique to Guilford campus, and this, I claim, is one of the reasons Guilford has been able to attract wide attention as an educational institution.

"Clyde and Ernestine Milner, in the early years, spent many, many hours and days implementing and collecting materials for what we know as the 'core curriculum.'

"Often taken for granted is the famed Milner welcome at their home. They have entertained hundreds of distinguished college guests—students, alumni, and others. If you have not had the privilege, then there is no way to describe it—there is no experience like being entertained by the Milners in their lovely home.

"Some speak of Clyde and Ernestine Milner separately, noting their respective areas of responsibilities, and their distinctive separate contributions. But to me (and I have been here longer than they have) it is impossible to do this. To me they are The Milners. Their contribution is a team contribution."

Robert H. Frazier

Speaking at the student convocation at 10:30 a.m., May 7, 1965 in Dana Auditorium, Robert H. Frazier, Chairman of the Guilford College Board of Trustees, had these words to say about Clyde and Ernestine Milner as a part of the observation of "Milner Week" at the college:

"For a little more than a third of a century Clyde and Ernestine Milner have generously and wholeheartedly lived and had their being supporting Guilford College. I know there are hundreds who thank their God for having lived at a time and in an age when they could have Clyde and Ernestine Milner as their teachers and preceptors at Guilford College. They have labored so acceptably, I would that I could speak appropriately enough and highly enough of their work. Now they leave a record ever so worthy of attainment and physical development, intellectual achievement and spiritual progress beyond the dreams of those of us who were entrusted with choosing Clyde Milner as president.

"We are indebted to Clyde and Ernestine Milner for their efforts, their sacrifices, their leadership. Leaders are said to be of three types: (1) the executive; (2) the enunciatory; and (3) the exemplary. The executive leader is one who achieves through organization. The enunciatory leader is one who, by his spoken words, stirs people to action. The exemplary leader is one who, by the very way in which he lives, inspires others to follow him. In all three types, these, our friends, have excelled.

"They have exercised diplomacy and tact and made life more meaningful for many in ever-widening circles. Now they go to the corners of the earth. May they go with our thanks. May God bless them, and may they happily return to us."

Thomas W. Taylor

Thomas Wilbur Taylor, president of the Guilford College student body, praised President and Mrs. Milner with these words during the observation of "Milner Week" May 2 through May 8, 1965:

"It is indeed a difficult task to express appreciation on behalf of the student body for the years of dedicated service rendered by the two of you. The difficulty does not come about because we students do not appreciate the guidance and inspiration that you have furnished us. The difficulty lies, rather, in expressing adequately that intangible spark of intellect and good will to which the students of Guilford College have been treated for the past thirty-five years because of you.

"If, at the end of four years, one can graduate with a Guilford College degree without having had his life

Distinguished Alumnus Delivers Scholarship Day Address

DR. WILLIAM B. EDGERTON

"The true scholar possesses dual citizenship," Dr. William B. Edgerton said at the Scholarship Convocation Friday morning, April 23, in Dana Auditorium. "The scholar is a citizen of both his own nation and of the world-wide community of scholars, and the scholar is most loyal as a citizen of his national state when he is most loyal to the pursuit of truth." Dr. Edgerton, head of the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures at Indiana University, spoke on "The Adventurous Life of the Scholar" to the Guilford College student body and visitors for Guilford's twenty-ninth Annual Scholarship Day. "The scholar who flinches in his quest for truth is unworthy of his high calling and deserves the scorn he will receive in the international community of scholars."

Dr. Edgerton said that, likewise, the society that is so fearful of its future or so unsure of its principles that it tries to restrict full freedom of inquiry is as blind to its own welfare as ancient kings who used to behead messengers who brought bad news. In closing, Dr. Edgerton offered the convocation audience a proposal asking them to start a revolution against mediocrity.

Dr. Edgerton was graduated from Guilford in 1934 and was a member of the Guilford Scholarship Society. His extensive travels in Slavic countries and his great interest in Slavic literatures have led him to a position of eminence in his field.

At the Scholarship banquet Friday evening in Founders Hall, Ernestine C. Milner, head of Guilford's Department of Psychology, spoke to undergraduates and visiting graduate members of the Scholarship Society, choosing as her topic, "Scholarship—Guilford's Measure of Excellence." She pointed to the emphasis on scholarship at Guilford during its one hundred and twenty-eight-year history, and told her audience of the development of Guilford's core curriculum from the time of President Raymond Binford, who preceded Dr. Clyde A. Milner as president, through the thirty-one years of Dr. Milner's administration. Mrs. Milner said that a recent study of undergraduate origins of persons receiving doctoral degrees showed that Guilford had sixty-two graduates receiving doctoral degrees as against forty-three received by the next highest college in the Carolina Conference during the period that was studied. Mrs. Milner expressed confidence that there would be a continuation of excellence at Guilford College because of high and clearly defined goals already established. She warned, in closing, however, that words alone if repeated often enough will not bring results. "In education we run the danger of mouthing the word excellence without the realization that true excellence means high goals, rigorous and vigorous self-discipline, and the learning that exhibits accuracy, critical ability, and thoroughness—that is, scholarship."

The students inducted were: Kenneth Jerome Scott, a senior; Robert Lee Ward, a senior; William Henry Wrenn, a senior; Ellen Elizabeth Voss, a junior; Thomas Wilbur Taylor, a junior; Gloria Joyce Phillips, a junior; and Gloria Annette McElvy, a junior.

Kenneth Scott is a philosophy major, has been on the honor roll for three semesters and is a Charles A. Dana Scholar. He is married to the former Barbara Elliott of Charleston, S. C. The Scotts have three children. Kenneth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Scott of Philadelphia, Pa.

Dr. Love to Leave Guilford

Dr. Grady E. Love, executive director of the Downtown Division of Guilford College, has been appointed president of the new Davidson County Community College. He is to assume duties there July 1.

The appointment was made by the 12-member board of trustees on March 23, but announcement was withheld, pending confirmation by the State Board of Education meeting in Raleigh.

Dr. Love was the first director of the Greensboro Evening College, established in 1948 under sponsorship of the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce.

He served as head of that school until it was merged in 1953 with Guilford College, and has since continued as director, meanwhile serving as professor of education.

During his 17 years here, the college has grown from an initial enrollment of 300 students and a net worth of about $22,000 to an enrollment of over 1,600 and a worth of nearly $1½ million.

Dr. Love's new assignment actually amounts to creation of a two-year junior college as provided by the Community College Act of 1963.

To this point, the facility in Davidson County amounts to an Industrial Education Center housed in one building on Interstate 85 about halfway between Thomasville and Lexington. The IEC has been operating for about two years, and is a going concern with more than 750 students attending day and night classes..

Dr. Love will be in charge of enlarging the campus, expanding the school, construction of new buildings, determination of the college-level curriculum and the employment of staff members and faculty.

The new institution is expected to be ready for students by September 1966 and will function on four levels, Dr. Love said. It will be a comprehensive community college offering courses traditional to junior colleges, with credits transferable to four-year institutions.

In addition there will be a technical institute similar to one now in operation in Gaston County. The college also will embrace vocational and trades education offered the IEC. And finally it will provide courses in adult education.

William Sinclair, who has been serving as head of the EIC, has been appointed dean of instruction for the comprehensive school. Felix Gee is chairman of the trustee board.

Dr. Love reported that two more buildings for classrooms and library are immediately contemplated for the campus. He said his chief regret is that he and his family will be leaving Greensboro, "my favorite city."

Dr. Love was honored Monday, May 31, at a testimonial banquet in Elliott Hall on the UNC-G campus.

Highlight of the affair, made possible by associates and community leaders, was the unveiling of a portrait of the retiring educator, painted by Greensboro artist Henry Rood.

The portrait, commissioned by faculty members and friends of the college, was unveiled by his daughter, Bette Len Love. It was presented by Dr. Franklin H. McNutt, dean emeritus of graduate studies at UNC-G, and accepted by Robert H. Frazier, chairman of the college trustee board.

Dr. Clyde A. Milner joined Arnold A. Schiffman, chairman of the Greensboro Advisory Board to Guilford College, in sketching Dr. Love's many contributions to both the school and community.

Dr. Love is a native of Stanfield. He grew up in Wingate and attended the junior college there before transferring to Western Carolina where he was graduated with a B.S. degree in education. Later he earned M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from UNC, Chapel Hill.

He was a high school teacher and principal for several years before coming to Greensboro.

Guilford Receives Union Carbide Grant; Dr. Ljung To Study At Rensselaer

Guilford College has received a $5,000 Physical Science Recognition Grant, one of 10 awarded nationally by the Union Carbide Educational Fund.

In making announcement of the grant, Dr. Harvey A. Ljung, head of Guilford's chemistry department, stated that it would be used for the purchase of an infra-red spectrophotometer. The new equipment will enable the chemistry and physics departments to concentrate attention on the study of infra-red and its absorption by molecules, and on studies of energy absorption in electron spin resonance and nuclear magnetic resonance.

The new fields of study will supplement laboratory work and lectures already being conducted on the absorption of energy using the visible region of the electromagnetic spectrum.

Physical Science Recognition Grants represent one part of Union Carbide Corporation's broad program in support of higher education.

Dr. Ljung has been awarded a National Science Foundation grant for summer study at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, New York. Subject of the summer institute will be "Instrumental Methods of Analysis." Sixteen college teachers in the physical sciences have been selected for study at the Institute for a period of eight weeks, beginning June 21 and ending August 13. There will be two weeks of lectures and laboratory work with instruments and six weeks of research in infra-red spectra as applied to molecular structure and chemical analysis. The purpose of the institute will be to prepare teachers for the use of infra-red spectrophotometer and other equipment in physical and organic chemistry and optical physics. Dr. Ljung expects to develop special techniques for the use of new infra-red study equipment at Guilford College made possible by the Physical Science Recognition Grant made to the college by the Union Carbide Educational Fund.

Stewart Returns From Africa

Head Football Coach John Stewart has just returned from an extended tour through Morocco, Algeria, Egypt, Kenya, Madagascar, and Tunisia, co-sponsored by the American Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) and the United States State Department. Coach Stewart accompanied a group of field and track athletes through these countries, participating in competition and demonstrating techniques of field and track events. W. L. Beamon Elected Mayor of Burlington

W. L. Beamon '32 has been elected mayor of Burlington. An outstanding president of the Guilford College Alumni Association in 1962-63, he also served on the Alumni Executive Committee for a three-year term.

Mr. Beamon was co-chairman of the Dana Challenge, Alumni division, that resulted in the successful completion of the largest development project in the college's history.

He attained the rank of Commander in the U. S. Navy during his service from 1942-45. He became a partner in Biggerstaff-Beamon Realty in 1947, and is still active in this position. He is past president of the Burlington Board of Realtors, and served as a director of the state board.

A member of Front Street Methodist Church, Mr. Beamon is a member of the Board of Stewards and chairman of the Finance Committee.

He was elected to the Alamance County Board of Commissioners in 1956, and served as chairman for two years. He also served as president of the Burlington-Alamance Chamber of Commerce in 1963.

He is married to the former Grace Hassel '32. Their son, Mike, will enter Guilford in September.

W. B. Wine, representing the Carolina Yarn Association, is shown above presenting a check in the amount of $500.00 to President Milner. This check will cover a scholarship to be known as the Carolina Yarn Association Scholarship to a worthy student at Guilford College.

According to Eddie E. Jones, president of the Carolina Yarn Association, the Association hopes to make this an annual scholarship.

Mr. Wine is a former president of the Carolina Yarn Association and now serves on its Executive Committee. He is Southern Sales Manager of the Specialty Converting Division, Riegel Paper Corporation.

J. E. Kittrell representing Gulf Oil Corporation Foundation is shown above presenting a check for $1,000 to President Milner. This gift to Guilford is unrestricted. It is one of 584 awards totaling $595,500 that Gulf will distribute this year as direct grants to as many universities and colleges under its Aid-To-Education Program.

In addition to direct grants, the other phases of Gulf's comprehensive Educational Assistance program include capital grants, Gulf merit scholarships to children of employees and annuitants, employee gift-matching to colleges, departmental assistance grants, graduate fellowships, and faculty supplementation grants.

Institutions eligible for direct grants are those which are privately operated and controlled, and which obtain a major portion of their financial support from non-tax sources.

Mr. Kittrell is the Area Senior Sales Representative of Gulf Oil Corporation.

The Guilford College A Cappella Choir recently performed at the New York World's Fair, where they gave four concerts. They used selections from their regular concert collection. They performed on April 30 and May 1 in the Tiparillo Band Pavilion.

Feagins Begin Two-Year Leave

Carroll S. and Mary B. Feagins of the Guilford College faculty have been granted a two-year leave of absence to work with the American Friends Service Committee in its program in South and Southeast Asia. They will live in New Delhi, India, and from there will assist in directing international conferences and seminars for political leaders and statesmen in that area.

The Feagins will leave Guilford June 21 for a period of orientation at the A.F.S.C. office in Philadelphia. From there they will begin their longer journey on July 10, flying to India by way of Hawaii and Japan. They will be accompanied by their son, David, a graduate this June of Grimsley High School in Greensboro. He expects to enroll at St. Stephens College in Delhi.

Carroll Feagins is Associate Professor of Philosophy at Guilford College and his wife, Mary, is Assistant Professor of German. They have been Danforth Associates on the campus, and both are very active and popular members of the Guilford fellowship. He has served as chairman of the Convocations Committee for several years and the college annual was recently dedicated to him. She has been actively interested in foreign students and has been chairman of the African Student Committee.

The Feagins plan to return to Guilford in 1967.

GUILFORD SCHOLARS HAVE IMPRESSIVE RECORD

Guilford College this spring published a history and directory of the Guilford Scholarship Society. This publication is based on two studies of the activities of Scholarship Society members after graduation. The first study was made in 1952 by Mrs. Alan Connor who was then Polly Lynette Edgerton. The second study was completed in 1964 by Mrs. W. Carey Reece, Jr. Both asked for information concerning occupations, graduate study and publications by members of the Society.

At the time of the 1964 survey there were 169 living graduate members of the Guilford Scholarship Society. Eighty of the members have earned a total of 98 advanced degrees and 23 are now candidates for advanced degrees—eight for the doctorate, 13 for the masters and two for the bachelor. Scholarship Society members have had a total of 134 scholarly works published covering varied fields of interest and activity.

The Guilford Scholarship Society was founded in 1937 with the requirement of a grade average of 2.5 or 90% through a minimum of five semesters. Faculty members are inducted into the Society if they have been members of either Phi Beta Kappa or Sigma Xi and after they have been at Guilford for a period of two years. Honorary members may be elected on the basis of exceptionally scholarly publications, research or outstanding academic achievement.

A total of 189 individuals have been inducted into the Guilford Scholarship Society, including present student members and those graduated since the 1964 survey was made.

student legislature and has been elected president of the student legislature for next year. Taylor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur O. Taylor of Pilot Mountain.

Gloria Phillips is a history major. She is a Dana Scholar and is secretary of the junior class and secretary of the student Christian association. She has been a member of the athletic council, the choir, Revelers Club, social committee, Young Friends and foreign language club. She is the daughter of Mrs. Edna K. Phillips, 310 O'Ferrell Street, Greensboro.

Gloria McElvy is an English major. She has been a member of the day student council, student council, Literary Society and has been on the Guilfordian staff. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. McElvy of Route 3, Guilford College.

Special features of the 29th Annual Scholarship Day at Guilford College, Friday, April 23, were four seminars to which interested students and visitors to the college were invited. All seminars began at 2:30 p.m.

W. Howard Holderness, president of Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co., moderated a panel which discussed "Liberal Education—a Basis for Business Leadership." Mr. Holderness received the B.S. from the University of North Carolina and the M.B.S. from Harvard University. The panel members were Samuel G. Wilson, a Guilford graduate in the class of 1948, who is assistant treasurer of Burlington Industries; William O. Leonard, a Guilford graduate in the class of 1956, who is assistant director of Industrial Relations, Cone Mills Corporation; and Jack E. Tilley, Guilford graduate in the class of 1949, who is vice-president of Burlington International. David H. Parsons, Jr., Guilford graduate in the class of 1933 and business manager of Guilford College, presided at this seminar.

"Scholarly Research and Teaching" was the subject for discussion led by Dr. William Benbow Edgerton, class of 1934, who is head of the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures, Indiana University. Hiram H. Hiltz, Professor of Spanish at Guilford, presided.

Ernestine C. Milner presided over a discussion of "Literary Interests of Children." Leading the discussion was Isabella Jinnette who was graduated from Guilford in 1931. Isabella Jinnette is a librarian who has specialized in children's work. Several years ago she was sent to Tasmania by the State Department to set up a system of children's libraries. Presently she is with the Enos Pratt Library in Baltimore, Maryland.

Dr. E. Harness Purdom, head of the Department of Physics at Guilford College, was the discussion leader of a seminar on "The Challenge of Modern Science to Higher Education."

John Googe Reports

My brief report for the year just past will perhaps sketch for you the climate of alumni affairs. We have been paying our pledges to the Dana Challenge, and we saw the wonderful library addition become a reality as the last challenge project.

We have seen drawings of a beautiful new Administration Building containing the proposed World Culture Center. We have seen a concentrated effort (and results) to improve Guilford athletics. We have seen an outstanding young Guilfordian selected as our new president.

But, in the main, this must go down as that year—the year that Clyde and Ernestine Milner leave us. You have seen in this issue of the Journal just how we regard them. We wish them God speed.

I also congratulate my successor, John Haworth '47, who is, coincidentally, a classmate of our new president. They have my pledge of support as we establish a new administration. Will you give them yours?

It has been a great privilege to serve you.

Sincerely,

JOHN GOOGE '50

Immediate Past President

influenced and enriched by you in some way, then the chances are excellent that such an unfortunate graduate has missed the essence of college life at Guilford.

"Dr. and Mrs. Milner, we students—past, present and future—will always carry with us memories of you and of what you have contributed to Guilford College. You have always insisted that scholarship is the measure of Guilford's excellence and that we as students owe it to ourselves not only to learn how to make a living but also (and more important) to learn how to live. You have guided us and taught us. You have been patient in your service—for the only reason that Guilford College claims to exist—that is, the good of the students.

"As a small token of our appreciation to both of you, the student body is presenting to our library a most appropriate gift in your honor—a 54-volume set of the Great Books of the Western World, published by the Encyclopedia Britannica. To you will go a plaque in recognition of this, along with the sincere thanks of your students.

"Dr. and Mrs. Milner, the students of Guilford College will forever be indebted to you. On behalf of all of us, allow me to say, 'Thank you.' On behalf of all of us, allow me to say, 'Thank you, for dedicating your lives to the future of our society.' "

Sara Haworth Is Mother Of The Year

Sara Richardson Haworth '17 achieved national recognition recently by representing her state as "North Carolina Mother of the Year." Sara was one of four who received special citations in the national competition.

Sara and Chester Haworth are parents of five children and two foster children. All of these except one, Mrs. J. W. Fowler of Junaluska, graduated from Guilford. Byron '28 is a municipal court judge in High Point. Dr. Eldora '49 (Mrs. Eugene Terrell) is the distaff side of a medical team. John '47 and William '57 are partners in a law firm. Chester '59 is resident physician at John Umstead Hospital at Butner; and Margaret '61 (Mrs. Rawley Young) is a housewife in Huntsville, Ala.

Sara Haworth is an active Quaker and Guilfordian, now serving her second three-year term on the Guilford College Alumni Executive Committee. Byron is a college trustee; and John has just been installed as president of the Guilford College Alumni Association.

James Rawlins Moves Upward With Grolier

The appointment of James "Jim" Rawlins '50 as National Sales Manager, School and Library Division of the Grolier Society Inc., has been announced by Theodore Waller, vice-president of Grolier, Incorporated.

The appointment is part of a realignment of assignments within the Grolier Incorporated educational divisions, Waller said. Jim's responsibilities will include over-all marketing of all reference works distributed by the division, including Encyclopedia International.

He joined Grolier in the spring of 1964 as an educational representative in North Carolina. Prior to that time he was associated with the United Funds and the Shell Oil Company, and had also taught history at the Greensboro, N. C. High School.

Fred Homer Takes Up Painting As A Hobby

Above is a sample of the work of budding artist Fred Homer '61, who became interested in painting after graduating from Guilford (he gives Mrs. Milner and philosophy '24 due credit!). This painting was among those shown and sold at a special show recently in a South New Jersey Shopping Center. The show received much publicity.

Fred is a teacher, and loves his work, but "painting is relaxing. The pictures we sold helped with family expenses and, anyway, I enjoy it!" Wife Vanda "Van" Warner '62 works in the bridal salon in a famous store, and some of Fred's work is accomplished while he is baby-sitting with Tacy, 4, and Dana, 3.

The Carsons Relax At Home

The new superintendent of Rowan County schools is Jesse Carson '32. He was recently the subject of a feature article in the Salisbury Post, giving some of his philosophy of school success: "When Jesse Carson was principal of China Grove High School, he made it a point to know every student 'so I could call them by name. With 430 boys and girls, that wasn't hard.'"

"He's under no delusions that, as superintendent of Rowan County's schools and their 1300-plus children, he'll get to know each of them.

"But the attitude that each boy and girl should be known, and known well, by someone in the school system is basic to his personal philosophy of education. Each pupil is an individual, not to be lumped with a group or a class, and that, he believes, is the way boys and girls should be taught."

A pleasant surprise for all in attendance at the Winston-Salem Alumni meeting recently was the arrival of B. Clyde Shore '25. He was accompanied by Mrs. Shore and his granddaughter (above). Clyde Shore has been recuperating since last summer from a serious illness, and his many Guilfordian friends will be delighted to see from the above picture that he is again looking well. He is a past president of the Alumni Association, a college trustee, was chairman of the program to raise funds for Dana Auditorium, and is an outstanding leader in the North Carolina Yearly Meeting of Friends. Kathrine Hine Shore Dormitory is named for Mrs. Shore.

Executive Committee Meets

The Executive Committee of the American Section, Friends World Committee, held a two-day meeting on Guilford College campus Friday and Saturday, May 14-15. Announcement of the session, to cover discussion of the 1967 Conference of the Friends World Committee to be held on the campus, was made by Mrs. Eva Newlin of Guilford College, vice-president of the American Section.

Among dignitaries on hand for the discussions were Douglas Steere of Philadelphia, chairman of the '67 Conference; Herbert Hadley, Philadelphia, associate secretary; and Laurence Naish of London, recently returned from ten years' work with Quakers in Madagascar.

The May 14 session featured an illustrated lecture by Naish, "Friends in Madagascar," at 8:00 p.m. in New Garden Friends Meetinghouse. Friday's session included committee reports from committees on Finance, Interpretation, and Intervisitation, along with worship periods. The meeting closed with Steere's address, "What is Ahead for Friends World's Committee on Consultation?" The public was invited to the evening programs.

Some 1,000 Friends from throughout the world are expected to attend the conference to be held here in August, 1967.

At the special Winston-Salem meeting of Forsyth area Alumni Association, at which Dr. and Mrs. Clyde A. Milner were special guests, were William "Bill" Bright '51, Mrs. Gene Key, Ernestine Milner, Louise Richardson Hartley '47, and John Hartley '47. John R. Craven '51, was chairman for the event. James Earl Thompson '57 was selected new chairman.

At New York: Dale Embich '58, Susan Walter '58 Embich and David Griffin, Jr. '59 enjoy New York meeting. Lee Jacobson '58 is chairman of the group.

At South Jersey Meeting: Jim Dantonio '52, Janis Davis Mudera '54, Connie Eavaul, and Dr. Thomas Ernak '53 were among forty-one in attendance. Herb and Deany Belton Schoekopf '48 and '49 are co-chairmen of the lively group.

Clyde and Ernestine C. Milner were special guests at a meeting of the Guilford College Alumni chapter in Winston-Salem in mid-April. Shown above are Mrs. Milner, Mrs. R. G. Thomas, Raymond Thomas '27, and Dr. Milner.

In Memoriam

Philip W. Furnas

His legion of admirers, loved ones and friends were grieved upon learning of the death of Dr. Philip Furnas on May 16. Dr. Furnas was doing what he loved—teaching—up until close to the time of his death. He was teaching a limited schedule at High Point College, after having become Professor Emeritus of English at Guilford in 1961.

The Greensboro Daily News, in a story referring to Dr. Furnas, said, "His life was the story of the love of learning and teaching as exemplified by his academic year."

He is survived by his wife and two children, Robert '50, of Guilford College and Mrs. I. W. King of Louisville, Kentucky; and seven grandchildren.

Dr. Furnas was a graduate of Westtown Friends School, Earlham College (A.B. 1913), and Harvard University (M.A. 1916, Ph.D., 1938.)

At a memorial service to Dr. Furnas, Dr. Clyde A. Milner said of his friend of 42 years, and of his colleague who shared his dreams of Guilford College for some thirty years:

"We are here to honor the memory and to pay high tribute to an unusually gifted, talented, and successful man."

"Philip W. Furnas was a quiet, faithful, wise, and

Nellie Moon Taylor

A fine lady often referred to as "The First Lady of Stokes County" and "The First Lady of Guilford College Alumni Association," died Tuesday, May 11, at her home in Danbury. Nellie Moon Taylor '82 would have been 99 her next birthday, September 13.

She will be remembered for the twinkle in her eyes, her unflagging spirit, and a deep love for her college. The Mary Pemberton Moon Meeting Room in Dana Auditorium (1961) is a result of her generosity. She received the Distinguished Alumni Award in 1958.

She will also be remembered for the entertainment of Guilfordians and college guests in her home with her special kind of hospitality; and she will be remembered as the elegant lady who never missed Alumni Day until recent years when she was confined to her home.

She is survived by six children: Paul '14, Dr. J. Spotswood '23, Mrs. Luna Bradshaw '24, Miss Mary Taylor '11, and Mrs. Grace Rodenbough '17.

At a memorial service in her honor, Dr. Clyde A. Milner, college president, said:

"We are all here to honor the memory and to pay loving tribute to Nellie Moon Taylor, who during an unusually long—almost a century—and a highly exemplary and useful life established herself as not only loyal friend and neighbor. He will long be remembered by countless numbers, and especially by all of you who are here expressing your respect and appreciation by your presence. Every community in which he has ever lived is a better place today because of his many skilled contributions and his inspiring example of life.

"We pay tribute to a man who had an amazing range of interests, information, and disciplined skills. He loved and was always growing in his understanding of the world about him. He was an ornithologist and delighted all who were privileged to share his knowledge and interpretation of birds. Flora and fauna and the rapid advancement of science were included in his avid reading and enriched his always interesting conversation. He enjoyed athletic contests, and for decades played a good game of tennis, finding as much pleasure in the companionship it afforded as in the exercise it gave.

"Philip Furnas loved study and learning, and his wisdom was sound and informed and kindly shared with all who were easily enticed to listen.

"His foreign service in Friends relief work in Serbia and his travels in Europe—especially in Ireland—increased his interests in and his skillful use of languages.

"His religious faith was true, deep, and sincere. His spiritual gifts were recognized by the members of his meeting and many years ago he was recorded a minister in the Society of Friends.

"The distinguished quality and primary contribution of his life was made through his ministry of teaching. For Friends, each person's developed and disciplined God-given talents, used in the service of all mankind, is indeed 'ministry.'

"In the belief that all of life is spiritually created and formed, all teaching can be religious, and a teacher's ministry is active at all times—through quiet influence, the right word, the true emphasis on any subject at any time. The great test of the ministry of teaching is in terms of the teacher's having within himself that which he would create—no perfection of textbook, laboratory equipment, or other teaching aid can be an adequate substitute. The teacher's own attitude towards truth and towards the student is most important, and his recognition of the fact that the quest for truth is mutual and endless.

"The genius of Philip Furnas as a teacher was in this religious dimension. His thousands of students will long remember and be influenced by his genuine interest in and concern for them, for he gave them renewed hope and strengthened their courage in times of need. During the periods of joy and great happiness

Nellie M. Taylor—In Memoriam

The First Lady of Stokes County' but also a first lady in the hearts and lives of all of us who came under her courageous and inspiring influence.

"Nellie Moon Taylor was a creative homemaker, a dynamic religious leader, a community builder, and especially a good neighbor. Indeed, she was truly a great person, and the seeds of righteousness which she has sown will continue to bear fruit for generations.

"During her travels with her mother, who was an eloquent Quaker minister, she met J. Spottiswood Taylor here in Danbury, whom she later married. As a creative homemaker, Nellie Moon Taylor planned and provided well for her husband and their nine children—five boys and four girls—six of them continuing their academic training at Guilford College. Her wise counsel, unselfish and sacrificial devotion was a constant inspiration and a moulding influence in each of their lives.

"Being greatly influenced by her mother's religious fervor, Nellie Taylor was always a dynamic religious leader. She was an ardent and concerned member of the Society of Friends and seldom missed a session of North Carolina Yearly Meeting. She represented the Society of Friends on many important committees and occasions. She was a representative at the World Conference of Friends in England in 1952. A friend, looking at this frail little woman, asked her if she did not consider the trip precarious. With a humorous twinkle in her eye, she replied, 'No. If anything happens to me I shall be among Friends.' Her religious activities, however, were never limited to the Society of Friends. She both sponsored and encouraged all worthy religious undertakings and programs in her wide areas of contact.

"Along with the members of her family, she has been recognized for many decades as a community builder. She helped promote and contributed to many worthy projects. Especially noteworthy was the great interest she took in the building of the Stokes-Reynolds Memorial Hospital and the beautiful Quaker Meeting Room at Guilford College, which she gave in memory of her mother, Mary Pemberton Moon.

"Many people—known and unknown—counted her as a personal friend and a good neighbor. Her genuine interest in and concern for others gave them renewed hope and strengthened their courage in times of need. During the periods of joy and great happiness she added to the meaningfulness of these shared experiences because of her radiance and humor."

Joseph D. Welborn

Before and after graduating at Guilford she taught in North Carolina schools. Then, because of her health, she went to Florida, where she did high school work until her marriage in 1930 to the late R. C. Welborn, of Lawrence, Kansas. Later, still seeking a better climate for an emphysemic condition, she went to the high Rockies in Colorado, where she also taught for several years. After retiring, she lived for some time in Gunnison, Colorado, and later, moved to Trinidad.

A local newspaper carried this tribute at the time of her death:

"Jennie Bulla Welborn was a person easily adaptable to people in all walks of life, and she was at ease and comfortable in any surroundings. She had a forceful personality and was a brilliant conversationalist."

She was born in the vicinity of Center Friends Meeting, in the southern part of Guilford County. Her ancestry, running deeply and prominently into the history of the Society of Friends in North Carolina, tied her to several illustrious Quaker families, among them, the Beal, Cox, Hockett, Pearson, Reynolds, and Woodward families. Her mother, Sarah Jane (Perkins) Hockett, and her grandparents, Needham and Sallie (Cox) Perkins, were students at New Garden Boarding School. Needham Perkins later taught there.

Her daughter, Dorothy (Teague) Pollet, graduated at Guilford in 1942, and her son, Philip Pollet, has just completed his first year at Guilford. Shortly after her mother's death, Mrs. Pollet wrote: "So many of mother's uncles, aunts, and cousins attended (New Garden and) Guilford that I am always anxious to visit the campus and always feel so much a part of it." In addition, five of Mrs. Pollet's half-sisters and one half-brother studied at Guilford.

He never faltered, never misunderstood. In the pilgrimage and the adventure, he was 'Mr. Greatheart,' with the impenetrable shield and the unbreakable sword. Nothing I could say would ever half capture his radiant integrity, his wholeness and wealth of being. His lovely humor, his gentleness toward all sensitive and beautiful things, yet his strength and courage to face every falsity and injustice and evil; his grace of life that made his living a poem . . . his yes to life always . . . these are rare today, and in no way did anyone ever surpass him in all these."

A Message from President Hobbs

I want to express to the entire Guilford community Lois Ann's and my great happiness at returning to Guilford College. Though we have been out of the State for the past fourteen years, we have continued to feel very much as Guilfordians, and have kept up many contacts with faculty and alumni. We look forward with great satisfaction to the opportunity of now being more intimately involved with the development and growth of Guilford in the years ahead.

It is important for a college periodically to take a careful look at what it has stood for in the past, and to make definite plans for what it is to become in the future. This is especially needed when a college changes administrations. In many cases the recognition of the fundamental values for which an institution has stood will give us a fairly clear indication of the general course which is appropriate to it in the future. This is so, I think, at the present time at Guilford College.

Guilford has traditionally stressed two major areas of life. As a liberal arts college it has placed a strong emphasis upon a sound and demanding program. As a Quaker college it has also been concerned deeply with the areas of human and religious values, and has tried to communicate to students a sense of what is important in life. Guilford will continue to place great emphasis in both these areas, though not from any narrowly sectarian point of view. Many of our alumni who are in the truest sense "Guilfordians" are leaders in many other denominations, and we are justifiably very proud of them.

As we think of the Guilford of the future, we are also aware of a vital continuity in the ways in which the academic program of the College has been conceived by previous administrations. The "core curriculum" idea of the Binford and Milner administrations is a case in point. It recognizes the need of a required group of courses which give the student a broad understanding, and thus help him to gain the integrated experience which is needed in college work. This is one of the things which is best in our past, and we plan to build on it as we face the Homecoming '65, to be held Saturday, October 30, promises to be an exciting event. Student co-chairmen David Stanfield, Jr. '67 and June Tuttle '67, faculty chairman Dr. Henry Hood and their committees are enthusiastic about the prospects.

Homecoming Plans, 1965

Featured, of course, will be the football game between Guilford and Newberry. The Quakers will be looking for revenge after losing to the Indians last year.

Judy Connor '65, in charge of the traditional half-time show, announces that the famed Dudley High School band of Greensboro has accepted an invitation to perform. In addition to the halftime show, the band will lead a parade including beauties vying for the Homecoming Queen crown, cheerleaders, dignitaries, and floats through the Guilford business district and the campus at 1:00 p.m.

Also, during the halftime ceremony, Dr. Henry Hood's growing group of bagpipers will perform, and Dr. Grimsley T. Hobbs, Guilford's new president, will welcome visitors. John Haworth '47 will respond. But the highlight of Homecoming is the naming of the Queen and the presentation of her court. President Hobbs will crown the Queen.

From 10:00 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. the Guilford College faculty will receive parents, guests, and alumni for coffee in Dana Auditorium. An Alumni Family Buffet Luncheon will be held on the baseball field from 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Campus decorations will be on display from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon, and prizes for best decorations will be awarded during the halftime show.

An informal Homecoming dinner at 6:30 p.m. in Founders Hall, at which President Hobbs and Alumni President Haworth will speak, and the traditional Women's Athletic Association Homecoming Dance in Founders Hall will close the day's activities.

An enthusiastic joint announcement by Alumni President John Haworth '47 and Vice-President Elizabeth Gilliam Parker '37 began a campaign by the Guilford College Alumni Association to strengthen the Guilford College Library.

The announcement stated that "It was the desire of the alumni to attempt to catch onto and help with some emphasis of the new administration. After discussing this with the new president, and later with others, it became apparent that books for our newly-completed library addition was a major concern of the new administration. We have drawn Mrs. Treva Mathis, acting librarian, and our executive committee into our deliberations, and we are enthusiastic about our program."

The Alumni Annual Giving program becomes the "Guilford College Loyalty Fund." Gifts will be accepted from alumni, parents of students, and friends in units of $6.50, the average price of books currently being added to the library shelves. The library will, upon request, appraise books offered to the library, and will inform donors of their value for gift deduction purposes.

The program will be presented at various alumni functions and through several mailing pieces. The goal of the committee is $25,000.00, which will approximately double the acquisitions currently planned for the year.

"Better Books for Better Scholars" is the theme of the program. "As our program unfolds, we feel that Guilfordians everywhere will join us in our initial effort as alumni under an exciting new administration."

Thomas S. Brown To Deliver Ward Lecture

The Sixteenth Annual Ward Lecture will be delivered at Guilford College on November 5 by Thomas S. Brown, principal of Friends Boarding School at Barnesville, Ohio. His masters degree in English was earned at Harvard University. In 1936, Thomas Brown returned to Westtown as a teacher of Latin and English in the Department of Philosophy and Religion where he remained until 1948. After a year's leave of absence to study at Union Theological Seminary in New York, he became head of the English Department at Earlham College, a position he held until 1953 when he again returned to Westtown.

Thomas Brown and his wife, the former Anna Bennett, have five children—four girls and a boy. Anna Brown is librarian at Friends Boarding School.

The Ward Lecture was established at Guilford College to honor Eudema Bales Ward and her husband, the late Jeremiah Montgomery Ward, of Tennessee, and to implement in a constructive and creative way their concern for education and leadership within the Society of Friends.

Messages From The Milners

September 1, 1965

Dear Friends:

One day in my gratitude to all of you for your kindness in purchasing our tickets for this trip, I suggested to Gene Key and Clyde Milner that I'd write a letter to each of you. They laughingly told me that instead of seeing the world, I'd be writing letters every day and persuaded me to communicate with you through the Alumni Journal.

Let's go back to May 29th; because of the portrait presented by my majors, the Alumni Award, the Books of Letters (all of which I've read, incidentally, and all of which I'd like to answer personally) and, of course, the gift of the trip, it will always be a golden day in my memory, one about which to reminisce in the future.

Presently we're still on the first lap of the journey, having attended the Wakefield-Milner wedding in Evanston and presently looking at the Rockies in Denver. Friday we go to Los Angeles and then on September 8th into new adventures, new contacts and new knowledge in Hawaii.

I hope my pen will remain facile so that I can share with you the wonders I see, hear, taste and smell in the fairyland experience you have given us.

With my deepest appreciation, I am

Sincerely yours,
ERNESTINE C. MILNER

September 1, 1965

Dear Guilfordians:

The carefully planned programs on Alumni Day, May 29, were indeed an inspiring climax to the Milners' thirty-five years at Guilford College. Your many and most generous expressions of good will and affection will always be deeply cherished. During three decades it has been my responsibility to write an ever-increasing number of letters of acknowledgement and thanks for gifts and services to the college. This communication to all of you, which I hope each of you will accept personally, is truly the most meaningful one to me. It is to tell you as profoundly as I possibly can my appreciation for your loyalty and friendship. Although we have shared many happy occasions together during the years, you made Alumni Day unique.

As we travel around the world during the next twenty months, we shall be reminded daily of you and your kindnesses. Your gifts will make the trip more extensive and pleasant.

I join Ernestine Milner in sending each of you our affectionate greetings and good wishes.

Sincerely yours,
CLYDE A. MILNER

Clyde and Ernestine Milner, minutes before their departure on their world tour, visit with a large group of well-wishers who surprised them with their attendance at the Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem Airport. The Milners will return to Guilford in twenty months, prior to the fourth World Conference of Friends.

On the Quaker Sports Front

Defensive play has thrilled Quaker football supporters this year. Above, Quaker tacklers converge on a Hampden-Sydney runner. They are: No. 65, sophomore Dean Johnson; No. 18, junior Danny McQueen; No. 14, freshman Buddy Smith; and No. 15, junior Danny Surface.

Sportswriters are often noted for using unusual phrases, slang, and flamboyant adjectives. "Guarded optimism," "cautious hopefulness" and "championship illusions" are some phrases that have been used to describe the progress in Guilford College athletics during the past twelve months.

Carolinas' Conference Football Coach of the Year in 1964, John Stewart, is now being pressed for new phrases to describe his Quakers. John, at press time, was in a rare position. Despite so-called expert opinions that "it would take four years" or "it can't be done," his young football team had upset tough Hampden-Sydney in the 1965 season opener at Armfield Stadium 28-3, even after the loss of star junior fullback Ronnie Wallace on the first offensive play from scrimmage. And, earlier, Stewart had heard Dr. Norman Fox '51 report that all-conference senior quarterback, Jimmy Williams, was out for the season with an injured knee.

After the Hampden-Sydney game, the experts still shook their heads. They did concede that Henry McKay, a 205-pound halfback and expert pass-receiver, deserved the honor given him as Greensboro Daily News' Athlete of the Week on the strength of his performance. But, there was Elon to be faced on the following Saturday.

The Christians, 1964 Carolinas' Conference champions, were short only two starters from the 1964 team, the game was to be played away from the Guilford campus, and Wallace, who had been counted upon to crack the famed Elon line, would miss the game.

What happened is history: Guilford 7, Elon 0. A record crowd of Quaker supporters filled the stands to watch the game. Guilford's offensive line consisted of two seniors (Tim Ray, 225-pound tackle, and David Rankin, 195-pound tackle); three juniors (Bob Lovell, 190-pound guard; Bill Hollifield, 185-pound guard; and Ronnie Winslow, 225-pound center); and an assortment of sophomores and freshmen. Coach Stewart believed that sophomore Bill Burchette could fill the quarterback job capably, with supporting backs McKay, called by many a professional prospect; Danny Surface, junior fullback; and Tommy Grayson, a strong, fast fullback.

The "Young Friends" held the powerful Christians to one yard net gain in rushing, and the secondary of Smith, McQueen, and Surface (freshman, junior, and sophomore) held the air attack to 14 yards gain, until a "prevent" defense was employed in the game's final moments. The crowd wildly applauded the "Young Friends," and cheered as the offensive line opened up needed room for the Burchette-directed offense to get the lone score.

"Heroes were plentiful," Coach Stewart said. "McQueen had three timely interceptions; Smith had a fantastic 57 defensive points (25 is excellent under the system used); Winslow had 37 points and called the defense. Burchette analyzed Elon's weaknesses, and exploited them for the score; Martin and Twiford didn't act like freshmen! Grayson took up the slack for McKay who was double-teamed; Allen Brown and Dean Johnson were supers . . ."

What about the rest of the season? Coach Stewart wasn't asked for a prediction. The Quakers are a young team which makes mistakes, but prospects are good for the first winning season in many years. Busy Coach Stewart steals an occasional moment for day-dreaming,

Bruce Stewart Appointed Dean

Bruce B. Stewart '61 was recently appointed dean of students at the new North Carolina School of the Arts, Winston-Salem, N. C. The appointment was made by Dr. Vittorio Giannini, president of the school which will open in the fall. After Bruce graduated from Guilford, he attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where he received his Masters of Education in Guidance. He then served six months in the U. S. Army. Upon his discharge, he took the position of Guidance Counselor at Walter Hines Page High School, Greensboro, N. C., and has worked in that position until his recent appointment. At Page High School, he introduced the School-for-a-School program in which a school raises $1,000 and in conjunction with the Peace Corps builds a school in a deprived area of a foreign country. Page High School was the first North Carolina school to support this program. Mr. Stewart has done post graduate work at Boston University and the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. This summer he taught a course in Economic Geography at Greensboro College.

O. F. Stafford Is Featured

The Guilfordian president of one of the country's leading Life Insurance Companies was featured in a recent article in the Greensboro Daily News. The president of Pilot Life Insurance Company of Greensboro, O. F. Stafford '22, was described as "a man whose success lies in his being able to persuade people to do what he wants them to," and the fact that, as he puts it, "I feel the people here work with me, not for me."

O. F. Stafford was described as an executive who, although his employees number over 600, "always maintained an open door to his office." He was quoted in the article as stating that the modest staff was "like a family" in the early years when he came to the company, and that "I've tried to keep it that way."

He recently celebrated his 45th anniversary with the company, a record unmatched by any other employee.

VIRGINIA BRIZENDINE PROMOTED

Virginia Gamble Brizendine '31 has been appointed to the position of Director of the Division of Philately, United States Post Office.

Mrs. Brizendine has been in federal service 31 years, including more than 29 years with the Post Office Department—all in philatelic work. MILNERS MAKE "SPECIAL" STOP

Clyde and Ernestine Milner's plans for departure on a 20-month world tour were altered to add an important event to their itinerary — the wedding of Charles Fremont "Montie" Milner '63 to Miss Molly Franc Wakefield of Evanston, Illinois. The wedding took place on August 28.

Montie, who recently completed work for the masters degree in Business Administration at Harvard, will work this year in the office of the comptroller, Harvard University. Molly will complete work for her degree at Wellesley College.

Montie, son of Charles '33 and the late Eloyse Sargent Milner, made his home with Dr. and Mrs. Milner while attending Guilford. He was a Dana scholar, played basketball, and was president of the senior class.

Ned Huffman Is Official Of Research Triangle

Guilfordians are used to reading about Ned Huffman '38, successful business executive recently appointed vice-president of Research Triangle Foundation, and executive vice-president of Research Triangle Service Center near Raleigh, Durham, and Chapel Hill, N. C.

Research Triangle was formed as a government-sponsored area for research, and has received worldwide publicity. In an interview circulated widely in North Carolina recently, Ned called attention to some current exciting happenings at Research Triangle, including an IBM Research facility covering 580,000 square feet; a research facility of the North Carolina Center of Science and Technology; a research project by Technifroe, Inc., and the Chemstrand Research Center, Inc., Forestry Science Laboratory.

MARION HUFF STARTS NEW BUSINESS

"Marion Huff '41, four years ago bought some plastics engraving equipment from a fellow civic club member moving out of town . . . He set up the gadgets in the basement of his home."

Thus began a feature in a recent issue of a Winston-Salem, N. C. newspaper. Marion, the story reported, continued in his position as a loan executive with a local Building and Loan firm, using the equipment to make signs for doors, entrances, etc. in his spare time as a hobby.

Marion, a loyal Guilfordian who can always be seen at college functions and alumni gatherings, recently decided that his hobby had gotten out of hand. He resigned his position and is now owner and operator of Huff Engraving Company. Expansion has forced him from his home into another building.

His wife and 13-year-old son are often called into service, as business increases. He has been praised for the quality signs produced for industry, institutions, and organizations. "I am very busy," says Marion, "but not too busy to see and hear from Guilfordian friends!"

The Huffs live at 4550 Old Town Drive, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Algie Newlin "Discovers" Old Opponent

During a recent visit with his sister, Mrs. Gaye Spivey, retired Guilford assistant librarian, Edwin Holman, a Wake Forest graduate of the early twenties, made a discovery: Algie Newlin '21, Guilford Professor of History, was the young Quaker quarterback who passed to his brother (Curtis Newlin '22) for a touchdown in a memorable 1920 contest between the Deacons and the Quakers. The Demon Deacons won the game, but the Guilford score, in the first two minutes, surprised them. Holman played left guard for Wake Forest.

BOB POOLE IS FEATURED

J. Robert "Bob" Poole '37, outstanding radio announcer and disc jockey, was featured in a Greensboro Daily News article recently. Bob, well known to Guilford students and alumni for many years as the voice of "Poole's Paradise," a popular early morning radio show, was recently injured in an auto accident.

Bob found success in network radio in New York, but returned to his beloved Greensboro and station WBIG (where he got his start in radio as a Guilford student) in 1952.

Prior to his return, Bob had climbed the ladder to the top with his Mutual Broadcasting Corporation program. He won the TV-Radio Mirror award as "America's Favorite Disc Jockey" in 1949, and received Billboard's "DJ Award" for three successive years.

He has been a popular master of ceremonies on Alumni Day programs, and often relies on incidents from his Guilford days in his casual radio programs. He also brings humorous comments about his native Stoneville, N. C. to his listeners.

NEREUS C. ENGLISH

Nereus C. English, one of Guilford's most distinguished and loyal alumni and vice-chairman of the Guilford College Board of Trustees, died unexpectedly on September 21 at Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem. Funeral was at Archdale Friends Meeting, and burial was in the cemetery at Springfield Meeting. A special memorial service was held at the Guilford College student convocation on Friday, September 24.

Widely known and highly respected as a businessman and industrialist, Nereus English was also unusually active in the civic life of Thomasville, N. C. where he had made his home for many years, in the work of his church and the N. C. Yearly Meeting of Friends, and in the affairs and programs of Guilford College.

Born on April 20, 1904, the son of Nereus C. and Virginia Bouldin English, he attended Trinity High School and was graduated from Guilford on June 8, 1926 with an A.B. degree in History. After his graduation, he devoted two years to teaching and coaching at Spring Hope School where his enduring interest in young people developed. He then became associated with Ragan Knitting Company in Thomasville and became secretary-treasurer of that company.

In the years that followed, his business and industrial interests became broad and varied as his executive ability was recognized. These interests included businesses in High Point, Thomasville, Denton, Reidsville, Asheville, Rockwell and New York, among them Carolina Underwear, Wrenn Manufacturing Co., Carolina Developers, Rowan Industries, Circle Manufacturing and Ragan Knitting Mills. He was president of Textile Industries, Carolina Supply Co., People's Saving and Loan Association, English Motor Co., Piedmont Auto Finance and Chestnut Hills, Inc.

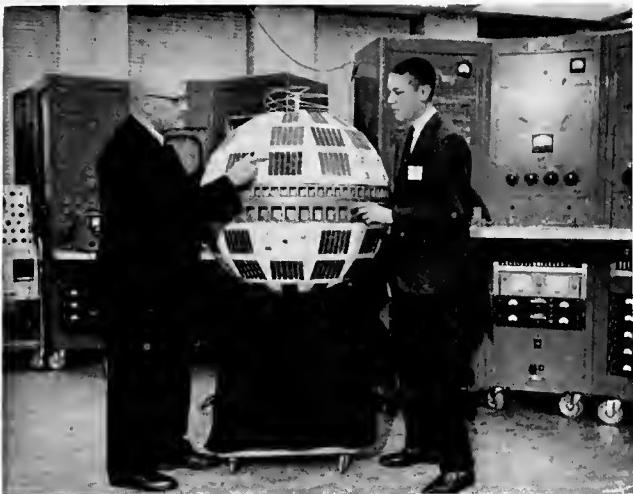

Despite the demands of business upon his time, Nereus English was prominent in civic affairs. He served a term in the North Carolina State Legislature, and at various times was president of the Thomasville Rotary Club, district chairman of the Boy Scouts, mayor of Thomasville, chairman of the Thomasville United Fund Drive, organizer and president of a professional baseball club in Thomasville and an enthusiastic supporter of his home town high school athletic program. As an active member of Archdale Friends Meeting, he supported its causes and participated in its activities. He was also past president of the Springfield Memorial Association.

Nereus English became a member of the Guilford College Board of Trustees in 1944. His loyalty to the college and his interest in its students led to the establishment of the English Endowment Fund and The Nereus C. and Mae Martin English Scholarship Fund. He took an active part in all Guilford development programs, not only making generous contributions himself but assisting in the solicitation of funds. With his brother, the late T. R. English, he made possible English Hall, a handsome dormitory for men, dedicated in 1957. He was a frequent visitor to the dormitory which bears his name and came to know many of the residents well.

Nereus English believed in giving opportunity to deserving young men and women, and many students were able to come to Guilford College because of his encouragement and financial assistance.

In fitting recognition of his many contributions to Guilford, and especially to its educational and athletic programs, in 1962 he received the Guilford College Alumni Association Distinguished Alumni Award, the highest honor that can be bestowed by the alumni association. Guilford College will not be able to replace the spirit of Nereus C. English, and his warm, friendly enthusiasm will be greatly missed in many ways.

He is survived by his widow, the former Mae Martin of Sanford, and three nephews: Thomas R., Jr. and Nereus C. III of High Point, and James W. of Trinity.

HENRY F. TEW

Guilfordians everywhere will be saddened to learn of the recent death of Henry F. Tew '27 in Tenafly, New Jersey, where he had been a distinguished science teacher for 36 years. He also had coached basketball there for several years.

Henry Tew won many awards and honors, a recent one being the Princeton University Award for Distinguished Secondary School Teaching.

But he was better known to Guilfordians for the fine young people from his area who came to Guilford College on his recommendation. He was also well known as an alumnus who always supported his college. His support was expressed by his contributions to college funds, his many trips "home" to Homecoming and Alumni Day, his regular attendance at New York alumni meetings and an occasional surprise visit to alumni gatherings in his native Goldsboro.

Henry Tew's kindness, his support, his loyalty, and his encouragement will be missed by all who love Guilford. He is survived by his wife, Elizabeth, and three children: Henry, Jr., Mrs. Mary Ann Jirfis, and Mrs. Elizabeth Tilton. He is also survived by two brothers, Alton '30 and Paul '31, and a sister, Mrs. Doris Hetzel.

A. I. FERREE

A gentleman known as a friend to many Guilfordians and Piedmont North Carolinians, and as "Mr. Republican" to North Staters from mountain to coast, passed away after a heart attack at his home in Asheboro, N. C. in June.

I. A. Ferree '11, civic leader, political figure, businessman, newspaperman, and judge, served all these offices well. His wise counsel and helpful encouragement will be missed by all who knew and loved him.

A MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT HOBBS

future. We shall, however, need periodically to re-examine the basic constituents of the core of courses and make such changes as are required to keep them "up to date" and fitted to the needs of students. We shall also, perhaps, add some new areas of study to the basic core. Such a reappraisal by the faculty has already gotten underway this fall. It is slow and meticulous work, but also challenging and exciting work, to forge this educational blueprint of the future of the College.

I call upon Guilfordians everywhere to share in this sense of building anew, though on the stable foundations of the past. In all that we do, our plan shall be to work for the continued growth of Guilford—the growth, however, not of a bigger but a better Guilford. I look forward to working with our alumni in every way which will help us rise to even greater heights.

and notes that he has three seniors, five juniors. In these moments, guarded optimism, cautious hopefulness, and championship illusions give way to future championship expectations!

BASKETBALL

After the first conference game-winning season in years, Coach Jerry Steele will still not make any bold predictions, although he lost only two members of his 1964-65 squad by graduation. "Two good men," he hurriedly observes, "Lloyd Burlington and David Odom—both good backcourt men."

However, Coach Steele will admit he is confident sophomores Tommy Loftus and Rodney Gaylord are potential top performers at guard, and he has Wayne Motsinger, who was hampered by injuries last year.

Experience is a problem, as is the broken leg of big 6'-8" Bob Kauffman, sophomore center. "We think Kauffman will be o. k., and we are optimistic about John Brooks' knee after an operation last summer," Steele said. There are 6'-5" sophomores Leon Young and Ed Fellers; 6'-4" sophomore Byron Lawson; and Marion "Chuck" Scott, all-conference 6'-4" senior forward. Scott is one of the finest players in the conference.

Given to brooding at times, Jerry expects a tough season. "We have a long way to go," he says. But occasionally, as some player makes a particular maneuver, Coach Steele's face will light up and he will ask in animated fashion, "Did you see that?" Jerry's legion of followers are not as conservative. They expect great things.

Hugh, Alma Moore Honored

At the 1965 Annual AFSC meetings in Philadelphia Hugh '20 and Alma Moore '20 were given an illuminated scroll on the occasion of Hugh's retirement from AFSC. The inscription reads, in part: "We cannot let pass this moment of your formal retirement without trying to express some of the gratitude, the mingled regret and joy, and the love we send along. You have long been a friend-raiser for the Service Committee, and your influence has been profound."

The annual tea was held in the Moores' honor and there was a large cake with 34 candles—one for each year of service with AFSC.

Hugh Moore spent several months getting used to the idea of being retired, going to the office nearly every day and maintaining an "informal" relationship with the Committee. Then in August 1965, the Moores moved to 610 Courtland Street, Greensboro.

Minnesota Mining Gift

Guilford College has received a gift of equipment from the Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co. through its Greensboro representative, Cooper D. Cass Company. The equipment includes two overhead projectors—one portable and one semi-fixed, a thermofax copying machine, a transparency-maker and a large supply of prepared slides and other materials covering a broad range of study areas.

The portable projector has been located in the college library and is available for use by all departments. The semi-fixed projector has been placed in King Hall where it can be used extensively in classrooms and laboratories of that building. The copying machine has also been placed in the library. The prepared materials will be especially valuable to the Department of Education in the training of majors for teaching.

Founder's Day, Ward Lecture

Guilford celebrated Founder's Day on Friday, November 5, with two outstanding speakers. The morning convocation in Dana Auditorium heard an address by Dr. Algie I. Newlin, Professor of History and Political Science at Guilford. Subject of Dr. Newlin's address was "The Significance of Founder's Day." He traced the history of the college as it related to North Carolina history and emphasized the great contribution made by Quakers to education in the state.

The Sixteenth Annual Ward Lecture was delivered in Dana Auditorium by Thomas S. Brown, Principal of Friends Boarding School at Barnesville, Ohio. The subject of the lecture was "Strange Fire." Thomas Brown urged a greater consciousness of Quaker philosophy in Quaker education and suggested greater religious emphasis in teaching.

Thomas Brown taught at Westtown School from 1953 until he went to Friends Boarding School in 1963. He is a graduate of Westtown and Haverford College where he was graduated in 1934 and elected to Phi Beta Kappa. He earned the masters degree in English at Harvard University.

The Ward Lecture was established at Guilford College to honor Eudema Bales Ward and her husband, the late Jeremiah Montgomery Ward, of Tennessee, and to implement in a constructive and creative way their concern for education and leadership within the Society of Friends.

Previous Ward lecturers have been: Alexander C. Purdy, Howard H. Brinton, Clarence E. Pickett, Henry J. Cadbury, Roland H. Bainton, Elizabeth Gray Vining, Frederick B. Tolles, Sumner A. Mills, J. Floyd Moore, Dorothy Gilbert Thorne, James M. Read, George Loft, Richard M. Sutton, M. Albert Linton and James F. Walker.

Stedman Firm Praised

A recent business feature by Conrad Paysour, Greensboro Daily News Business Editor, spotlighted the Stedman Manufacturing Company of Asheboro. The story resulted from an interview with David Stedman '42, president of the firm. The writer praised the management of the family-held textile business, noting that several innovations distinguish the operation. Stedman Manufacturing Company processes raw fiber completely through all phases to brand-name finished products.

David's daughter, Sally, is a junior music major at Guilford.

NEW GARDEN MEETING HOUSE

Shown above is the interior of historic New Garden Meeting House after existing floors had been removed. Construction is now under way to convert this building into a modern three-story administration building.

New Garden Meeting House Is Being Renovated For Administrative Offices

The Guilford College administration will occupy new and modern quarters early next summer. Complete renovation of the historic New Garden Meeting House on the campus is now under way. The interior of the Meeting House, which was built in 1912, has been torn out completely and will be replaced by modern construction. When finished, the building will have three floors instead of the present two. It will be fully air-conditioned and equipped with a hydraulic elevator. The classic Greek Doric facade with its four fluted columns will be preserved.

Present plans call for Guilford's new administration building, with approximately 12,000 square feet of space, to provide offices and work areas for the president, business manager, academic dean, student deans, registrar, director of development, director of admissions and alumni secretary on the two upper floors. Also included will be a board and conference room, staff lounge and filing areas. The first floor will be devoted to student-related functions of the business and registrar offices. The renovated building will have an air of spaciousness and is designed for maximum administrative efficiency. Architects are McMinn, Norfleet & Wicker, Greensboro, and construction is being done by H. D. Barnes, Inc. of Greensboro.

W. O. Conrad, Superintendent of the Greensboro Western Electric plant, gives scholarship certificate to Rudolph Gordh.

George Rudolph Gordh, Jr., a Guilford College senior from Roanoke, Virginia, majoring in mathematics, has been awarded the 1965-66 Western Electric Fund scholarship, it has been announced by W. O. Conrad, superintendent of the Greensboro Western Electric plant, and Dr. Grimsley T. Hobbs, president of Guilford College.

The scholarship check was presented by Mr. Conrad to President Hobbs. Western Electric Fund scholars are selected by a special faculty committee and must be outstanding students.

This $1400.00 scholarship from the Western Electric Fund was instituted at Guilford nine years ago and pays all tuition and fees for the honored student as well as funds to the college to take care of the cost of instruction not covered by regular tuition charges.

Kimrey Newlin is a chemistry major working under the direction of Dr. Harvey Ljung, Chairman of the Department of Chemistry. The purpose of the grant is to enable Newlin to engage in the preparation and analysis of the tetraacetic acid derivative of ortho-phenylenediamine. The analysis will determine:

- (1) quantitative elemental analysis for carbon, hydrogen and nitrogen.

Guilford Responds Quickly To United Fund Challenge

When the first report meeting of the Greensboro United Fund revealed an attainment of 54% of its goal (and the total college division had met 60% of its goal), Guilford College reported over 100% of its goal had been reached.

Dr. Edward Burrows, Campus Chest chairman and Associate Professor of History at the College, stated that $1,750.00 had been turned in against a goal of $1,700.00. The UF quota was a part of the total campus Chest goal of $2,500.00, which was exceeded.

Esso Gift Is Presented

R. L. King of the Humble Oil and Refining Company, Greensboro, and representing the Esso Education Foundation, has presented a check for $2,500 to Dr. Grimsley T. Hobbs, president of Guilford College. The grant was given by Esso on an unrestricted basis.

This brings to nearly $19.5 million the amount that the Esso Foundation has contributed to more than 500 institutions of higher learning during the past 11 years. The foundation is supported by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and its several affiliates.

The foundation's grants are disbursed through six programs: unrestricted, capital, engineering and science, special purpose, support for promoting the utilization of resources (SPUR), and incentive. Grants in the unrestricted, capital, and engineering and science areas are limited to privately-controlled colleges and universities.

President Hobbs welcomes Guilfordians; President Haworth is ready to respond.

Yankee Stadium: "Dream On"

Miss Dorothy "Dottie" Alley, freshman, is crowned Queen of Homecoming by Carolyn Marion Milks, 1964 queen, as escorts and court member Nancy Merritt applaud.

The largest Homecoming crowd in recent history enjoyed traditional Homecoming ceremonies beneath sunny skies on the Guilford College campus Saturday, October 30.

Beginning with a faculty coffee-reception hour at 10:00 a.m. in Dana Auditorium, the festivities included a parade through the village and campus at 1:00 p.m. led by the famed Greensboro Dudley High School Band. Also in the parade were the Guilford College Fife and Drum Band, led by Dr. Henry Hood; cheerleaders; President and Mrs. Grimsley Hobbs; Alumni President John R. Haworth '47 and Mrs. Haworth; and numerous floats sponsored by dormitories.

Principal event of the day, of course, was the football game between Guilford and Newberry. Guilford defeated the visitors 25-6.

A well organized halftime program featured President Hobbs and President Haworth, the Dudley Band, and the crowning of the Homecoming Queen. Lovely freshman, Dorothy Alley (daughter of Granville and Aliene Thompson Alley '31 and '33) was crowned by the 1964 queen, Mrs. Carolyn Marion Milks. Miss Alley was presented to Mrs. Milks by President Hobbs. Maid of Honor was Donna Newman, and the court was completed by Mary Cole, Nancy Merritt, and Bede Walker.

Founders Hall built the winning float, nosing out an entry by the Day Students. Mary Hobbs Hall won the dormitory decoration prize for women, and New North was victorious among men's dormitories.

At the Homecoming Dinner in Founders Hall, Presidents Hobbs and Haworth spoke briefly. Honor guests were Coach John Stewart and his football coaching staff. The Annual Homecoming Dance, sponsored by the college women's athletic association, closed the successful day's activities.

The winner! Banana Split (Newberry!) by ladies of Founders Hall was judged best in float competition.

After being picked for sixth or seventh in the conference this year, the Quaker football team surprised everyone by finishing the season with eight wins, two losses! Their conference record was 4-1, and many rival coaches felt that Coach Stewart's team was the class of the league after mid-season. After losing close games to WCC (9-7) and Washington and Lee (26-20), the team closed out the season by taking five straight wins over good teams. Regardless of the official decision, Coach Stewart is "Coach of the Year" to the large following that kept tabs on the team this year.

Coach Stewart protests that "the credit should go to Coaches Wilbur Johnson and John Lambeth '55. These men have gone the second—and third—mile with us."

Some of the factors in the success of the football team this year are:

(1) Coach Stewart's dedication, and the willingness of his staff to give beyond what is required to get the job done.

(2) Coach Stewart's insistence on a conservative, yet powerful offense. Ronnie Wallace was expected to pound away for yardage up the middle, and the razzle-dazzle was to be employed only when needed. But Wallace was injured on the first play from scrimmage and was lost for the season. Despite the loss of Wallace, power plays enabled Guilford to beat Elon, Newberry, Hampden-Sydney, Emory and Henry, and Catawba. One coach was quoted as saying in a wire release: "Guilford is the most explosive team I have ever seen!"

(3) Depth. Time after time, injured key players were replaced capably by players who did the job well. For instance, Danny Surface replaced Wallace capably, along with Bob Blevins and Gary Thompson. Bill Burchette and Bubba Brockwell filled the shoes of injured QB Jimmy Williams.

(4) Williams' punting kept the Quakers out of trouble on many occasions.

(5) Henry McKay's ability to make important pass receptions, along with the fact that the double coverage given him by opponents allowed the offense more leverage elsewhere.

(6) Tommy Grayson. This halfback, a junior transfer, won the conference scoring crown with 91 points. He intercepted passes and made key tackles from his defensive halfback position, and kicked four field goals. He caught passes with a magic touch, and led the conference in rushing (771 yards).

(7) Ronnie Winslow. We hope this young man is not spoiled by fame, for he has it. A co-captain, he is called by many "Guilford's greatest all-time athlete!"

(8) Danny McQueen. This 140-pound pass receiver and defensive halfback has enough drive and determination for two. His play was an inspiration to the staff, the players, and the college.

(9) Coach Bill Johnson's development of spirit among defensive players. The Quaker defense had a mild lapse in the loss to WCC 9-7; then the trouble was clearly diagnosed in the Washington and Lee loss. Senior Bill Hollifield's movement to defensive tackle did the trick, and the Quakers humiliated good offensive units from Newberry, Maryville, Catawba, Emory and Henry, and Randolph-Macon in five straight victories.

(10) John Lambeth's offensive line. Coach Lambeth perfected a unit that protected the passers and made gaping holes for the rushers.

In conclusion, their supporters believe that the Guilford Quakers were the finest in the conference at the close of the season. They could not be considered for the conference championship, because the Lenoir Rhyne Bears played one game more than Guilford. Next year the Quakers play a full schedule. Only Jim Williams, Bob Blevins, Tim Ray, and Bill Hollifield will graduate, and it is certain that Guilford won't be picked to finish 6th or 7th next year.

BASKETBALL

The Guilford College basketball team, under the direction of Coach Jerry Steele, is following the example set by the football team. As the Journal goes to press, the basketball record is ten victories and two losses with a conference record of 6-2. Although Coach Steele lost two of last year's stars, David Odom and Lloyd Turlington, he has put together a powerful combination of players for the current season. The schedule this year is much tougher than last year, and the Quakers are strong contenders for the Carolinas Conference championship. They are now standing in second place behind High Point, a team they have already beaten 84-78.

tributing to the excellent record have been John Brooks, Rodney Gaylord and Ritchie Allen.

During the Christmas holidays Coach Steele, who is ably assisted by Coach Jack Jensen, took his team to the Wilmington College Invitational Tournament and won the championship. In the Holiday Classic at the Greensboro Coliseum Guilford defeated Western Carolina on the first night but lost to Elon on the second. The season record to date follows:

Guilford	100	Lenoir Rhyne	79
Guilford	98	Wilmington	74
Guilford	98	Charlotte	41
Guilford	84	Pfeiffer	92
Guilford	80	Newberry	62
Guilford	84	High Point	78
Guilford	90	Western Carolina	71
Guilford	68	Elon	88
Guilford	93	Pembroke	79
Guilford	87	Wilmington	67

Baumbach's Summer In Mexico

Carl C. Baumbach, Chairman of the Guilford College Music Department, spent the past summer in Mexico with his wife, Lois, where they shared their time and talents in working as leaders of a group for the American Friends Service Committee.

In addition to their leadership of college students of international, interdenominational, and interracial backgrounds, Carl devoted much of his time to the transposition of a Catholic Mass. The published version of this newly-composed Misa Liturgica with Spanish text, in accordance with the latest edict from Rome, proved to be too high for the voices of the priests, as well as the male chorus. After transposing it down into good voice range, the Padre of the old Cathedral in Tonatico conscripted Carl to take over the music, train the chorus and act as organist. This meant several weeks of daily rehearsals for the chorus to prepare for the Saint's Day of the Church, when the Mass was for the first time in Spanish, the language of the people, instead of in the traditional Latin. It is now possible for the natives to participate in the service of the Mass, and they are very devout.

The manual project for the male members of the summer's AFSC group consisted of installing a sanitation facility for the new breakfast building, where daily free breakfasts are dispensed to the needy children in the town. These same young men also taught adult evening classes in English and Mathematics. The girls in the group taught handicrafts, organized recreation and first aid classes. They also assisted in the medical clinic and conducted a library.

Letter From The Milners

Dear Guilfordians:

"Because of your great generosity in making our trip more extensive, we want to share some of our experiences with you.

"After arriving in Hawaii with the usual alohas and orchid leis, we had five weeks of comparative rest with enough activity at Friends Meeting and the University, with Rotarians and with Altrusans to keep us alert. We saw all eight of the islands from the air, one day traveling nine hundred miles. We traveled by bus on Hawaii and Kawai and viewed Oahu from boat, plane, bus, car, from the top of Honolulu's highest building's revolving restaurant, and from the home of Francis Darl on one of the mountain slopes. For many of our pleasant experiences we were grateful to the Altrusa Club of Honolulu.

"In Hawaii we saw two of your fellow Guilfordians — Joyce Hunter '57 Lawton and Ann Isonaga '51. Ann flew in from her Garden Island (Kawai) to spend the day with us. Bearing her alohas of orchids she took us to lunch, the Orchid Show and the Art Gallery. Suitable entertainment, she said, for her professor of Philosophy 24.

"Our four days in Fiji were made memorable because of the courtesy of the James Turners (Mrs. Turner's father was a Guilfordian). They took us sightseeing, introduced us to native Fijians and gave Clyde the unforgettable experience of visiting the island of Baw, seldom seen by white men.

"During a month in New Zealand, we had a 'hopping time' visiting sixteen cities, sleeping in thirteen different beds, talking to seven Friends Meetings about the World Conference, having seven educational conferences and three news interviews. In New Zealand God and all the people are expert gardeners. The flowers, the geysers, the glowworm cavern, the emerald green pastures, the lakes, the mountains (some snow-clad) all blend into indescribable beauty. Our fellowship with New Zealand Friends will always be one of our precious memories.

"We've really just arrived in Australia. Last Thursday when we deplaned, the press, radio and television representatives interviewed us. Before unpacking we had visited a secondary school and a territory school (university). We've had a lengthy ride in the famous Australian bush, observing flora and fauna — how the Biophile Club would have enjoyed that experience! Here also are luncheons, dinners, teas, meetings—a routine similar to our activities in New Zealand.

"With our kindest and personal wishes, we are as ever your friends,
CLYDE AND ERNESTINE MILNER."

Youngs Celebrate Golden Anniversary

Russell '15 and Ella Young '13 Wood, friends of many Guilfordians, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently. The picture and the following story appeared in their local newspaper:

"One of the loveliest events of the fall season was held in the Balsam Community Building on September 14th, when Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Wood entertained at their golden wedding anniversary with a reception from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m.

"The room was decorated in gold and green, the same colors of their wedding fifty years ago. The table was covered with a gold cloth centered by a beautiful arrangement of golden mums and green fern, golden wheat all mounted on a green base.

"The two-tiered wedding cake was trimmed with gold roses and the traditional bride and groom stood atop. Four brass candlesticks holding gold tapers surrounded the cake. Gold mints and salted nuts were served.

"The two punch bowls at either end of the long table were presided over by Mrs. Jim Dicus and Mrs. Al Harz, friends of the couple.

"In the receiving line were—in addition to the couple—Mrs. Wood's sister and her original maid of honor, Miss Geno Young of Arlington, Virginia; Mrs. Eston (Teey Beamon '13) Griffin, one of Mrs. Wood's bridesmaids, and Mr. Griffin of Troy, N. C.; Mr. Marion E. Young of Washington, who was a junior groomsman, and Mrs. Young; Mrs. Sidney Allen of Wilmington, N. C., a cousin of Mr. Wood; and Mrs. Jim Dicus of Waynesville.

"Presiding over the guest book were Mrs. Carl Coward and Mrs. Emory Krieger.

"Prior to the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Wood entertained the wedding party at dinner at the Balsam Hotel, where their table was set up complete with wedding cake and a lace cloth. It was here the Woods had spent their honeymoon fifty years ago, so it held fond memories for them.

"Following the reception a buffet supper was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wood."

Dr. Charles L. Carroll, Jr. '36, manager of the Technical Staff, Guided Missiles Range Division of Pan American World Airways, recently presented a paper to the Sixteenth International Astronautical Congress in Athens, Greece, on the subject, "Evaluation and Calibration of Missile and Space Tracking Systems."

The son of Lewis Lyndon Hobbs, Guilford's first president, his visit this time was a new experience—he and Mrs. Hobbs visited in the home of the new Guilford president, his son, Grimsley T. Hobbs '47.

Grimsley Hobbs has been named to the Board of Advisors of the Earlham College School of Religion. He will serve for a three-year term of office.

The Board of Advisors functions as the operating body for the School of Religion, in session since the fall of 1962, and serves under the authority granted it by the Board of Trustees of Earlham College, which has final legal control over the School of Religion.

The Earlham School of Religion offers courses leading to the M.A. and B.D. degrees. The first B.D. degree was awarded in June, 1963. Since that time more than 100 students have taken work at the school.

Trustee Day Address

Dr. Paul Reynolds, Guilford College graduate and trustee, and Dean of the Faculty at Wilmington College, delivered the Trustee Day address October 22, 1965. Subject of the address to the student body and faculty was "Challenge to the Educated."

Speaking in Dana Auditorium at 10:30 a.m., Dr. Reynolds said that "educated people must push the frontier of knowledge forward," and that this could be done "only if the educated accept the challenge of leadership and service."

Essential for this contribution is establishment of "a set of values for one's self," said the educator. "The world has become a neighborhood . . . we must emphasize the study of other languages and churches. No longer are we bound by narrow limitations in geography and language."

Dr. Reynolds closed by adding that the educated "must become dissatisfied with the status quo — the more the dissatisfaction, the more the progress! We must create a climate where the student will develop respect for truth, and experience excitement in discovery."

What Was The Tune of This Alumni Song?

This Alumni Song, written by Lucille Armfield (Mrs. Frank Armfield) '94, has been uncovered in alumni files. The alumni office would like to hear from those who remember the song. What was the tune?

Oh! Guilford, our dear Alma Mater,
The home of the good and the true,
The pride of each son and each daughter,
We pledge our affection anew.
Thy calls make alumni assemble
At times that are grave and are gay,
Thy colors make loving hearts tremble,
Thy colors make loving hearts tremble,
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!

II.

Oh! Guilford, thou art our fair lady!
Thy knights, fond and true, see us now;
Our lot may be sunny or shady;
We pledge faith to thee, hear our vow.
Thy walls, as of old, safely hold us,
From harm, for one brief little day,
Thy dear loving arms now enfold us—
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!
Thy dear loving arms now enfold us,
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!

III.

Oh! Guilford, and dear old New Garden,
These names thrill the young and the old.
For thy sons and their children's children
Of thee pleasant memories hold.
Tho' some have grown gray in thy service,
Thy sons and thy daughters today
Assembled now, lustily give
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!
Assembled now, lustily give
Three cheers for the crimson and gray!

Fannie Ozment Reynolds

Mrs. Fannie Ozment Reynolds died in Greensboro on September 27, 1965 at the age of 91. She was a prominent member of the Society of Friends and maintained a lifelong interest in Guilford College. All of her seven children attended Guilford and six graduated. Her late husband, Herbert W. Reynolds, was a member of the Class of 1893.

Mrs. Reynolds' interests extended far beyond her home into the community and included a broad range of Quaker activities. For forty-one years she was a teacher who made strong impressions on thousands of students.

The Reynolds family has been directly associated with Guilford since its beginning, with two members, Delilah and Elma, entering in 1837. Ruth Reynolds Hockett '23 has been an outstanding educator and leader among N. C. Friends; John '25 served East Carolina College for many years. Paul '28 is Dean of Faculties at Wilmington College and also a trustee at Guilford. Mary Reynolds Starbuck '31 is a retired educator and homemaker now living in California. Nathan '34 is a former teacher and banker in Fayetteville. Thomas '38 is head of the Department of Mathematics at William and Mary College in Williamsburg, Va. David '33 is an agriculture teacher in Wilkesboro, N. C.

Dr. John C. Lindsay

Private funeral services were held in the late fall in Bedford, Va., for Dr. John C. Lindsay '40, Associate Chief of the Laboratory for Space Sciences at the Goddard Space Flight Center.

He had been at Goddard since it opened in 1959, and was a pioneer in the development of rocket experiments for Solar Physics Research. In addition to his position with the laboratory for space sciences, he was head of the solar physics branch, and project scientist for the orbiting solar observatory series of earth satellites. Lindsay managed the experiments carried on by the early vanguard satellite series and held the National Aeronautic and Space Administration's Achievement Award.

John Lindsay received his masters and Ph.D. degrees in physics at the University of North Carolina. He was a member of the Institute of Radio Engineers, the American Geophysical Union, the American Astronomical Society and the American Physical Society.

Surviving are his wife, the former Joyce E. Fry '42, and three sons, John, Cliff and Terry, all of the home. John Mott '65 is now attending graduate school.

Scholarships and Financial Aid at Guilford College

Realizing that many deserving students are unable to finance their total college expenses, Guilford College supports a broad program of financial aid. All alumni are encouraged to support the college financial aid program.

SELECT FRESHMAN SCHOLARSHIPS

Guilford College is now offering twenty-five scholarships annually to incoming freshmen. These awards, known as "The Select Freshmen Scholarships," are designed to recognize outstanding high school seniors and encourage them to attend Guilford College. Applicants must meet high requirements and must rank in the top quarter of their high school or prep school classes. Closing date for applications each year will be January 15 for admission to the freshman class the following September.

THE CHARLES A. DANA SCHOLARSHIPS

Guilford College has the privilege of offering a number of scholarships annually, made possible by Charles A. Dana.

To be eligible for consideration, men and women students must have completed a full academic year or its equivalent as a duly enrolled student at Guilford College, and must have demonstrated marked quality of character and evidence of leadership, and have acquired a minimum academic quality average of 2.00.

A Dana Scholar may be reappointed each successive year during his college career, provided academic standards are maintained and there is evidence of increasing maturity, of growth in understanding of the total college program and purpose, and of the development of effective leadership.

Dana Scholars are selected by a special committee of staff and faculty members.

SPECIAL SCHOLARSHIP FUNDS

The Financial Aid Committee of the college administers a number of scholarships and grants-in-aid made possible by friends of the college. These scholarships and grants-in-aid are awarded largely, but not entirely, on the basis of need. The committee encourages high scholastic standards and urges students to consider work loads realistically in relation to semester hours and extra curricular activities.

In making grants other than the Select Freshman Scholarships, preference is given to returning students who have academic averages of "B" or better and who use their time wisely in scholastic and extra curricular pursuits. No grants are made to students with less than a "C" average or to resident students who own or maintain automobiles, except where necessity is justified to the committee. All grants are on a one semester basis with the possibility of renewal for an additional semester provided satisfactory academic performance has been shown, and provided the student has proven to be an asset to the college community and the student body. During the 1964-65 academic year more than 130 students received financial aid under this program.

Graduation Exercises Scheduled

TERRY M. SANFORD

Former North Carolina Governor Terry M. Sanford will deliver the 1966 Commencement Address in Dana Auditorium at 10:30 A.M. Monday, May 30, during graduation ceremonies.

A native of Laurinburg and a graduate of Laurinburg High School, Terry Sanford was also educated at Presbyterian Junior College, and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He received his B.A. and LL.B. degrees at the University.

A former Special Agent with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, he entered the U. S. Army during World War II. He was a first lieutenant with the 517th Parachute Combat Team.

He became a practicing lawyer in 1944 and was elected president of North Carolina Young Democrats in 1949. A member of the State Senate in 1953, he was elected Governor in 1960.

Terry Sanford's campaign for governor, as well as his succeeding administration, was marked with his concern for education. Many outstanding innovations resulted during his four-year term, including the North Carolina School of Arts, the Learning Institute of North Carolina, and the "Governor's School" for gifted children. Also, public school budgets were increased 50% and college budgets 70%.

Terry Sanford is eminently qualified to give the Commencement Address at the close of Guilford College's 129th year.

WILLIAM N. WEAVER

The traditional Baccalaureate Sermon, to be delivered at 11:00 A.M. Sunday, May 29, in Dana Auditorium, will be given by Dr. William N. Weaver, Assistant Dean and Dean of Students, Divinity School, University of Chicago.

Dr. Weaver holds degrees from Butler University (B.A.), East Texas University (M.E.), and University of Chicago (B.D.). He is secretary to the Christian Century Foundation, and is president-elect for 1966 of the faculties union of Chicago area seminaries.

He is a former minister of Disciples of Christ in New Orleans, La., and served as chaplain in the United States Army during World War II. He was president of the New Orleans Protestant Ministerial Union, and president of the Louisiana State Convention of the Disciples of Christ Church.

Dr. Weaver, a native of Mississippi, is married to the former Leila Sims, and has one child.

He is the fitting choice of the Class of 1966 for the position of baccalaureate speaker.

MAY DAY

Traditional May Day ceremonies at Guilford College were celebrated at 3:00 p.m., Saturday, May 7, on the Guilford campus. Ruth Elizabeth Brewer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis K. Brewer of Winston-Salem and Guilford senior, reigned as Queen of May. Carolyn Marion Milks (Mrs. Ted) of Greensboro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Marion, formerly of Mount Airy, was Matron of Honor.

The college Women's Athletic Association, under the direction of Gloria Phillips, senior from Greensboro and a member of the May Court, sponsored the event.

Inaugural Address

April 22, 1966

All of us who are Guilfordians are proud of the long traditions of our college and of the contributions which it has made to the state and the nation in its more than a century and a quarter of existence.

Guilford's founding required great sacrifice by early Friends in this area. The great purpose which lay behind its establishment was to provide an educated leadership for the Society of Friends as well as for the general region. Guilford's continued service through some lean and very difficult times, particularly around the Civil War, was made possible by sacrifice equally great on the part of others.

The continuous aim which has characterized Guilford's long history has been the desire to help students discover significance for their lives through the route of rigorous discipline both of mind and spirit. This aim was well and clearly stated in a resolution on educational purpose adopted by the trustees in 1848:

By education we ought to understand whatever has a tendency to invigorate the intellect, to train the mind to thought and reflection, to mould aright the affections of the heart, and to confirm us in the practice of virtue.

In the years which have passed since its founding Guilford has to a marked degree lived up to the ambitions of its founders. It has indeed expanded the mind and quickened the hearts of the many young people who have come to it as students. In great measure this has been due to the quality of the leadership which the school and college have been fortunate to have. I would at this time like to express my gratitude for the long years of dedicated service of Clyde and Ernestine Milner. The college made great strides during the Milner administration, and for this we are all profoundly grateful.

It is clear that we can take a justified pride in our past; the most important thing for us today, however, is to make sure that the potential and the promise gained for us through the past may honored and fulfilled in the years ahead.

Colleges which will make a difference are those which have a plan and a clear perception of what sort of academic community they intend to become. There is an enormous variety of types and qualities of colleges today. Just being a college, therefore, doesn't mean very much. The truly important thing is what it stands for and in what direction it is moving.

Each college has (or should have) a set of institutional values which are distinctive to it and which run like a thread throughout its history. If the college is a coherent one, this set of values will explain why a certain curriculum was chosen, and why a particular set of social regulations for the college was put into effect. Guilford has clearly shown such a pattern throughout its past, and it is wise for us to look at this pattern as we plan for the future. We want a college which is at once both old and new. We want the same quality of life for our young people today as they desired when Guilford was founded, but we want this to be expressed in terms of the needs, opportunities and techniques of the 1960's. This same determination to be abreast of the times was expressed.

INAUGURATION

The inauguration of Guilford College's fifth president on April 22 went smoothly in spite of grey skies which threatened rain. Robert Frazier '19, Chairman of the Guilford College Board of Trustees, presided over the act of Investiture at approximately 11:30 a.m. in Dana Auditorium, following the principal address by Dr. Douglas Knight, president of Duke University.

Dr. Hobbs' inaugural address, printed herein, outlined his hopes for the future course of Guilford College. A gala luncheon attended by some 500 invited guests was followed by a Symposium at 2:00 p.m. on "Creative Programs." Dr. Paul Reynolds '28, Dean of Faculty, Wilmington College; Dr. Hugh Borton, president, Haverford College, and Dr. Landrum Bolling, president of Earlham College, led the discussion.

Pictures herein tell the story in part. Dr. Knight's address, in which he called the presidency of a college a "lonely, challenging task," will be printed in a later publication.

Dr. Douglas Knight, president of Duke University, gave the main address at inauguration of distinguished Duke alumnus.

A MESSAGE TO THE 50-YEAR ALUMNI GROUP

At the annual meeting of the 50-year Group in 1958 they adopted as their continuing project a Professorship in memory of Guilford's third president, Dr. Raymond Binford. The anticipated goal was $200,000, as an endowment to the Professorship. The same year the project was approved by the Board of Trustees. Our new president, Dr. Grimsley T. Hobbs, is also interested in establishing "Named Professorships."

Starting in 1901, Professor Binford came to Guilford as Instructor in the field of Science. His greatest love was Biology. He continued his studies until he achieved his Ph.D.

After he became president of Guilford College in 1918 he continued to teach Biology. At the same time he was working on the many problems the college faced after World War I. He also developed the Core Curriculum in 1927, which other colleges have since adopted. Under our new president, Dr. Grimsley T. Hobbs, the Curriculum is being restudied and re-evaluated. This is the ideal time for all classes in 50-year Group and those who automatically become members each year, to really get busy and help advance the Professorship. Those who attended Guilford while Dr. Binford was president, 1918-1934, could now make plans and have this as their project.

This report is a reminder that the Fund exists. Some gifts have been made. Loyalty gifts and memorials are being added. Some may find it convenient to give by way of Guilford Life Income Plan and later let it be applied to the Binford Professorship. In this

DR. NEWLIN TO RETIRE

Dr. Algie I. Newlin '21, Professor of History, is retiring June 1 after 42 years of service to the college as a member of the faculty.

"Algie Newlin Day" was celebrated on the campus Monday, May 2. Dr. Newlin was honored at a special convocation in Dana Auditorium at 10:30 a.m. when Dr. Rembert Patrick '30, one of Dr. Newlin's majors and Professor of History at the University of Florida at Gainesville, gave the major address. Dr. Patrick described Dr. Newlin as a "great teacher who always gave a great deal of time for preparation of his classes, who was patient and fair to the student. His criticism was always constructive. He taught us responsibility."

Newspaper features in Greensboro publications noted the event, calling Algie Newlin "a great teacher and scholar . . ."

Dr. Algie received his M.A. degree from Haverford in 1922, and after intermittent and part-time study at Columbia University, Johns Hopkins University, University of California, University of Wisconsin and the University of Michigan, he received his doctorate from the University of Geneva in 1940. He is married to the former Eva Miles, faculty member at Guilford from 1928-1933. A daughter, Mrs. Adrian Bird, lives in Port of Spain, Trinidad. A son, James '59, is now assistant business manager at the college.

Guilford students Randall Ihara, Susan Bradley, and Chairman Jane Benbow, along with Claude Shots of the Guilford faculty (background), have discussion with Wayne Morse.

Norman Getsinger, U. S. State Department China expert, ponders a question.

"U. S. Foreign Policy in Southeast Asia" was the topic for the Guilford College Symposium, held April 18-20 on the Guilford campus. The Symposium was sponsored by the college under the leadership of the campus International Relations Club and the Department of Political Science.

Heading the list of speakers was Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, sometimes referred to as the "Maverick" Senator. Morse told an overflowing audience in Dana Auditorium that the United States' presence in Southeast Asia had no legal basis.

William Jennings Bryan Dorn, Conservative Democrat from South Carolina, said "We are engaged. We're there. Communism in general and Red China in particular is our real adversary. If we pull out, there go Thailand, Japan, India . . . and what will happen fifteen years from now, when Red China develops her military potential?"

On Tuesday, April 19, at 2:00 p.m. Brigadier General Frank E. Garretson of the United States Marines spoke on Military Policy. At the 8:00 p.m. session two speakers commanded the stage in Dana Auditorium. Dr. Eugene P. Boardman, professor of East Asian History, University of Wisconsin, and Norman Getsinger, officer in charge of Republic of China affairs, United States Department of State, spoke on China. Garretson told of the amazing range of people in Viet Nam, including mountain tribal groups "who don't even know there is a Viet Nam!"

The final session on Wednesday, April 20, saw representative from "neutral" nations. Ambassador J. T. F. Iyalla, Deputy Permanent Representative to the United Nations from Nigeria, and Honorable Arthur Basanyke of Ceylon, were the speakers.

Miss Jane Benbow, Guilford junior from East Bend, N. C. and chairmen of the event, announced that the Symposium drew some 4,000 attendants during the three-day session.

KERR APPOINTED

P. Douglas Kerr '60 of High Point has been named director of public relations for the Southern Furniture Manufacturers' Association, a newly-created position.

Robert A. Spelman, the association's executive vice-president, said Kerr will be responsible for developing and implementing a full-scale public relations program for the association.

SFMA, with offices in the Southern Furniture Exposition Building, High Point, has served the furniture industry since 1911. It has approximately 300 members in 14 southern and southwestern states.

Sara Richardson Haworth '17 was featured in a recent article in the Greensboro Daily News. The story concerns her interest in Madonna figures. Beginning ten years ago, she has collected forty Madonna figures from throughout the world. Mrs. Haworth is a member of the Guilford College Alumni Association Executive Committee. Last year she was North Carolina's "Mother of the Year."

in 1888 by Lyndon Hobbs, Guilford's first president. He described Guilford as "a college, which, while holding fast to that which is good in the old, shall be ever ready to incorporate the fruits of the latest investigations into our course of study and methods of instruction and discipline."

I. GUILFORD IS A COLLEGE

Now, a college is a very special type of social institution. This may not be easily recognized due to the fact that historically colleges have often been linked with diverse types of other social organizations—chiefly, of course, with churches. While in certain areas the aims of the church and the church-related college overlap, and thus reinforce each other, we should also recognize that there is an important difference in their purposes and roles. The unique role of a college is to serve the interests of truth through the training of man's intellectual faculties. Rigorous intellectual discipline lies at the heart of the college experience—its chief aim is to make the student think cogently and well in many different areas of study. President Carlson of Gustavus College, a strong Lutheran institution, put it this way:

It must be recognized that education in general and colleges in particular have an independent basis of existence which is rooted in the mind's quest for truth and in the nature of the learning process. It cannot allow itself to be regarded as solely the instrument of some other "order," be it the family, the Church, or the State. It transmits the cultural heritage from one generation to another but in doing so it applies the critical apparatus of sound scholarship to that heritage. It interprets the present and explores the unknown with all the resources available to it and with a mind that is not predetermined by any obligation except faithfulness to truth. This is its particular and distinctive service.*

*—From "The Church and Its Colleges": address at the Convocation of Christian Colleges, 1962.

If a college fails to demand a scholarly and inquiring attitude from its students it fails in one of the most important obligations of a college.

II. MORE THAN JUST A COLLEGE, GUILFORD IS A LIBERAL ARTS COLLEGE

We mean many things when we speak of liberal arts education. The basic aim, presumably, of a liberal arts education is to set free the mind and spirit of the individual student. Each of us, it should be recognized, is to some extent in bondage to our hasty preconception and to the limited nature of our understanding. Our attitudes and tastes tend to reflect, for instance, our regional upbringings, reflect the attitudes of our family and our immediate circle of friends. A liberal education, however, opens us up to a much broader background of human thought, and the student comes to understand issues on a more comprehensive scale. For the first time, in many cases, the student comes to realize what the real issues are, and is therefore able to choose his values and goals deliberately and therefore freely. This is a liberating experience.

Mrs. A. W. Hobbs (wife of the late A. W. Hobbs '07), Lois Hunkele Hobbs '48, and Richard Mendenhall Hobbs (brother of Grimsley Hobbs) during inauguration address.

The act of Investiture . . .

One major approach stands out as characteristic of the stronger liberal arts colleges. Education at such colleges is oriented more towards the developing individual who is being educated than it is to the subject matter itself which is being mastered.

There is a lively debate in educational circles as to whether undergraduate education should follow a specialist or a generalist approach. The specialist approach places emphasis upon knowledge as an end in itself, and contends that our fundamental aim should be to produce experts in a given field. This involves introducing the student in depth to the complicated processes of academic scholarship in a given field of study. Admiral Rickover has been one of the most vocal proponents of this point of view in his recent book American Education, a National Failure. On this approach the undergraduate program should take its central pattern from the specialized Ph.D. programs of the graduate schools.

The generalist approach, on the other hand, holds the goal of education to be not simply to further knowledge, but to produce leaders. What is needed are programs which will help the student to think broadly and coherently about issues which he will face as a citizen in our society. It wants him to recognize and be able to weigh evidence for and against certain conclusions—and it seeks to make him sensitive to many of the creative challenges in his community and in the world at large.

What stand do we take at Guilford College? We do not think that the function of a college is merely to import knowledge, as some have claimed. We agree with the late Alfred North Whitehead in his claim that the justification for a college is that it preserves the link between knowledge and the zest for life. Note the important emphasis upon the student's attitude as he gains knowledge, along with the significance of the knowledge which he can be expected to gain. The task of a college is to instill certain attitudes about learning; these are often the most important aspects of a college education. If college did no more than impart knowledge, it has been said that it would have been outmoded after the invention of the printing press. Books, after all, can convey knowledge. If the teacher and the supportive college atmosphere do not add anything beyond what books can offer, then there seems little justification for having a college at all. We believe that inspired teaching is the thing which most contributes to making college great.

Education involves far more than just cramming the student's head with facts; it fails if it does not also communicate a love for learning which makes man's spirit grow.

There is, of course, great justification for highly specialized approaches to knowledge in our graduate schools, but there is good reason to think that the growing tendency for undergraduate departments to adopt this pattern of specialized scholarship is bad. It always results in a fractionalization of knowledge into competing specialties, and it has the same effect upon the college community as a whole. Under such circumstances the faculty and the students become divided into separate and competing enclaves, and the sense of the college as a coherent and significant community is lost. What the generalist approach to education seeks is that the various specialized disciplines be recognized as having an important bearing upon each other. A chemist I once knew typifies this integrated approach to knowledge. He would, for example, ask his chemists such questions as: Should the scientist hold himself responsible for the social effects of the work he does? Is his only obligation to produce knowledge, or must he be in a sense his brother's keeper?

Dr. Hobbs illustrates five points characteristic of Guilford in inaugural address.

We can differentiate knowledge for specialized purposes, but we also need to stress integration for it to be humanly meaningful. A college should not be a group of specialists dividing the job but rather a group of scholars working together to help the student see the whole.

There is an important difference between the student who studies to acquire bits and pieces of knowledge so as to be able to pass an examination administered by specialists, and the student who is challenged by the interdependence of knowledge and its human applications. In an article which appeared several years ago in The Atlantic Monthly, Dean Douglas Brown of Princeton University compares the two types of students to two different types of mountain climbers. The one student, clearly recognizable as the specialist, plods up the foot-hills with his eyes glued to the trail ahead. The other takes occasional sights of the mountain peaks ahead and thereby gains a sense of direction and strength to proceed further. It is the function of the liberal arts colleges to help men look upward and beyond their special tasks, and this is a function we aspire to at Guilford College.

We need specialists, but there is an even more urgent need for generalists. We need men and women who know the languages of the sciences, who are not awed by the computers, and who can bring these abilities to bear on the larger issues of our time. Richard Frost, national director of the Upward Bound program of the Office of Economic Opportunity, has stated this succinctly:

This, then is the goal of a liberal arts education . . . the specialty of generalism; the encouragement of young people along an educational track designed to give them abilities to understand the specialist's needs, competencies, and workways, and thereby the promise of reasonably effective management of the same. It may be, not so surprisingly, that the old credos of liberal arts institutions have a special advance today far beyond their earlier significance.*

So long as we have liberal arts colleges which can actually do these things, I for one have no fear for their future.

III. GUILFORD IS A CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

Guilford is, and plans to continue being, a Christian College. We mean by this more than merely the fact that we were founded by a Christian group and that we have continuing legal responsibilities to that body. We at Guilford College believe that lives based on Christian values make possible the best life for man in society. But more than this: we also believe that these values help define for us the proper goals and restraints for the reasoning process itself.

Some people think that the knowledge orientation and the religious orientation cannot be successfully combined in a college. One sometimes hears the criticism that to the extent that a college considers itself to have a special religious mission it ceases to be an effective instrument of higher education. The argument seems to be that if a college is affiliated with a church group, it thereby surrenders the prime requirement of a college—the unrestrained pursuit of truth, and that it must therefore impose a stiff parochialism upon the intellectual and social life of the institution. (Cf. Earl McGrath.)*

Now I would not wish to deny that some churches have exercised this sort of control over the educational policies and practices of their institutions, and that this has very definitely been a barrier to free inquiry. Apparently such church bodies did not want to risk having students confront religious ideas in anything but a sheltered atmosphere. I would vigorously deny that this sort of paternalism is in any sense intrinsic to Christian colleges. Many church leaders today recognize that religion is greatly benefited by a serious and honest confrontation of faith by reason. For one thing, the probing questions put by the reasoning mind can do much to extend our understanding in religion, and thereby make us religiously sensitive to a wider range of things. Reason can also supply a counter-balance to what might otherwise become the blind extremes of faith.

I would therefore agree that faith is helped through its contact with probing thought. I would also maintain, on the other hand, that reason is itself benefited when it is regulated by certain values accepted on the basis of faith. It is evident, particularly after two catastrophic wars and the threat of another, that man needs more than mere reason and knowledge to solve the crises of our day. Intellectual understanding, though absolutely imperative, is not enough!

The fact that a man possesses a great amount of knowledge guarantees nothing as to how he will choose to use it (if indeed he chooses to use it at all). Some such men remain paralyzed on dead center—witness, for example, the importance of the learned German professors to stand up against the horrors and atrocities of the Hitler regime. It is easy, as most educators know, to take a highly detached point of view. Knowledge in itself is neutral, and does not prompt us to do one thing or another. Decision and action are stimulated chiefly by how we feel about the knowledge—that is, what value we attach to it.

*Quoted from John Bradunas', Still on the Agenda: Education for Leadership in "Liberal Learning" March 1966.

The goallessness of pure knowledge can come to exercise a very negative influence upon the life of a college. If the professors take a detached, uncommitted point of view, this same spirit is likely to be communicated to the student. Detachment breeds detachment. The student will be quite able to memorize, repeat and to parrot the material he is studying, but he will not be likely to become very deeply involved with it personally.^o A more desirable state of affairs, I submit, is found when the professor and his students are sufficiently involved in the issues under consideration that the matter seems demanding and urgent. It is at these times when reason operates within the framework of a value-commitment, and I would argue that is when reason operates at its best. Christian colleges attempt to supply a needed framework of values which give can give point to the operations of reason.

William G. Cole put the position of what he calls the "free Christian college" in a compelling light in a speech to the Council of Protestant Colleges and Universities this past winter. After denying that the Christian college needs to resort to a narrow dogmatism, he claimed that such colleges occupy a place midway between authoritarianism and skepticism. The authoritarian is one who believes without any questioning, and the skeptic is one who questions without believing. Dr. Cole advocated the type of Christian college where the questioning and the believing go on at the same time. Such colleges do not think of the Christian faith as tied to some particular body of fixed dogma which is simply to be accepted and transmitted from one generation to another. Rather the Christian faith is conceived more as an area within which and by means of which the search for truth itself is to be carried on. Christianity for Dr. Cole is more a way of life, a kind of quest or pilgrimage, than it is a fixed point at which one arrives and stops.

I would like for Guilford to be that kind of college—one in which debate and serious thought is encouraged on all sorts of problems—including those of religion. It should be a place where the rivals to Christian interpretations are honestly presented and faced, but a place also where a special point is made to present Christianity itself in all its strength and power. We do not fear that the use of the mind will undermine significant religious convictions, and we encourage its responsible use to the utmost. Christianity, as Dr. Cole points out, does not require privilege. It is not weak. All it requires is to be heard and sympathetically considered. We do students a disservice if we try to spare them from a serious search for meaning in their college years. Is such a search not what Christianity is all about?

IV. GUILFORD IS A QUAKER COLLEGE

When we speak of Guilford as a Quaker college we do not, of course, mean that we expect or even want all our staff to be members of the Society of Friends. We are speaking chiefly of the attitudes and the types of values which should characterize our common life. As Quakers we have certain beliefs about the nature of man and his relationship to God, and these are reflected in our various practices. The types of values which we feel must continue to characterize our college community are (1) respect for the worth of each person person; (2) simplicity and directness in our dealings with each other; (3) a sense of corporate guidance towards truth which is based on free and open discussion; and (4) a concern to work for the amelioration of social ills, both at home and abroad.

My fifth aspect of the character of Guilford College is an extension of this fourth concern to work for human welfare.

V. GUILFORD IS A COLLEGE WITH GLOBAL CONCERN

In speaking of this global concern, we speak chiefly of the Guilford of the future, though in a sense it has been a major concern of the Society of Friends from the beginning. There is good reason today to think that the traditional Western patterns of education which have served us well enough up to this point are no longer fully able to prepare a student to deal adequately with the world in which he will be called upon to live. To a greater degree than ever before world affairs are becoming American affairs, and American affairs are becoming world affairs. Our nation is becoming increasingly involved with Asian countries and with the emerging nations of Africa, and it is imperative that this new dimension in world affairs be taken into account in our educational planning.

The world, one might say, is shrinking, and our thinking about the world must undergo the same sort of transformation that occurred in Western Europe in the 16th and 17th centuries as a result of the great voyages of discovery.* Vast changes in technology, in communications, and in transportation have brought formerly remote people into close contact with each other, and understanding has never been more at a premium. Even our everyday thinking has become internationalized. The events of distant countries have today become a part of our everyday experience and concern. Take the fact of the famine in India, for example. We are called upon, willy-nilly, to become involved in international events in ways which would not have been possible fifty years ago, or even twenty-five years ago.

If the purpose of a liberal education is to free us from that which limits our understanding, it would seem that an important aspect of a liberal arts education in this decade would be to broaden the basis of our understanding of these non-Western areas. This is what I propose for Guilford College. We would like so far as we can to become world-oriented in our thinking and in our educational programs.

As I indicated before, it seems particularly appropriate for Guilford, with its traditions as a Quaker institution, to concern itself with international studies. Stress upon international understanding and active social mediation of issues leading to tensions among nations have long been a major concern of members of the Society of Friends. The Quaker relief work during and after both World Wars comes immediately to mind, as do the Quaker delegations to hostile foreign powers. Guilford's ambition to increase our emphasis upon international studies has, therefore, deep roots in her history and tradition.

Guilford is a Quaker liberal arts college. This is a shorthand way of saying many things about this institution. I have tried to spell out in some detail a part of what this formula means.

In summary, Guilford stands for:

1. Academic integrity—demanding intellectual discipline.
2. Intellectual community—an emphasis on the wholeness of knowledge and the shared search of a community of scholars.
3. Individual development—a focus on overall development of the capacities of the individual student; education for leadership.
4. Religious center—stresses believing and questioning as the path of Christian growth.
5. Global involvement—a belief in international reconciliation through broader understanding.

"Our job," in the words of Nathan Pusey, "is to educate free, independent and vigorous minds capable of analyzing events, of exercising judgment, of distinguishing facts from propaganda and truth from half-truth and lies . . . it is also our responsibility to see that these minds are embedded in total persons who will stand with faith and courage and always, too, in thoughtful concern for others."

On the Quaker Sports Front

District 26 Champions, National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics

Bob Kauffman, 6'8" Guilford sophomore center, was All-Conference, All-District 26 NAIA, and honorable mention NAIA All-American.

BASEBALL

The Guilford College baseball Quakers, led by freshman Edgar Parker's pitching and Jim Bryan's pitching and hitting, have blazed an exciting trail to the top spot in the Carolinas Conference. They have won ten games, lost two, and at press time were approaching the Conference Championship tournament holding the top seeded spot.

Parker, son of George '35, former athletic luminary of another era, and brothers Elwood '64 and Conrad '62, of recent fame, has won eight games, lost none, and holds .7 earned run average. He seems on the brink of national recognition, as he had compiled thirty-two consecutive innings of scoreless pitching as of May 4.

Bryan, Sandy Gann, Danny Southerland, Marilyn Scott, and Tommy Grayson were having great performances in the field and at bat as Coach Stuart Maynard prepared to battle for his first college championship.

Senior Danny Southerland of Goldsboro is enjoying a fine year with the Quaker baseball team in the outfield and at the plate.

BASKETBALL

Coach Jerry Steele's Guilford basketball Quakers wrote a blazing finish to the 1965-66 basketball campaign by bringing home the district 26 NAIA championship, unprecedented in college history. The Quakers, led by 6'8" center Bob Kauffman, 6'4" senior forward "Chuck" Scott, and 6'2" freshman guard Bob Bregard, the Quakers defeated rivals High Point and Erskine on successive nights for the title. This pinnacle was reached after an earlier, disappointing upset loss to Catawba in the Carolinas Conferences tournament.

District 26 encompasses North Carolina and South Carolina college teams in NAIA competition. The victory qualified the team for the national championship tournament at Kansas City, Mo., and the Quakers left by plane on Sunday, March 6, after an enthusiastic send-off by some 600 fans—including Greensboro dignitaries.

Unfortunately, the basketballers ran into a quick, ball-hawking quint from Southern State College of Arkansas, and lost in the first round of the tournament, 72-67. But the Quakers impressed—and, with the return of all the current team with the exception of Captain Scott, the Quakers should return for a run at the national title soon.

The Guilford baseball team won the regular season Carolinas Conference championship by virtue of a 13-2 record. The Quakers were also acclaimed as the top hitting small college team in the nation!

Senior Ronnie Winslow of Asheboro, selected to All-Conference, All-District and All-State teams during the past year, will again serve as co-captain of the Quaker football eleven this fall. Selected also as the Carolinas Conference Lineman of the Year, Winslow will serve along with senior Tommy Grayson, All - Conference back and leading rusher for the league last season.

John Stewart, football coach, reported a "very satisfying" scrimmage with Wofford College on March 5, and with this note closed perhaps the most successful spring football session in college history.

Used to from 15 to 20 men out for the spring drills, Coaches Stewart, Bill Johnson, and John Lambeth '55 greeted some forty candidates this February. There was bad news at times, as star junior halfback Henry McKay is on crutches due to a leg injury sustained in practice. "Also, we have three quarterbacks with bad knees," said Coach Stewart.

Bright spots in the spring drills were many, however, including the expected high performance of All-Conference, All-District, Conference Lineman of the Year and Captain Ronnie Winslow. Also, Coach Stewart was pleased with the work of big Larry Bumgarnier, 225-pound Duke transfer tackle; Paul Barcy, 230-pound guard who came to the Quakers from Temple University; and the running of FB Ronnie Wallace, hampered by an injury last year. Coach Stewart is very modest in speaking of prospects for next year, but he notes that "Grayson (All-Conference, leading rushes in conference) and Winslow, our co-captains, will give us leadership. McKay, Wallace, and Burchette look good . . . If Bocuzzi (Carmen, freshman quarterback) can move toward his potential . . . but remember the name Paul Barcy. You will be hearing it often this fall!"

RUSTEDT

Word has come of the passing of Marian B. Rustedt, member of the faculty from 1910 to 1914. Educated in Richfield High School in Vermont, and in Brigham Academy in Bakersfield, Vermont, she graduated from the University of Vermont. She joined the Guilford faculty after teaching for some time in public schools. She later did graduate work at Columbia University and at Sorbonne University in Paris, France.

Alma Martin, Mrs. Whitfield Cobb

At a special surprise ceremony Tuesday, February 22, at 4:00 p.m., friends of Mrs. Alma Martin presented the initial volumes of the Alma Martin Russian Collection to the Guilford College Library.

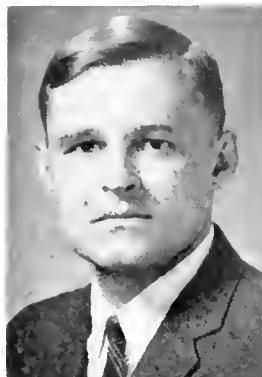

The collection, including 61 titles given by Dr. William Edgerton '34, former Greensboro resident now Professor of Slavic Languages at Indiana University, was made possible by friends and former students of Mrs. Martin. Mrs. Martin is currently serving the college as assistant professor of Russian. She had served as dietician and assistant professor of Home Economics from 1949-1959.

Mrs. Martin, a native of Estonia, studied extensively in Russia, receiving her B.S. degree at the Agricultural College in Russia in 1917. She also was awarded the distinguished Agronom degree from the University of Tarte, Estonia, and has studied at Iowa State University (M.S. degree), Cornell University and Middlebury College.

Mrs. Treva Mathis, acting librarian at the college, received the collection for the institution. She noted that the Alma Martin Russian Collection is the first of several major acquisitions in the area of the study of Eastern civilizations to be made in the near future by the college.

The project was headed by Mrs. Margaret Cobb, Mrs. Martin's first student in Russian and wife of Whitfield Cobb, former associate professor of mathematics at the college. The Cobbs now reside in Blacksburg, Va., where Whitfield is now professor of statistics at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

ELLEN RAIFORD GLENN

Ellen Raiford Glenn '18, a loyal alumna of Guilford College, died in Rex Hospital, Raleigh, on Sunday morning, February 20, 1966. Her many friends in Raleigh were shocked by her sudden demise, but thankful that she was able to live her life as usual within an hour of her death.

She was a life-long Quaker—and proud of her heritage. She was born March 21, 1893, in Ivor, Va.

Many prominent men and women in the city of Raleigh studied under Ellen Glenn. She followed the careers of her boys and girls — doctors, lawyers, preachers, legislators, mechanics, merchants, housewives — always praising them, contending that she couldn't live without them. One friend wrote:

"Ellen had a student that she bought tires from; another that serviced her car. Her doctor for one thing was a lady she had taught . . . also a throat doctor, a bone specialist—all of them had been students—yet, the drop-out who was a paper-hanger she kept up with, too. Her friends were legion; she would go and take one tiny flower if nothing else was blooming in her yard."

CLASSIC SOCIETY

Several Guilfordians have become active members in the new North Carolina Society of the Classic Guitar, formed last fall as a statewide, non-profit organization for promotion of the best interests of the instrument.

Mrs. Cora Worth Parsons '39, Jim Newlin '60, Ray Perry '68, Randy Ihara '66, and political science teacher Herbert Reid and his wife Stephanie, are all active members. J. Clark Mitchell of Greensboro is president and Edwin W. Davis '62 is a director.

After a concert in Dana Auditorium March 25 by Alirio Diaz, one of the leading classical guitarists, Guilford provided refreshments at an informal gathering and gave Society members an opportunity to greet the artist.

Jesus Silva, resident professor of classic guitar at the North Carolina School of Arts in Winston-Salem, is advisor to the group. The Society gave a banquet in honor of Andres Segovia April 16, during a two-week session of master classes at the arts school by the great virtuoso.

Message to 50-year Group

Memorial we are honoring a man whose place was unique in the history of Guilford College.

Some interest from the Fund is being used. Last year, through the influence of Mary Margaret Binford Bailey, we secured the renowned scholar, Dr. Brock Chisholm, to lecture at Dana Auditorium. He also had conferences with students and faculty. In 1961, the 50-year Group published a booklet called A Tribute with some of the interest. If you wish this sent to you again, let the Alumni Office know. The booklet has valuable information about President Binford and his contribution to the college.

Jefferson Standard Economic Seminar

Some of the leaders in the first Jefferson Standard Economics Seminar, co-sponsored by Guilford College and Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company, were (above, l to r) Dr. Thomas Storrs, Executive Vice-President of North Carolina National Bank, principal speaker; Howard Holderness, Jefferston Standard president, who introduced the speaker; David H. Parsons, Guilford College business manager and panel leader; Dr. Judson Wyckoff, Guilford Economics Department head; and Dr. Thomas Moore, also of the Guilford Economics Department. The seminar was held Wednesday, May 4, at Guilford College.

Dr. Storrs spoke on "The Market Place in Our Economic System," and noted that the "continuing economic freedom of the individual lies in our ability to choose between alternatives . . . question now seems to be which will be the determining factor in our economy, the market place or government guidelines." Dr. Storrs stated that he feared that the decision on the part of the executive branch as to what prices of certain commodities "will be a threat to the benefits of competition that accrue to the consumer."

A special luncheon followed Storrs' address at 10:30 a.m., and three seminars were conducted at 2:00 p.m. for visiting public school teachers, high school students, area business leaders, and college students.

Because of space limitations due to the special nature of the May Bulletin, "With Guilfordians Everywhere," news of Spring Alumni Meetings and other interesting items are being held for the next Alumni Journal.

Paulette Joyce Warren '66 and Melvin Manuel III were married in February 1966.

On January 14, 1966, Mr. and Mrs. Steen H. Spove '63 became the proud parents of a fine son, Steen Robins Spove.

Margaret Darrow '55 was married to Robert M. Godbois on November 6, 1965.

ALUMNI DAY PROGRAM

Alumni Day '66, to be celebrated on Saturday, May 28, promises to be a fitting conclusion to an exciting year at Guilford College. Mary Nell Parker '59, Alumni Day Chairman, reports that traditional events will be included, among them the awarding of the 13th Distinguished Alumni Award.

Dr. Grimsley T. Hobbs '47 will give the Annual Alumni Address at the Alumni Banquet, and the class of 1966 will be inducted into the Alumni Association during the Reunion Luncheon. The traditional tea will be held at Founders Hall at 4:00 p.m.

Also promising to be outstanding is a special ceremony of induction for the class of 1916, joining the select circle of the 50-year group this year. The special ceremony has been adopted by the Executive Committee as a result of study following a very impressive reunion program carried out by the class of 1915 two years ago.

Special reunion classes this year are:

New Trustees Announced

Robert H. Frazier, Chairman of the Guilford College Board of Trustees, has announced the election of two new trustees to fill the positions made vacant by the loss of Nereus C. English of Thomasville and B. Clyde Shore of Winston-Salem.

The new trustees are Joseph J. Cox of High Point, a member of the Guilford Class of 1928, and William P. Kemp, of Goldsboro.

Joseph Cox is Manager of the New South Furniture Exposition Corporation in High Point where he supervises the Furniture Plaza. He is a member of the High Point Friends Meeting, the Rotary Club and the String & Splinter Club. He and Mrs. Cox, the former Virginia Ragsdale, class of 1929, have one child, Virginia Ragsdale Cox, who was graduated from Guilford in 1959. She is married to Frederick Thomas of the class of 1960. Since the death of Joseph Cox's brother, Elwood, and his wife, Annie Louise Lee Cox, in 1954, their four children have made their home with the Joseph Coxes. These children, are, Louise, now Mrs. Edward Fries; Jonathan, who was graduated from Guilford in 1964; Ellen, a student at Westtown School, and Steven, a student at Westtown School. Joseph Cox was president of the Guilford College Alumni Association from 1949 to 1951. He was also Chairman of the Guilford College Foundation which was organized to operate the Virginia Ragsdale Alumni House until such time as it should be used as the home for the president of the college. This house is now being occupied by the family of President Grimsley Hobbs. While a student at Guilford, Joseph Cox was editor of the Guilfordian, business manager of the Quaker and business manager of the Glee Club. Joseph J. Cox's father, Joseph D. Cox, served with distinction as a member of the Guilford Board of Trustees from 1922 until his death on May 3, 1963. He also served as Vice Chairman of the Board of Trustees and as Chairman of the Committee on Officers and Teachers. Joseph D. Cox was married to the former May Riddick, who continues to be a loyal and active Guilfordian. Both were members of the class of 1904. Joseph J. Cox's grandfather, Joseph J. Cox, served as a trustee from 1878 to 1903.

William P. Kemp brings a long Quaker ancestry to the Guilford College Board of Trustees, dating back to arrival in Maryland in 1672. His immediate family moved to Goldsboro in 1931 when William was eight years old. He attended the Goldsboro public schools through the tenth grade, then entered George School, Pennsylvania. While there he was captain of the wrestling team and a member of the football team. He attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, entering in 1941. After service in the Air Force he returned to the University in 1946, graduating with a degree in Business Administration. He is married to the former Betty Jean Schneider, and they have three children, Elizabeth M. Kemp, William Powell Kemp III, and Sallie Louise Kemp. William Kemp is president of the Kemp Furniture Company, in Goldsboro, which was founded by his father in 1931. He is a birthright member of the Third Haven Meeting of Eastern, Maryland. At the University of North Carolina he played football and was an outstanding member of the wrestling team, serving as captain. He also was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity and president of the Carolina Political Union. William Kemp is an outstanding civic leader in the Goldsboro community, having been active with the Boy Scouts and presently serving as coach of the Goldsboro High School wrestling team, which won the State Championship in 1965. He was "Young Man of the Year" of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in 1958. He belongs to the Good Neighbor Council, the Rotary Club, the American Field Service Committee for encouraging the exchange of foreign students, and the Goldsboro Chamber of Commerce. He is Education Director of the Wayne County Mental Association, Chairman of the Goldsboro Recreation & Parks Commission, and a member of the Board of Directors of the Southern Furniture Manufacturers Association.

New Administrative Offices

As the Alumni Journal goes to press, administrative offices of the college are being moved into the completely renovated New Garden Meeting House. Rich wood paneling is featured throughout the building, and all offices are carpeted. It is expected that pictures of the new building with complete furnishings will be available for the next issue of the Journal.

for physical and academic programs. He spoke of plans for a "Greater Guilford," saying that "Guilford has a distinguished educational program. We won't make changes for changes' sake, but we want to be sure that our graduates have the benefit of an education relevant to the times."

President John Haworth '47 welcomed all guests, and called the year 1965-66 "an exciting, fruitful year."

But perhaps the most exciting Alumni Day event in recent history took place on the circle in front of Duke Memorial Hall. At approximately 4:00 p.m. Coach Stuart Maynard '43, and his Quaker baseball team arrived on the "Victory Bus" that had brought them from Statesboro, Georgia. The baseball team had won the District 26 NAIA Championship a week earlier, and had wrapped up the Southeastern Regional championship the day before. TV and press cameras clicked and whirled, the team was introduced, and after short welcoming remarks by Grimsley Hobbs and John Haworth, hundreds of admirers swarmed about them. Said one player, "we can't be any worse than eighth in the nation now!" (Only eight teams remained for the national playoffs.)

To sum up, Alumni Day '66 was, for hundreds of Guilfordians and friends, another golden day to be remembered.

John R. Haworth '47, of High Point, was re-elected for a second one-year term as President; and Elizabeth Gilliam Parker '37 was re-elected Vice-President.

Ernest Scarboro '33 was re-elected Alumni Trustee for a three year term; and at-large members elected for three year terms to the Alumni Executive Committee were Hazel Armstrong Valentine '17 (re-elected); Emily Warick Privott '56, Waldo Woody '33, and Doris Coble Kimmel '46.

Algie I. Newlin '21, Professor of History, was presented the thirteenth annual Distinguished Alumni Award. Dr. Newlin retired from the college after teaching since 1924. His classmate, Dr. Harry Johnson of Elkin, made the presentation on behalf of the Alumni Association. This was the last known picture made of Harry Johnson who died early in June.

Herbert Appenzeller was honored during graduation week by the senior class. Susan Belk, editor of the Quaker, college yearbook, presided over the dedication of this year's publication to Dr. Appenzeller.

From Your Alumni President

Dear Guilfordians:

It is with pleasure that I accept your call to a second term as your Alumni President.

The past year has been an exciting one.

Our new administration has made an auspicious beginning. We have been pleased with the successes of our athletic teams. You know that our own Stuart Maynard '43, baseball coach, was named National Coach of the Year by the National Association of Inter-collegiate Athletics. His team finished fourth in the nation.

We have enjoyed alumni meetings, and campus gatherings. We have watched campus developments, such as the new administration building, with pride and interest. But my concern is that Guilford's alumni, at this time of rapidly increasing demands on our college, move into a closer relationship with our institution. We need to encourage inactive Alumni to give time, talent, and money in the interest of moving Guilford toward new horizons. It is necessary if Guilford is to meet the challenge of the sixties and seventies. We look forward to seeing you wherever Guilfordians gather again this year.

JOHN HAWORTH, JR., President
Guilford College Alumni Association

Mark November 5, 1966!

Your class agent will try to make you more familiar with the program of your Alumni Association. In the Association's efforts to continue the growth and effectiveness of Guilford College, your cooperation will be appreciated.

GUILFORD VS. PRESBYTERIAN

Game Time: 2:00 p.m.

Armfield Athletic Center

A memorable experience for Ernestine C. Milner was a recent meeting with Madame V. Pandit, Prime Minister of India. Ernestine Milner, past president of Altrusa International, presented Madame Pandit the Altrusa pin. Shown above with Mrs. Milner and Madame Pandit (center) is Annie Ray Moore '30, currently in New Delhi with the World Health Organization. She is Regional Director for several countries, including Burma, Ceylon, India, Indonesia, and Mongolia.

Letter From The Milners

The following excerpts are taken from a most interesting letter received from Clyde and Ernestine Milner. They have called the letter "Part I of Our African Safari." It was written on July 5, the Milner's thirty-eighth wedding anniversary.

"We flew from Athens, Greece, to Cairo, Egypt, May 15. After getting established at the Isis, a floating hotel on the Nile on May 16, we journeyed immediately toward Gizeh. The ride through Cairo, which was beautifully green with flowering trees, came to an abrupt end, and suddenly we were in the desert at the three massive pyramids and the Sphinx.

"As in Athens, we attended the Sound and Light Show; in Cairo it occurs at the pyramids with the Sphinx seemingly narrating the story. Of course, one of the most remarkable experiences in Cairo was a visit to the museum, where Ernestine saw almost all the sculptures she used for illustrations in Philosophy 24; the Seated Scribe, the Sheik-el-Beled, Chephren and the wonderful artifacts from the tombs of Aknaton and Tutankhamen. On our last afternoon, we visited the Step Pyramid at Sakkarah and Memphis where the government has just moved one of the colossal statues of Rameses II.

"On May 20, we flew to Ethiopia over Asmara and close enough to see Lake Tana, into which the small Abbay flows and from which the Blue Nile (big Abbay) emerges, proceeding on its slow course to meet the White Nile at Khartoum.

"On May 24, we arrived at the New Stanley, ready for our East African Safari. (A safari is not, as we had supposed, necessarily a trip to hunt elephants, lions, etc.) The New Stanley is famous for its Thorn Trees under which the observer may sit and watch safaris of all kinds depart.

"We visited Ofafa, a Friends' community centre in Nairobi, where every child we met extended his hand and said "jambo." The milk distribution period will always be an unforgettable memory—eighty small children drinking from tin cups (some made from tin cans) with their eyes showing just above the rims of the cups. From Nairobi we rode across the country to Kisumu by Peugot taxi, seeing the countryside—not jungles, but fields of maize, tea and coffee plantations, now and again a small woodland.

"Our visit to the Friends Mission with its schools, its health centers, its agricultural training school, which is very modern and extremely practical, inspired us because of the tremendous dedication of the workers, giving of their many talents wherever they could. All were most hospitable to us, and we were guests in twenty-six Friends homes.

"We participated in Friends Meetings; talked at the Boys Secondary Schools at Chavakali and Kamusingo and at the Girls Secondary Schools at Kaimosi and Lugulu. Ernestine taught several classes in psychology at the Teachers' College. We met four of the five appointed delegates who will accompany Thomas Lung'aho to the World Conference.

"We enjoy boat trips, so we travelled around Lake Victoria on the Victoria, getting a glimpse of Tanzania and of Uganda, and of its recently riot-torn capital, Kampala, a marvelously beautiful, modern city with seven hills crowned with churches, a mosque, and Makerere University.

"We were particularly happy to be in Mombasa, June 24, just sixty-four years after the first missionaries—Willis Hotchkiss, Arthur Chilson and Edgar T. Hole—landed here and began their inland journey. We were, of course, particularly interested in the activities of Edgar T. Hole, who had been our colleague at Guilford. The entire story is told inspiring in The Hill of Vision just published by Levinus Painter."

The Milners sent greetings and best wishes to all their Guilfordian friends.

New Faculty Doctorates

In June Paul E. Zopf, Jr., Herbert T. Appenzeller, and Donald W. Millholland of the Guilford College faculty received their doctorates upon fulfilling all of the necessary requirements. Fred Irving Courtney has also satisfied the requirements for his doctorate, bringing the total number of Guilford College faculty who hold degrees at the doctorate level to thirty-four.

Paul Zopf joined the Guilford faculty in 1959 as Assistant Professor of Sociology, holding a B.S. degree from the University of Connecticut and the M.A. degree from the University of Florida. The dissertation which he submitted in partial fulfillment of the requirements for a Ph.D. in sociology at the University of Florida is entitled A Demographic Study of the Population of North Carolina. Dr. Zopf is married to the former Evelyn Montgomery of Laurel, Mississippi. They have one son, Eric, and reside at present on the Guilford College campus.

Donald Millholland and Herbert Appenzeller received their degrees during June graduating exercises at Duke University. Dr. Appenzeller's dissertation for the E.D. degree is entitled Analysis of Court Cases Pertaining to Tort Liability For Injury Sustained in Public School Programs of Physical Education.

Dr. Milholland's dissertation for the Ph.D. degree is entitled Beyond Nihilism: A Study of the Thought of Albert Camus and Michael Polanyi.

Dr. Appenzeller, Director of Athletics and Professor of Education, came to Guilford from Chowan College in 1956. He received both his B.A. and M.A. degrees from Wake Forest College. His wife, the former Margaret Little, is an alumna of Wake Forest. They have one son, Tommy, and two daughters, Linda and Mary.

Dr. Millholland received his A.B. degree from Duke University and B.D. at Union Theological Seminary in New York. Under a Fulbright Scholarship, he studied philosophy in France at the University of Paris and Lille. He has served Guilford College as Assistant Professor of Philosophy since 1965.

Fred I. Courtney recently submitted his dissertation entitled Systems Approach to Corporate Evaluation and the Corporate Operations Sequence to complete the requirements for the Ph.D. degree in economics at American University, Washington, D. C. He holds the B.B.A. and M.A. degrees from Baylor University, Waco, Texas. His wife, the former Carol Peery, is an alumna of Lenoir Rhyne College, Hickory, N. C. They have five children: Fred, Jr., Talbot Allen, Roy Peery, Clayman Lee and Carol Louise.

Dr. Harry Johnson, Jr. Joins Pilot Life In Greensboro

Dr. Harry L. Johnson, Jr., '53, Granite Quarry physician, has joined the staff of Pilot Life Insurance Co. as Assistant Medical Director, according to an announcement by the company's Medical Director, Dr. H. Frank Starr Jr.

A native of Greensboro, Dr. Johnson attended Greensboro public schools and graduated from the University of North Carolina School of Medicine in 1957. After serving his internship at Rex Hospital, Raleigh, he entered military service as a Lieutenant in the U. S. Navy Medical Corps. Upon his discharge in 1960, he established private practice as a family physician in Granite Quarry.

Dr. Johnson is a member of various medical associations and served as secretary of Rowan Memorial Hospital in 1961. He was chairman of the Rowan County Republican Party from November, 1965, until June of this year.

Alan O'Connor Returns After Two Years In Africa

Zambia, with its rich natural resources and its wise leadership in President Kenneth Kaunda, has the potential of becoming one of the most stable and productive of the newly independent African nations. This is the opinion of Alan Connor '51, just returned from two years of representing the American Friends Service Committee in that country.

"The twin needs of the Zambian people are for education and for jobs," Connor says. "In all our AFSC programs we have tried to keep these needs foremost."

In Broken Hill, a town 80 miles north of Lusaka, Alan Connor established a pilot project in community development for the Service Committee. Later he was joined by Dan Dibble, a Seattle teacher. Together Dibble and Connor helped to develop the local adult education movement until the membership grew from 250 to 1000 persons, and from a purely voluntary effort to one with considerable government support.

On the Quaker Sports Front

By Bill Pendergraft

The champs! Coach Stuart Maynard '43 (right) and the Southeastern Regional NAIA champs depart for St. Joseph, Mo., for the National Championship Tournament.

BASKETBALL

Jerry Steele and his basketball team last year won the District 26 championship, and a berth at Kansas City in the national tournament.

For this coming season, Coach Steele looks for great things from the Quakers. With the graduation of Chuck Scott, Guilford will lose an excellent forward and no doubt have a hard time filling his shoes, but Coach Steele is now in the process of drafting new men who should round out the Quaker team.

Returning this year will be Kauffman, Young, Moriarity, Allen, Fellers, Brooks, Loftus, Bregard, Gaylord, Motsinger, Hedrick, and Newton. With these men and the new recruits, Guilford should be well prepared for the first tap-off with Pembroke at Grimsley High Gymnasium in Greensboro.

This year the Quakers will play all the conference members twice, and will compete in the Gate City and Wilmington Holiday Classics.

FOOTBALL

Football Coach John Stewart is nervous. After having an 8-2 record last year, and losing only a handful of regulars, he knows that a great deal is expected of the Quakers.

But his nervousness is not due to apprehension about the upcoming season. "We are like little kids who can't wait for Christmas!" says Coach Stewart,

"even though I believe we have the toughest schedule in the conference. Our non-conference opponents are also as tough as nails." Coach Stewart admits, however, that "we are tough, too, especially defensively." The addition of Paul Barey, speedy guard (220 lbs.) and Larry Bumgarner, tackle, to the line makes him smile. And the improvement of backs Danny Surface, Buddy Smith, and Carmen Boeuzzi encourages him also. Co-Captains Ronnie Winslow and Tommy Grayson, both All-Conference last year, will lead the charge.

"Good luck on injuries may be the key," said Coach Stewart. "Our quarterbacks all have knee problems. But Ronnie Wallace (star fullback, injured last year) can turn the whole thing around if he's one hundred percent able."

BASEBALL

The Quaker baseball team, coached by Stuart "Rock" Maynard, slugged their way to first place in the Carolinas Conference and to District 26 and Area 7 championships. Returning victorious from the Southeastern Regional NAIA championship in Statesboro, Georgia, Maynard's team won fourth place in a field of eight at the NAIA Nationals in St. Joseph, Mo.

With the loss of such talent as Sandy Gann, Danny Southerland, and Jimmy Fields, Maynard is faced with the problem of finding a first and second baseman, a catcher, a center fielder, and a pitcher for next year. One outstanding recruit comes to Guilford from Roxboro High. His name is Billy Horner, and he should do a fine job pitching for the Quakers next spring. Maynard also looks for help from members of the football team who play both sports.

To return for action next spring will be Bryan, Burchette, Parker, Pegram, Scott, Brockwell, Hill, Grayson, Sasser, Surface, Whittington, Stewart, and Searey.

Baseball at Guilford College had an exceptional year and, as Coach Maynard states, "The only way we could do better is win the national championship. We took the games one at a time, and this was a great factor in our success."

With newly recruited players and returning letterman, Guilford baseball should see another good year in 1967.

Dr. J. Floyd Moore '39, Professor of Biblical Literature and Religion, worked in India this past summer under the auspices of the Fulbright Commission. He was one of twenty American professors selected to attend the Summer Institute in Indian Civilization.

In a recent message, he reported visits with several Guilfordians and friends en route, among them Helga Strube '56 De Leon in Los Angeles, Joyce Hunter '57 Lawton in Honolulu and Hideo Shuzumoto and his family in Japan.

Editor's Note—A number of Guilford College faculty members had unusual summer experiences. Accounts of as many of them as possible will be included in the next issue of the Alumni Journal.

The following story about Dr. Moore's trip was written by Joseph Knox, Greensboro Daily News Staff Writer:

People of Asiatic countries are severely critical of America's role in the Vietnamese conflict, but at the same time they are confounded and anxious about the threat Red China would pose to their lives if U. S. influence in Southeast Asia was suddenly diminished.

Dr. Moore said he was immensely impressed with the great numbers of individual Americans he met in India who, entirely on their own, have dedicated themselves to bringing enlightenment and a better life to an impoverished country.

These include teachers, students, volunteers to the Peace Corps who offer whole layers of services that go far beyond institutional programs of our government.

He specifically mentioned the Ford Foundation which has undertaken a huge project to uplift areas of Calcutta, and noted that agencies of the U. S. government actively encourage and offer co-operation in these private endeavors.

The Institute was based in New Delhi from where the party traveled over much of the subcontinent to visit major cities for lectures and tours to reveal economic, political, and industrial problems of the country.

On September 1, Dr. Moore began a year's leave from Guilford College to serve as executive secretary for the Fourth World Conference of Friends which will be held next summer on the Guilford campus.

In order to prepare himself better for the job, he extended his overseas trip to visit Quaker centers in a number of countries to discuss preparations for the world assembly.

Among other places, he met with Friends in Honolulu, Tokyo, Hong Kong, Bangkok, Istanbul, and Belgrade, and in doing so completely encircled the globe. He was away from home for 83 days.

In Memoriam

B. CLYDE SHORE

One of the most distinguished of Guilford College's alumni died on May 28 in Winston-Salem after a lengthy illness. The death of B. Clyde Shore '25, former Alumni President and member of the College Board of Trustees, was announced to a saddened audience on Alumni Day by President Grimsley T. Hobbs.

B. Clyde Shore was an outstanding student while at Guilford; he was an active member of the Henry Clay Literary Society, and served as Vice-president and Chaplain of that organization. He was a College Marshal and was a member of the football and basketball teams.

He had been an active and enthusiastic alumnus since graduation, and served as Alumni President from 1940 to 1942. During his tenure as Alumni President, he developed a strong concern for the need for an Auditorium-Religious Education-Music facility for the college. This concern ended happily with the opening of Dana Auditorium more than twenty years later; and B. Clyde Shore was the inspired chairman of the campaign committee which raised over $700,000 for this building.

In the meantime, Kathrine Hine Shore Hall, a residence hall for women, had been given to Guilford College by Clyde Shore in honor of his wife, and the B. Clyde Shore Journalism Scholarships had already been giving assistance to aspiring young journalists studying at Guilford.

B. Clyde Shore was widely known as an able businessman and civic leader. He worked in the insurance business for one year following graduation before establishing Shore Real Estate and Insurance Company in Winston-Salem. He served as President of the Winston-Salem Board of Realtors, and was the State Director for the North Carolina Board of Realtors.

His business life was always scheduled to leave time for civic and religious activities. In addition to his many contributions to his college, he was a devoted, active member of Winston-Salem Monthly Meeting of Friends. Evidence of wider outreach is shown by the offices he held with the North Carolina Yearly Meeting of Friends. He was Treasurer of the Yearly Meeting for many years, a Trustee of Trust Funds, a member of the Permanent Board, and Chairman of the Evangelism and Outreach Committees.

He was a past President of the Winston-Salem Civitan Club, and a Lieutenant Governor of North Carolina District, Civitan International.

He is survived by his wife, Kathrine Hine Shore; a daughter, Barbara, now Mrs. Earl Hudgens, Jr.; and a son, John Carl, all of Winston-Salem. He is also survived by three beloved grandchildren, Sandra and Jay Hudgens, and Christopher Clyde Shore.

Clyde Shore's diligent work, his wise and friendly counsel, and his inspiration to other Guilfordians will be greatly missed.

FOUR DOCTORATES

The completion of Paul Zopf's doctorate comes at the end of leave of absence for study. Guilford makes such leaves available to faculty members who wish to pursue their graduate careers, and Zopf is one of several faculty members who have completed advanced degrees under this arrangement. Appenzeller, Millholland and Courtney had previously completed their course work and have been doing research and preparing their dissertations while teaching at Guilford.

Guilfordians everywhere were saddened at the news of the death of Dr. Harry Johnson '21 in early June. Dr. Johnson had recently retired as Chief of Staff of Hugh Chatham Memorial Hospital in Elkin.

He had attended Alumni Day activities on Saturday, May 28, and had presented the 13th Annual Distinguished Alumni Award to classmate, former roommate, and good friend, Algie I. Newlin. Dr. Johnson made the presentation on behalf of the Alumni Association on the occasion of Dr. Newlin's retirement after teaching at Guilford since 1924.

Harry Johnson was an enthusiastic and active alumnus, and was a familiar figure at Homecoming and Alumni Day celebrations. His appearance at area Alumni meetings was always anticipated by college delegations, and many times he brought as his guests outstanding young high school students who were later to become Guilfordians. On occasion, when medical emergency prevented his participation in alumni sports activities, a member of his family would report, "I represent Dr. Harry Johnson today, and he wanted you to know that he is here in spirit."

His education was interrupted by one year in the United States Navy in 1918-19. He was a member of the Henry Clay Literary Society and of the college chorus. A sports enthusiast, he was a member of both the baseball and football teams. At the time of his departure for medical college at the University of North Carolina in 1920, he was president-elect of the YMCA and the Athletic Association, and captain-elect of the baseball team.

He received the M.D. degree from the University of Cincinnati in 1924, and was made a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons in 1936. He served one year in the Department of Surgery, Henry Ford Hospital, Detroit, Michigan, and was for several years a practicing physician and surgeon in Greensboro, Hickory, and Newton. He practiced surgery at Hugh Chatham Memorial Hospital in Elkin for over 25 years, and since his retirement had worked with the Social Security Administration.

Dr. Johnson married Louise Theobald in 1925, and is survived by two children from this union: Mrs. Phyllis Qualheim and Dr. Harry Johnson, Jr., '53. Louise Theobald Johnson died in 1961. He is also survived by eight grandchildren, a brother, Ralph W. Johnson, and his wife, Mrs. Viola Neese Johnson of Burlington.

Guilford Shares In Federal Funds

Guilford College has joined many other institutions as a participant in a number of federal programs designed to aid higher education. Under the Economic Opportunity Act the college has received Economic Opportunity grants totaling $11,150 and Work-Study funds of $24,705.

Guilford has received two grants under the Higher Education Act of 1965. A grant of $20,773 has been awarded for the purchase of equipment to be used in the teaching of biological and physical sciences. This grant is to be matched equally by the college. Guilford has also received a $5,000 grant for the purchase of books and other library materials.

The National Science Foundation has awarded Guilford a grant of $3,700 for the purchase of special equipment for biological laboratories. This grant must also be matched by the college. The new science equipment made possible by federal grants will assist materially in plans of the college to strengthen its science teaching program and modernize King Hall for use by the various science departments.
